Cautions Against Outlook

Over Reports Of Agressive Troop Action

WASHINGTON (AP)—High U.S. officials pronounced themselves encouraged Saturday by reports of new aggressiveness by South Vietnamese troops in battle against the Communist guerrillas.

"But let's not go overboard," said one senior Pentagon official cautioning against premature optimism.

"There have been only a few such actions so far. Let's see whether the pattern continues."

After a long and dismal period of apparent deterioration and defeat, reports in recent days have told of South Viet Nam's soldiers slashing at the Communists and inflicting heavy casualties.

A top general pounded one fist into an open palm in a gesture of elation, and said "they're starting to fight the way we've been wanting them to."

But, like the civilian official, the general tried to restrain possible over-optimism. He said he awaits further developments before making any judgments on the long-range significance on the battlefield events of the past 10 days or so.

These sources preferred to remain anonymous.

Meanwhile, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor worked his staff overtime preparing for his departure for Saigon to become U.S. ambassador and, in effect, viceroy in charge of the whole U.S. civilian and military effort in Viet Nam.

It is understood that Taylor hopes to leave for Saigon about next weekend, although the target date has changed a couple of times. Replacing Taylor as the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff will be Gen. Earle G. Wheeler.

Officials stressed that they expect Taylor to bring strength and unified leadership to the entire U.S. effort in South Viet Nam, covering political and economic programs as well as prosecution of the war against the guerrillas.

Authorities say the advent of Taylor as top man in Viet Nam does not signal any major change in the already intensified U.S. drive to beef up the Vietnamese forces, to help organize a stable government in Saigon and throughout the country, and to get things on the winning track after two military coups and resultant turmoil.

Area Resident Killed

WARRENSBURG, Mo. (AP) — Mrs. Erma Proctor Meyer, Enon, Mo., was killed Saturday night in a three-car collision on Highway 50 six miles west of Warrensburg.

Eight other persons were injured.

BLAST FOLLOWS TRUCK FIRE, SIX DIE — Fire trucks and shattered trees give the appearance of a bombing scene near Stroudsburg, Pa., after a truck loaded with ammonium nitrate caught fire and exploded. Six persons were known dead and ten others were injured. The blast dug a crater in the highway and firemen, who were fighting the fire in the truck, were among those killed when the truck erupted.

India's New Leader Has Heart Attack

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—A month after Prime Minister Nehru's death, illness that an aide called a mild heart attack has felled his successor in India's leadership, Lal Bahadur Shastri.

The 59-year-old prime minister was bedfast Saturday, and the nation faced the possibility of another leadership crisis. Physicians ordered all Shastri's engagements canceled and treated him for what they called overstrain and a slight fever.

"There is no cause for anxiety," the government's All-India radio said in a nationwide broadcast.

Mindful of the emotional impact of Nehru's illness and death on the Indian people, a government spokesman reiterated those assuring words Saturday night and said the prime minister was rested and cheerful.

A top aide of Shastri—a highly placed informant who preferred not to be identified by name — told The Associated Press that Shastri, who survived a serious heart seizure five years ago, suffered a mild heart attack at 10 p.m. Friday. He said a team of doctors instituted emergency treatment to prevent further damage.

The family at first denied this, then retracted the denial. A government official, at a news conference, refused to confirm or deny that Shastri was again a heart patient.

Shastri's son Hari said "timely precautions prevented a recurrence of the 1959 heart attack," which left him near death and unconscious for hours.

Hari said his father, a Moderate Socialist who was sworn in as prime minister June 9, had been exhausted for the past three days.

Johnson Outlines Campaign

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — President Johnson, sounding a call to "keep America moving," outlined for Minnesota Democrats Saturday a blueprint for his 1964 campaign.

Johnson flew from Detroit to this land of sky blue waters and vice presidential timber, making the trip in a 10-passenger air force jetstar transport.

First step on the President's two-day Minnesota itinerary was neighboring St. Paul and the convention of the state's Democratic Farmer - Labor party.

Looking toward the fall campaign, Johnson said in his prepared text:

"We are not going to the American people and tell them they never had it so good—or don't rock the boat—or let's keep what we have—or stand pat—or keep cool.

"That's not the kind of a party you are. And that's not the kind of a country this is.

Johnson went on to summarize his election year pitch with these words:

"We are going to tell the people that the progress of the last four years is only the beginning. It is the first step toward the greatness that is within our grasp. We are going to tell them that this is not the end of the road. It is only the beginning of the journey."

Among the members of the D-F-L coalition are Minnesota's two senators, Hubert H. Humphrey and Eugene McCarthy—both prominent in advance speculation about the Democratic vice-presidential nomination.

To Beat Goldwater

Lodge Returning To Aid Stranton

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge ruled out any political office for himself Saturday and said he is resigning as ambassador to South Viet Nam solely to help Gov. Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania wrest the Republican presidential nomination from Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

"I've lost my lust for office," Lodge told a farewell news conference here. "What I'm doing is not because I want to get a job."

Lodge leaves for the United States Sunday night and indicated, he would make his first U.S. public pronouncement in Scranton's favor at a National Press Club luncheon in Washington Tuesday.

He said he also expects to discuss the war against communism in Viet Nam with Scranton and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, although he expressed the belief once again that it would not be practicable to make Viet Nam a campaign issue because both Republicans and Democrats had a hand in shaping U.S. policy here.

Lodge, GOP vice-presidential candidate in 1960, rejected a Goldwater suggestion that he speak out on what Goldwater called the Democratic administration's shortcomings in Viet Nam.

"It's awfully nice of him to give me free advice," said Lodge, "and give me these assignments, but as a matter of fact, I'm not accepting assignments from him. And I don't accept his definition of what my duty ought to be."

Lodge said that while many problems remain in South Viet Nam, he felt that the nation was on the right track under Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the premier, and that things looked better than when he came a year ago as President Kennedy's appointee.

Lodge said he did not think the appointment of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor as his successor here meant heavier military emphasis in the fight against Communist Viet Cong guerrillas.

Lodge said he did not think that developments were moving toward a general war in Asia. Asked then if he thought the war in Viet Nam might spread beyond South Viet Nam's borders, he replied:

"I don't know, I just don't know."

Scranton Has Strategy Conference

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton held a two-hour strategy meeting with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and other Republican leaders Saturday in a pooling of efforts to gain the GOP presidential nomination for Scranton.

Scranton said that specific plans have been worked out for Henry Cabot Lodge, who quit his post as ambassador to South Viet Nam to return home and support Scranton's campaign.

Maxwell Rabb, Lodge's national campaign director, and Paul Grindle, also of the Lodge camp, were among those at the meeting at Scranton's executive mansion at Indiantown Gap, 20 miles east of here.

"We came up with some plans for him (Lodge) subject to his return," said Scranton. "He will make a number of speeches for us and do other important work." Scranton did not elaborate.

The Pennsylvania governor said he will confer with Lodge as soon as possible after the former ambassador returns to the United States from Saigon. He said Lodge will not be his campaign manager.

Scranton also disclosed he would appear before the Republican Platform Committee in San Francisco on July 9 to make a pitch for a strong civil rights plank. Rockefeller is scheduled to appear before the committee July 7.

Both Scranton and Rockefeller declined to discuss actual details of the session. They said, however, that all the issues were covered and that delegates were discussed at length.

"This—delegate strength—is part of the strategy that is being worked out," said Rockefeller.

It was also disclosed that prior to the meeting, Jackie Robinson, former Negro baseball star, met with Scranton. Robinson had been working with Rockefeller before the New York governor withdrew as a candidate to support Scranton. Walter Alessandroni, Pennsylvania attorney general and a Scranton campaign aide, said Robinson was going to assist in the Scranton campaign.

More FBI Agents Ordered By Johnson

Into Racially-Disturbed Mississippi To Aid Hunt

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP)—President Johnson ordered more FBI agents into racially-disturbed Mississippi Saturday as the search broadened here for three missing civil rights workers.

The White House announcement did not disclose the number of reinforcements. The President acted in a move to deter racial violence in this state.

Enlargement of the FBI force had been recommended by former CIA Chief Allen Dulles, who spent two days this week in Mississippi sizing up the racial situation for the President.

Johnson did not disclose where the new agents would be stationed.

State and federal agents, searching since Monday for the missing trio, turned their attention Saturday to muddy Pearl River which flows north of here.

The highway patrol ordered dragging operations started. Game and Fiesh Commission boats were called in from Jackson to participate in the operation as a hundred sailors waded for a third day through muddy swamps.

Gov. Paul Johnson, after a personal visit to this east-central Mississippi hill county, ordered the highway patrol to "double its efforts" to solve what he termed the "mysetrious missing persons case."

Michael Schwerner, 24, and Andy Goodman, 20, both of New York City, and James Chaney, 22, a Negro from nearby Meridian, vanished last Sunday night after a spur-of-the-moment trip here to inspect a burned-out Negro church.

Their charred station wagon was discovered Tuesday in a swamp 13 miles to the northeast.

FBI agents and highway patrolmen, heavily tanned from six days of intensive searching under a hot Mississippi sun, were instructed to ride the boats with the game wardens.

An FBI spokesman said other streams, small creeks and lakes that dot the hilly, heavily overgrown countryside also would be dragged. "We will take them one at a time," he said.

Goldwater Is Early For Wedding

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's biggest worry Saturday was that he might be late for the wedding of his youngest daughter, Margaret Ann, 20, to Richard Arlen Holt, an oil company junior executive from Beverly Hills, Calif.

So, the presidential hopeful scheduled his arrival at the downtown Trinity Episcopal Cathedral an hour and a half before the ceremony. And, he gave himself plenty of time to drive the 10 miles from his desert hills home besides.

The police were worried about the society traffic jam for the Goldwater wedding, too, and assigned a special 10-man motorcycle squad with standby police details.

The Goldwaters had invited some 800 guests to the cathedral which at best could jam in some 600.

The family had everything in hand for the 11-minute "love, honor and cherish" Episcopal ceremony that would join the handsome young couple in matrimony at an 8:30 p.m. candlelight service. They rehearsed it down to the last details in the church Friday night.

So, they had a quiet day at home, mostly occupied with continuing the opening of the hundreds of presents that Peggy and Rick still were getting in a constant flow.

The gifts ranged from a giant Mexican piggy bank to a lavendar Venetian glass elephant with ivory tusks.

Peggy's bridal gown of white silk organza had a bell-shaped skirt and a 10-foot cathedral train. Her veil trailed to the bottom of the long gown.

The six bridesmaids, all friends from Phoenix and Los Angeles, wore similar long white gowns with yellow velvet ribbons accenting the Empire waistlines.

And a yellow satin runner covered the long candlelit aisle down which Goldwater was to escort his daughter to the altar for the 11-minute ceremony performed by the Very Rev. George R. Selway, dean of the cathedral, and the Right Rev. Joseph M. Harte, Episcopal bishop of Arizona.

Homemade Explosive Seriously Hurts Boy

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A homemade firecracker made from a brown paper bag exploded in a youth's hand Saturday and seriously injured him.

Police said Charles Tureck, Jr., 15, of St. Louis was taken to St. Anthony's Hospital. He suffered extensive cuts on his left hand and two fingers almost were blown off. Tureck was later transferred to Barnes Hospital in serious condition.

Police said Tureck emptied the powder from six one-inch firecrackers into the brown paper bag and inserted a one-inch fuse. He then lit the fuse and the bag exploded in his hand.

The incident occurred in the basement of Tureck's home.

Killed In His Car

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—Alvin Trusty, 80, of St. Louis was killed when his car struck a steel girder on the MacArthur bridge across the Mississippi River from St. Louis Saturday.

Minuteman Turnover Set Tuesday

A complex of 150 operational Minuteman ICBM's, a major component of America's military might, will be turned over to the 351st Strategic Missile Wing at Whiteman Air Force Base on Tuesday.

Second Lt. Gilbert P. Knier, information staff officer at the base, said the missile wing will accept the 150 Minutemen from the Site Activation Task Force and the Boeing Company, prime contractor, in ceremonies to be held at Whiteman.

Representing the Boeing Co. from Seattle, Wash., will be Tex Boullioun, Aero - Space Division Missile Branch Manager and George Nible, Minuteman Operations Manager. R. M. Severide, Minuteman Wing IV Base Manager, Whiteman, will also represent Boeing.

Knier said a press conference at 10 a.m. will precede the turnover ceremony and a luncheon. Scheduled for appearance is Gov. John M. Dalton along with other state and military officials.

Final turnover of the vast defense complex culminates three years of preliminary work, construction and checkout of the 16,000 - square - mile project spread over 14 counties in west central Missouri with headquarters at nearby Whiteman Air Force Base.

Activities came to a high pitch here Jan. 16 this year when Boeing dropped the first Minuteman into its hole at a site north of Sedalia near Marshall. Loading of 149 other silos followed and all missiles in the complex are now believed to be in their silo and checked out green.

Hearnes to Pettis County Next Week

Warren E. Hearnes, Secretary of State, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor includes Pettis County in his schedule for the week of July 6 - 12, an announcement was made by his campaign chairman, Delton L. Houtchens.

Hearnes week will include visits to nine counties, starting in Pettis, then Callaway County the night of July 6; then to St. Louis, Adair, Macon, Jefferson, Lincoln, Adrain, and Franklin counties, a wide swath through populace Central Missouri.

The visit to Pettis County includes many visits according to W. C. Askew and D. Kelly Scruton, co-chairmen of the Hearnes for Governor Committee. It is anticipated visits to Houstonia, Hughesville, LaMonte, Smithton, Green Ridge will be crowded in the day tour, closing with visits in Sedalia at the courthouse, and business establishments.

Symington Tells Warrensburg Group

Missiles 'Saved' Whiteman

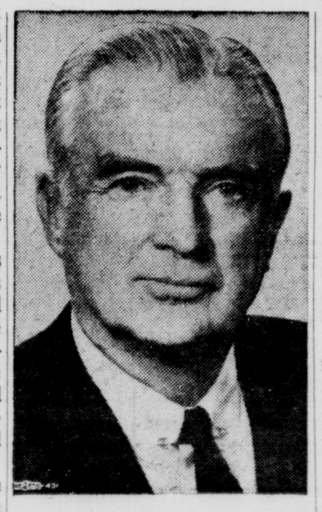
"If all of us continue to work together, the future of Whiteman Air Force Base will be as bright as its location in this area has been rewarding," Senator Stuart Symington (D - Mo.) said last night as he spoke at a rally sponsored by the Johnson County Young Democrats at the Student Union of Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg.

"Because the people of this area and their representatives recognized the great potential strategic value contained in the solid fuel intercontinental ballistic missile, this great Air Force center remains a permanent and thriving part of Missouri," Symington said in his prepared remarks.

"Had we strived to maintain Whiteman as an intermediate bomber set-up, the base would be closed today.

Stability Seen

"Instead, it is here, and we can be fairly certain it will be here for many years to come—for as long as the life of any system of our national defense can be predicted; because the Minuteman missile is now one of the three basic cores of the nation's strategic defense.



Sen. Symington

"Nor is Whiteman's future adversely affected by improvements already under way on the original version of Minuteman, with which the Whiteman complex is now equipped.

"In hearings before the Senate earlier this year, the Secretary of Defense gave assurance that "Minuteman I and Minuteman II squadrons will be integrated . . . both by retrofitting a large number of the Minuttman I silos in the first five wings with the Minuteman II, and by co-locating additional Minuteman II's within those five wings."

Hiked Strength

"On April 16 of this year, the Air Force announced that it would increase Whiteman personnel this summer by 400 over any previous estimates of missile base strength.

"Service and civilian personnel, therefore, will total some 3,700 by the end of this summer; and by mid-1967 present schedules assure that the strength of the base will be comparable to what we had when the full B-47 wing was stationed at Whiteman."

"The Air Force Minuteman system already has some 600 missiles installed. A year from now this figure will rise to 800.

"Recently a background letter of information on Whiteman stated the Whiteman missile complex includes 150 silo launchers and 15 launch control centers, spread over a 6,000-square-mile area. The silos range as far as 110 miles away from the base itself.

$22 Million Operation

"The estimated cost of operation and maintenance for the fiscal year 1965 totals $22,207,000 — of which $13,328,000 is for Whiteman Base proper, and $8,879,000 for installations of the Minuteman complex."

The Senator also recalled:

"There are some in this audience who remember an evening eighteen years ago when, as Assistant Secretary of War for Air — before there was a separate Air Force — I pledged, especially because of the wonderfully cooperative attitude of the citizens of the area, that if the United States faced up to its defense requirements, this great base — closed at that time — would be reopened in the interest of the security of our nation and the prosperity of our state.

"This was done, first with the B-47, now with the Minuteman; and as mentioned, if all of us continue to work together, I am sure that the future of Whiteman Air Force Base is as bright

French "Dixie"

One of the most plausible explanations of how the South came to be called "Dixie" is that before the Civil War a bank in New Orleans printed $10 bills using the French word for "ten," which is "dix."

'Nazi' Plants Look to East For Income

SALZGITTER, Germany (AP) —Huge factories that Hermann Goering built to arm the Nazi push to the east now are looking for orders from the Soviets to make them profitable again.

Salzgitter and its vast industrial complex lie on the great Mittelland Canal, which flows into Red-ruled East Germany less than 50 miles away.

"If we would ship freely to the East," says Paul Rheinlander, who runs Salzgitter's steel division, "there's no place more advantageous to ship from."

West Germany, despite its anti-Communist stand, does more business with the Soviet bloc than any other Western country and is working to develop still more trade. The Communists need steel and steel products but they have little to ship in exchange.

Doing more business with the Communists could help turn the Salzgitter industrial concern into a paying proposition. One of the largest businesses in Europe, it had a turnover of $846 million last year. But since 1962 it has paid no dividends to its only stockholder — the Federal Republic of West Germany.

This is a legacy from the Nazis. The Salzgitter works were started in 1937 to make Germany independent of foreign suppliers of steel. There were big ore reserves — 2.5 million tons—but they were not rich and they had a high acid content that made them impractical to work until a new process was developed in the early 1930s. This was done by H. A. Brassert, an American steel works engineer. He planned both Salzgitter and a similar plant at Corby, England.

Since the war, declining steel prices have hit Salzgitter hard. Some experts began saying that the mining operation ought to be closed down. The West German government, reluctant to depopulate the border area, decided against it. The unprofitable mining operation is being de-emphasized, and more money is being put into other branches.

Lugwig Erhard, the West German chancellor, is strong for private enterprise and doesn't fancy government ownership of industry. But there isn't much he can do about Salzgitter. A firm that pays no dividends would not find many eager buyers for a stock issue, the way the prosperous Volkswagen works did.

Warns Extreme Voices Could Be Dominating

ST. LOUIS (AP)—An editor of a protestant journal warned Thursday that extremist forces could become the dominant voice in the country unless religious leaders close the "opinion gap" between them and their followers.

Dr. Martin Marty said religious leaders were rudely awakened to learn many of their followers disagreed with strong stands taken on civil rights and positions against restoration of prayer and Bible reading in public schools.

Dr. Marty, associate editor of the Christian Century spoke before the National Community Relations Advisory Council comprised of representatives of Jewish national and local civic and religious agencies.

Religious forces must step up their grass roots campaign of "illumination, discussion and education" on social issues concerning faith, he warned.

If the "prophets and peacemakers lose their position," he said, extremists elements "will be the priests of the new competitive culture religious" which shall replace our historic faiths.

WORLD WAR II DAYS—MSgt. Tony J. Swicer, CDS, points to the 44th Infantry Division insignia from the days of World War II. The patch is one of some 2,000 articles which Sergeant Swicer has accumulated from the Army and Air Force since 1943. Included in his collection are 43 different foreign countries' emblems and flags. Sergeant Swicer served with the 44th Infantry Division during the war.

Fast-Paced Ladder Climb By Favreau

OTTAWA (AP)—Guy Favreau is minister of justice, the Canadian counterpart of U.S. Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Favreau also is government leader in the Canadian House of Commons, a job something like the one Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield holds.

And Favreau heads the federal wing of Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson's Liberal party in Quebec, the French-speaking province with 75 seats in the 265-seat House of Commons.

There is no American equivalent for Favreau's third job.

There is probably no American equivalent for Favreau, either.

Only a year ago the burly, 46-year-old Montreal lawyer was a political unknown. Today he is a top contender for the Liberal party leadership and the prime minister's office when Pearson retires.

He is riding perhaps the most meteoric political career in Canadian history.

He entered politics for the first time last year and was elected to the House of Commons.

Within a year he was given all three key posts, moving ahead of more experienced French-Canadian Cabinet ministers to become Pearson's top French-speaking political lieutenant. He may eventually give up the House leadership to concentrate on the other two jobs.

The Liberal party has traditionally rotated its leadership between French and English Canadians. When Pearson steps down, if the traditional pattern holds true, Favreau, as the senior French-Canadian in the Cabinet, should succeed him.

Observers here and in Quebec City speculate that Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec, once thought of as Pearson's likely heir, has ruled out his chances for national office. Quebec has been pressing the federal government for more political and economic independence and Lesage has led the fight for the French-speaking province.

Base Sergeant Shows 2,000 Emblem Clique

Did you, as a small child, ever get a big kick out of pinning military patches on a home-made uniform to show off to your friends and relatives?

It might seem like something of a childish nature to collect such items, but it certainly is not. MSgt. Tony J. Swicer, 351st Combat Defense Sq., can attest to that fact.

Sergeant Swicer has a collection of military emblems and patches which is the envy of many collectors around the world. He has over 2,000 articles in his collection in his home at 846 Chennault Ln, Whiteman AFB.

This unbelievable collection consists of pins, rank insignia, shoulder insignias, squadron emblems, wing emblems, crests, badges and flags of various sorts. They range in period from the days of World War II to the present day.

Sergeant Swicer began his patch collection on Mar. 1, 1943, the day he entered service, and has continued the hobby since that time.

His son, Tony Swicer, Jr., has also taken after his father in beginning his own emblem collection. Tony, Jr.'s collection is presently made up of some 800 items.

Together, the father-son team plan to begin a Whiteman Air Force Base Insignia Club. This would be a trading club with dependent children and anyone else who would be interested in becoming a member. Interested personnel are asked to contact Sergeant Swicer at ext. 3513 or 3584.

Col. Carroll Is Named To Division Post

Colonel John W. Carroll, base commander at Westover AFB, Mass., since August, 1962, has been named director of operations for the 17th Strategic Missile Division at Whiteman AFB, according to an announcement by Lt. Gen. Joseph J. Nazzaro, Eighth , Air Force commander, this week.

Colonel Carroll will replace Col. Lowell B. Fisher in the operations director post. This reassignment will be effective on Aug. 15.

A native of Fredericktown, Pa., Colonel Carroll was graduated from Waynesburg College, Waynesburg, Pa., with a bachelor of science degree in natural science.

He began his military career July 14, 1941, when he attended flying schools at Muskogee, Okla., and at Randolph Air Field, Tex. He was commissioned a second lieutenant upon graduation from flying school on Feb. 20, 1942.

He later served in England with the 401st Bomb Squadron, 91st Bomb Group (Eighth Air Force) as a B-17 aircraft commander and flew 25 combat missions. While serving with a B-29 unit as commander of the 871st Bomb Squadron (497th Bomb Group, Twentieth Air Force) at Saipan, he flew another 24 combat missions there.

During 1946 and 1947 he served with the 307th Bomb Group, MacDill AFB, Fla., as a squadron commander. In February 1948, he was assigned as chief of the ground and technical training branch, SAC Headquarters, Andrews AFB, Md. He continued in that assignment when SAC was moved to Offutt AFB, Neb., Nov. 1, 1948.

He returned to MacDill in 1950 to command the 307th Air Base Group. In 1951 he commanded the 364th Bomb Squadron, 305th Bomb Wing at MacDill. From June to December 1951 he served in Korea with the 307th Bomb Wing, during which time he commanded the 372d Bomb Squadron and flew 26 combat missions in B-29s.

Upon returning to the United States he was assigned to the 2d Bomb Wing at Hunter AFB, Ga., as wing director of operations. He held the same position when transferred to the 376th Bomb Wing at Barksdale AFB, La., in 1953, In June 1954 he was named deputy commander of the 301st Bomb Wing at Barksdale.

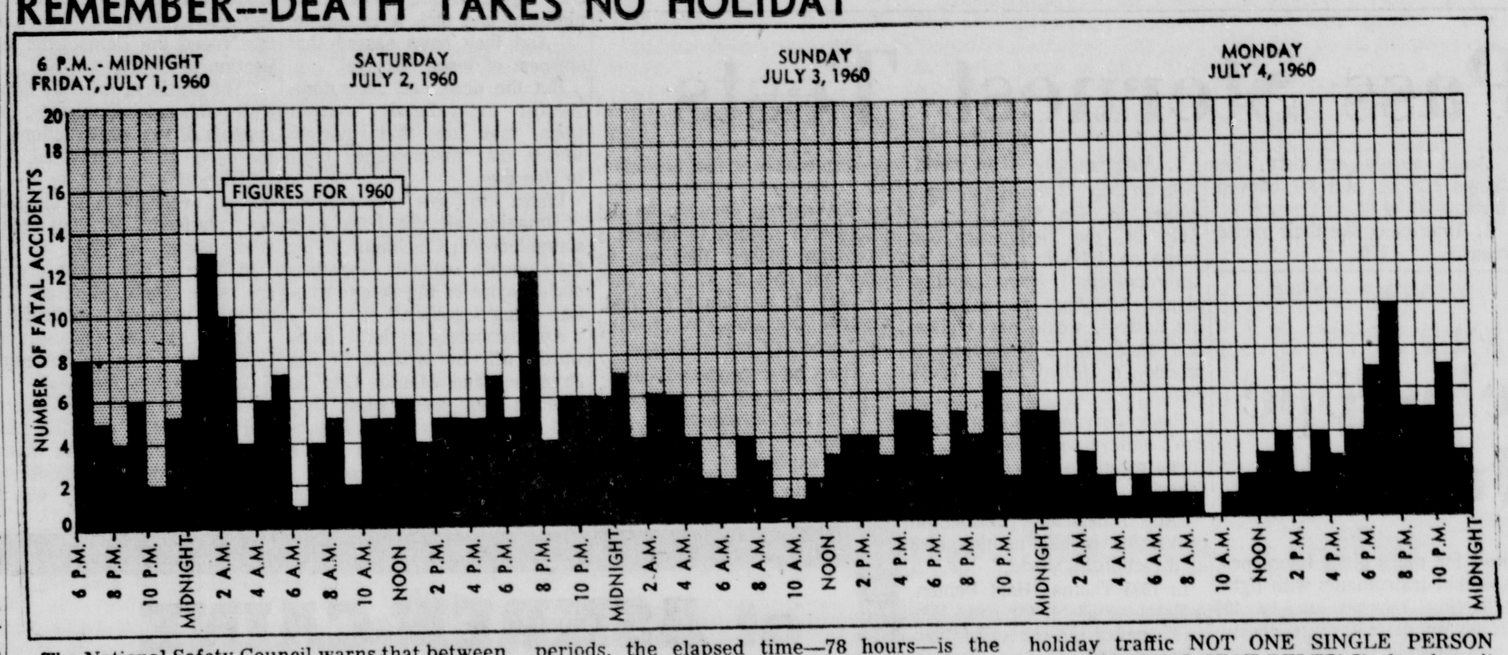
He became director of operations for the 4th Air Division, Barksdale, in 1955.

Colonel Carroll attended the Air War College at Maxwell AFB, Ala., in 1956 - 57. After graduation he was assigned to the Weapons Systems Evaluation Group, Department of Defense, Washington, D. C., where he served until his assignment to Upper Heyford, England June 30, 1960. He commanded the 3918th Combat Support Group at Upper Heyford until July 1961 when he was named 7th Air Division deputy commander at High Wycombe Air Station, England.

He has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross with four Oak Leaf Clusters, the Air Medal with seven Oak Leaf Clusters, Purple Heart, Air Force Commendation Medal, Presidential Citation with two Oak Leaf Clusters and the Korean Presidential Citation.

He became a command pilot 4,000 flying hours. Colonel Carroll and his wife, Eleanor, have four children: Cathy, John, James and Susan.

REMEMBER--DEATH TAKES NO HOLIDAY



The National Safety Council warns that between 450 and 550 persons could die in traffic over the three-day Fourth of July holiday weekend unless the extra holiday danger is met with extra holiday care. ● The Council has made a detailed breakdown of the accidents that caused a traffic death toll of 442 in the 1960 Fourth of July holiday weekend. The grim hour-by-hour story of slaughter on the highway is shown in the chart above. While the days of the week differ between the 1964 and 1960 Fourth of July holiday periods, the elapsed time—78 hours—is the same. All holiday counts begin at 6 p.m. on the day preceding the holiday under the NSC statistical formulae. ● The most dangerous single hour of driving in the 1960 holiday period? Between 1 and 2 a.m. the first full day of the holiday. Second most dangerous hour was 7 to 8 p.m. that same day. ● By studying the chart you can determine what hours are safest and most dangerous. But the chart doesn't show that of all those killed in the 1960 holiday traffic NOT ONE SINGLE PERSON WAS WEARING SEAT BELTS! It also doesn't show that most of the fatal accidents occurred in the home states of the victims—half within 10 miles of home. But it does show that fatal accidents occurred most frequently during evening hours, leaving on a trip and returning home. ● This Fourth of July the National Safety Council suggests you wear seat belts, obey traffic laws, don't drink if you drive and take it easy. It's cheap life insurance.

New Madrid Sheriff Leads Life Crossed by Violence

By JERRY CURRY
Associated Press Writer

NEW MADRID, Mo. (AP) — W. L. (Cowboy) Ramsey saw plenty of action as a First Cavalry trooper in World War II. He's seen almost as much in two terms as New Madrid County sheriff.

"Two of my chief deputies have been killed in the line of duty," said the husky 40-year-old Ramsey. "I once got shot up pretty bad myself. Sometimes this sheriff business gets pretty rough."

He frequently works an 18-hour day.

"The work often is routine and boring—like serving a summons, collecting taxes and catching chicken thieves," he said. "But there are other times when things get real nasty."

Such a time came Sept. 12, when Ramsey and his chief deputy, Cletus Phillips, 35, drove to a sharecropper's house south of this Mississippi River town of 2,900. They were investigating a series of burglaries.

"When we got to the house of this man, Dennis Gray, I sent Cletus around to guard the back door. I stood in front and shouted for Gray to come out. Suddenly I heard a shot. When I ran around back Cletus was dead.

"Then Gray pointed his shotgun at me and fired. I was hit in the face, neck and shoulder. I fired back until my gun was empty, but I missed because the blood had blocked my vision. Then I passed out."

Ramsey said the 30-year-old Gray loaded him and his dead deputy onto the back of a pickup truck, drove them to the river and fled with their weapons. Ramsey regained consciousness and drove until he saw two men, who took him to a hospital.

Three days later, other lawmen captured Gray without a fight. Gray is serving a 60-year sentence for killing Deputy Phillips.

"The thing I hate most about my job is picking up the mentally ill for delivery to the state hospitals," Ramsey said. "Some of these people have attacked me with butcher knives and anything they could grab. That's how my second chief deputy was killed."

After Phillips' death, William Myers took over as chief deputy. Myers and Deputy Flip Fillhopper met a mentally disturbed man at his home.

"The fellow was big and strong," said Fillhopper, now chief deputy. "He said he wasn't coming with us. We started wrestling with him and he got Myers' gun and shot him. Then he killed himself."

Myers died of the gunshot wounds three weeks later.

"Although the mortality rate is high on New Madrid County chief deputies, Fillhopper isn't worried.

"It's just part of a job we have to do," he said. "We all picked our line of work."

Ramsey and Fillhoper walked through the New Madrid County jail.

"I know most of these people by their first names," Ramsey said.

One prisoner was a 14-year-old boy charged with chicken theft. He was being held for juvenile authorities.

Seven other prisoners faced various charges. One was held for raping a 10 - year - old girl. Another was charged with the murder of a New Madrid tavern keeper. A third was a fugitive from Oklahoma on a non-support charge. The others were charged with crimes ranging from theft to assault.

"I know most of the people in New Madrid County," Sheriff Ramsey said. "Most of them are friends. Sometimes when I arrest a friend, he stops being friendly. Others don't change at all."

Mah-Jongg

Mah-Jongg, western version of an Oriental game, is played with 144 tiles engraved with Chinese characters. Object of play, similar to rummy card games, is to obtain a full set of tiles, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Pugilist Joe Louis engaged in 71 ring contests, exclusive of exhibition bouts during World War II.

In Ranks With Area Servicemen

Among the U. S. Air Force personnel now on duty in Viet Nam assisting in the fight against communist aggression is Master Sergeant Raymond A. Carpenter of Green Acre Trailer Court, Knob Noster.

Sergeant Carpenter is an air police supervisor in a Pacific Air Forces (PACAF) unit that is responsible for helping train Vietnamese forces in air tactics and techniques for combat.

PACAF provides airpower for defense of the U. S. and its allies in the Pacific and Far East areas.

His wife is the former Florence I. Cooper.

Sgt. Russell L. Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ace Lawson, 521 East Twenty-sixth St., Sedalia, completed a six-week tracked vehicle maintenance course at the U. S. Army School, Europe, in Murnau, Germany, on June 19.

During the course Sergeant Lawson received instruction in power plant removal and separation, disassembly and reassembly of the engine and its components and all phases of the transmission.

The sergeant, assigned to Co. A of the 122d Maintenance Battalion near Hanau, Germany, entered the Army in May 1952.

Conventions Pass Sternest Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—If this argumentative nation can agree on anything, it's probably that national political conventions are pure bunk.

Some of the adjectives attached thereto have included: witless, horrible, degrading, incredible, dreadful, nonsensical and charming.

Amid steady criticism, two things can be said for conventions:

1. Americans like their excitement.

2, Astonishingly, they work.

So on July 13 the Republicans gather in San Francisco; on Aug. 24, the Democrats converge on Atlantic City, and an anthropologist from another planet, studying the antics of the natives, would never guess this madness is expected to produce a United States president.

Even observers on this planet can't believe what they see.

The English political scientist, Harold J. Laski, wrote:

"An American presidential convention is like nothing else in the civilized world."

In 1895 Thomas Hart Benton, a flamboyant senator from Missouri, called the convention system one of the two greatest trials taxing this nation's capacity for self-govement. The other was slavery.

Skipping lightly down 105 years, let's turn to George Gallup, an opinion sampler whose own opinions are strong on the need for picking candidates by some new method.

"Party conventions resemble tribal rituals," Gallup has said. "Almost everything about them is phony. The spectacular campaigns and 'give 'em hell' speeches reduce office seeking to the intellectual level of professional wrestling."

Between Benton and Gallup hundreds of critics have had their say — and the convention system seems as entrenched as ever.

Why?

Like most political questions, no simple answer can be found, but:

—Conventions do whip up the enthusiasm needed to launch a campaign; indeed, they are an important part of it.

—They do provide a method, however macabre, for finding the necessary compromises.

—They have produced candidates who, if not all one could wish for, are incomparably better than the country has any right to expect.

—They do come up with an answer quickly. Imagine the U.S. Senate trying to devise a platform and pick a candidate.

--And they have passed that sternest of tests: survival.

But the deed had been done. Almost immediately conventions took on that glorious idiocy that distinguishes them to this day.

Listen to this description: "Imagine all the hogs ever slaughtered in Cincinnati giving their death squeals together, and a score of big steam whistles going together."

Approximately the same words will be written in San Francisco and Atlantic City, as true as they were when they told of a new party, the Republicans, whooping it up for a newcomer, Abraham Lincoln.

Murat Halstead, a bright 30-year-old Cincinnati reporter, attended all the 1860 conventions. Here he explains the difficulties that faced the Democratic convention in Charleston, S.C.:

"The platform must be drawn with elaborate ambiguity, and capable of two constructions, or the party must be divided."

"Elaborate ambiguity" — a perfect description of the modern platform on any really sticky issue.

In 1860, as now, some preachers were confused. Had they come to pray or to politick?

At the National Constitutional Union convention in Baltimore, Halstead wryly observed:

"When the noise subsided, we had a prayer, a very fair pious political speech. It was written out and read from manuscript. The difficulty with it was to whom it was addressed—to the Lord or to the convention. It was very eloquent and well delivered."

The bands, the demonstrations, the endless oratory, all are so old and routine that unscheduled absurdities stick in mind.

Who can forget that hilarious moment in 1956 when Terry Carpenter, a Republican delegate from Nebraska, nominated a mythical Joe Smith for vice president?

"Joe who?" asked the chairman, Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr., of Massachusetts.

"Joe Smith," said Terry Carpenter.

In the ensuing uproar Martin finally cried out in exasperation: "Take your Joe Smith and get out here!"

After 16 Years

World's Largest Telescope Boss Steps Down June 30

By RALPH DIGHTON
Associated Press Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The boss of the world's largest telescope steps down June 30, after 16 years which have seen astronomy make its greatest strides in modern times.

His successor already envisions new instruments up to twice the size of the almost magical looking glass which has proved the universe is vast beyong mortal dreams.

Dr. Ira S. Bowen, white-haired, slender and still whip-tongued at 65, is retiring as director of the Mt. Wilson and Palomar observatories — the sites, respectively, of 100-inch and 200-inch telescopes, each the largest when built.

His replacement is Dr. Horace W. Babcock, 51, a tall and taciturn scientist who resembles the late Gary Cooper and has as little use for words.

Bowen, onetime physics instructor at California Institute of Technology, has been director at Mt. Wilson since 1946. He became chief of both observatories when Palomar opened two years later.

Babcock, associate director the past year, has been on the observatory staff since 1946—bu; he had been climbing around Mt. Wilson's giant scopes since his astronomer father, Dr. Harold D. Babcock, first took him up that mile-high peak north of here at the age of 2.

Like most astronomers, Bower and Babcock spend much of their lives gazing at stars while the rest of the world sleeps.

Bowen concedes that under his guidance Palomar's 200-inch "big eye" has looked deeper in to space than any other instrument, and intercepted light that left distant galaxies four to six billion years ago.

But he insists: "All the work was done by others—I was primarily an administrator."

Similarly modest, Babcock says firmly: "This is not the time to discuss anything I may have contributed. Any public attention should be directed to Dr. Bowen."

But the record stands in reports the 16-man staff makes annually to Caltech and the Carnegie Institution of Washington, which jointly operate the observatories.

In the years since World War II the eight telescopes of various sizes and uses on Mt. Wilson and Palomar Mountain in San Diego County has enabled astronomers to—

1. Rewrite textbooks about the cosmos. "We've learned it's so big we don't know how big it is," says Bowen. "We need new yardsticks to measure it."

2. Determine that as far out as we can see, the universe is about the same as it is near by —systems of large and small stars wheeling away from us at speeds increasing with distance until they approach the velocity of light itself.

3. Identify some of these giant systems as the sources of incredibly powerful signals picked up by dish-shaped antennas which "see" radio waves as the human eye sees light waves. These are the brightest and most distant objects yet discovered. Astronomers expect to find others even farther and brighter which may give some hint as to whether the universe is endless or curves back on itself in some unfathomable pattern.

4. Establish that there is a need for more giant telescopes, and that instruments with light-collecting mirrors up to 400 inches in diameter are technically possible to build.

"I am sure that significant contributions will be made both by land-based radio telescopes and optical telescopes in orbiting satellite observatories," says Babcock.

"I am also convinced there is a great need for many more land-based telescopes in the 100- to 200-inch range, and possibly up to 400 inches, especially in the Southern Hemisphere.

"Numerous surveys are being made by various groups around the world to look at the southern skies, which lie below the horizon for most of the large telescopes."

Roots of the giant cactus plants on U. S. western deserts lie close to the surface and spread out horizontally for many feet.

Circuit Court

A change of venue was granted in Circuit Court Friday at the request of Mary Rose Hockaday in a $25,000 damage suit. The case was transferred to Saline County.

The defendant in the suit is Robert B. Cain as administrator of the Roy E. Gerster estate, who was killed in the automobile accident from which the litigation stems.

William F. Brown represents the plaintiff.

Joseph G. Herbert filed petition for an annulment against Wanda Hammerly Herbert in Circuit Court Friday. Sam P. Harlan represents Herbert.

Carl M. Hansen filed petition for divorce in Circuit Court Friday against Alvin L. Hansen. The plaintiff is represented by James C. Durley.

Robert S. Gardner was released from his Circuit Court appointment as attorney for Clotelle Jo Ann Reid. The record reflects that Miss Reid can now obtain an attorney.

William Darrel Trimble, 22, entered a guilty plea and was sentenced to 30 days in the Pettis County Jail in Circuit Court Friday. The sentence was due to a no funds check which he issued. Prosecuting Attorney J. R. Fritz represented the state in the charge and the court appointed attorney Robert S. Gardner represented Trimble.

Frank Dean, 38, Des Moines, Iowa, was fined $100 and costs in Circuit Court Friday. Dean was convicted of carrying a concealed weapon.

The charge stemmed from an early morning apprehension by Trooper R. A. Joos, June 18. Joos had received a complaint that Dean had been driving in a careless manner from Lone Jack to near LaMonte. When stopped the trooper found a loaded .22 caliber pistol in Dean's pocket during a routine shake down.

Prosecuting Attorney J. R. Fritz represented the state.

Phobias Now Categorized For Nearly All Your Fears

NEW YORK (AP)—Are you tired of having the same old fears?

Wouldn't you like some fresh anxieties to fret over to make your life more interesting?

Well, be of good cheer. The possibilities are endless.

Medical dictionaries now list some 300 or more specific fears, and the list is growing. They all have wonderfully impressive-sounding names, and the chances are you have had some of these dreads all along and never knew it.

If you hate losing a golf match, your friends may merely put you down as a poor sport. But if you tell them you're suffering from rhapdophobia—which is the fear of being beaten—they're bound to feel more sympathetic.

Perhaps it embarrasses you if the boss catches you dozing in your swivel chair at the office. Put your ailment down as hypnophobia, the fear of falling asleep.

If you hate being alone, you have got monophobia: if you can't stand crowds, you're a victim of ochlophobia — and probably also apephobia, the fear of physical contact.

Old maids who can't stand men, dogs or marriage are triply afflicted with androphobia, cynophobia and gamophobia.

Women who are always cajoling their husbands into taking them out for the evening suffer from a complaint common among housewives — domatophobia, the fear of being shut up in a house.

That nursery rhyme character, Little Miss Muffet, who was frightened off her tuffet by a spider, acted from a deep-seated feeling of arachnephobia.

If you're looking for some really unusual fears, here are a few:

Dipsophobia—fear of liquor.

Chrematophobia — fear of money.

Chionophobia—fear of snow.

Aulophobia — fear of hearing flutes.

Taeniophobia — fear that you are harboring a tapeworm.

Linonophobia—fear of string.

Phronemophobia — fear of thinking.

Autophobia—fear of yourself.

Of course, if you can't make up your mind what to be afraid of—and the choices are practically endless—there is a package deal available.

You might decide to settle for pantophobia. That means the fear of everything.

Bruce Brown The Hero Of Surf Crowd

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bruce Brown, the man who produced "Slippery When Wet," "Barefoot Adventure" and "Waterlogged," presented the world premiere of his latest film "The Endless Summer" this week.

Haven't heard of Bruce Brown or any of those films? You must be an earthbound square, man. Any hotdogger (surfing bug) knows that Bruce Brown is to surfing what John Ford is to Westerns, what Michaelangelo was to ceiling painters.

"The Endless Summer" has sold out four nights this week at the Encore Theater where audiences of tanned, taffy-haired young people and a few elderly types have gasped and cheered at surfers skidding down Matterhorn-like waves on foam-and-fibre glass boards. It is the sixth annual film of Brown, who went around the world to shoot two young surfers in Senegal, Ghana and other places that had never seen a surfboard.

Brown, 26, and blond, has been riding the crest of the surfing craze that has become a religion for thousands of California teen-agers. Through surfing music and magazines, the fad has spread to other parts of the country.

Brown operates his one-man film industry from his office at Dana Point, 50 miles south, in the heart of the high-wave district. He is his own cameraman and cutter and narrates the action in 100-150 one-night stands per year.

He makes frequent trips to Australia, which is the second most enthusiastic surfing country. Others are France, South Africa, New Zealand and Peru. His films also are shown with a recorded narration, and each can gross as high as $200,000.

Officers Wives Elect Mrs. Donald C. Marsh

Mrs. Don C. Marsh has been elected president of Officers' Wives' Club at Whiteman Air Force Base.

On her staff will be: Mrs. Richard F. Jones and Mrs. Kenneth G. Haug, vice presidents; Mrs. George E. Malone and Marvin L. Schaffer, secretaries; Mrs. Stanley H. Pierce and Mrs. Kenneth I. Elliott, treasurers.

Tours of Inter-State Studio and Sedalia Bank and Trust were taken June 23 by Van Natta Multi-Workers 4-H Club after meeting in Green Ridge Park.

The group of 29 was shown through the black and white and color divisions of Inter-State Studio. Machines and their importance were explained.

At the bank, 4-H'ers were shown the safe, safety deposit boxes and machines, and operational methods were outlined.

The club will meet at 8 p.m July 27 in the Agriculture Building in Green Ridge.

4-H Members Present Tanglenook Program

Demonstrations by 4-H members were given for Tanglenook Neighbors Extension Club June 23 at the home of Mrs. Clarence Williams.

Patty Morris displayed a knitting bag she had made and told of her trip to Washington, D.C. Don Tatum demonstrated care and cleaning of a hoe. How to make a cake was demonstrated by Elizabeth Bronson.

Mrs. C. H. Williams, Jr., presented a safety lesson.

A relay system for members to call each other, in case of storm or fire, was explained.

By-laws were discussed.

Mrs. Roy Ream read a poem, "We Thank Thee," for the devotional.

Guests were Mrs. H. Mavis and daughter, Patty, Mrs. J. Bronson and daughter, Elizabeth Ann. Seven members were present.

Mrs. C. H. William, Jr., will be hostess in July.

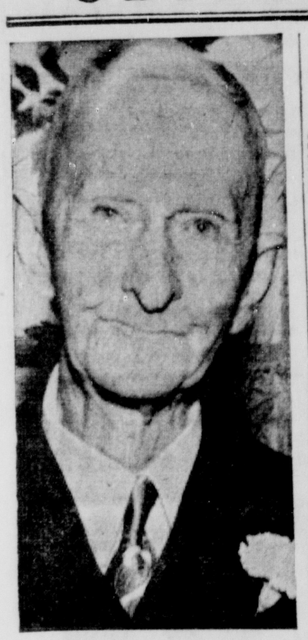
OBITUARIES



Michael J. Collins (Sedalia)

Michael Joseph Collins, 102, died Saturday morning at his home, 315 West Fifth.

Born at Smithton on Feb. 28, 1862, he was the son of Dennis and Mary Sullivan Collins, both of whom came from Ireland. At the age of 15 he went to work on the section for his father and when he was 18 his father made him a foreman. In 1884 the family moved to a farm near Spring Fork. He was married at Spring Fork St. Patrick's Church on March 6, 1889, to Julia Shea and they resided on a farm in the Spring Fork neighborhood until he retired from farming and moved to Sedalia in 1929. Mrs. Collins died in 1950.

Surviving are a daughter, Miss Margaret Collins and a son, Stephen Collins, both of the home; and another son, Frank Collins, Lathrup Village, Mich., seven grandchildren; 12 great-grandchildren; and a number of nieces and nephews and great nieces and nephews.

Preceding him in death were three sons, Emmet, William and Leo Collins.

Mr. Collins celebrated his 100th birthday Feb. 28, 1962, which began with Mass followed by dinner at noon which lasted the remainder of the day for relatives and friends numbering 500 who called at the home.

The body was taken to the McLaughlin Chapel and was returned to the family home Saturday afternoon.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Tuesday, with solemn requiem Mass by Rev. F. C. Laudick at Sacred Heart Church of which Mr. Collins was a member.

Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Friends will recite the Rosary at the family home, 315 West Fifth, at 8 p.m. Monday.

John E. Dahler (California)

John Edward Dahler, 87, California, died at 5:45 p.m. Saturday. Mr. Dahler had been a resident of California since 1907.

He was born in Canton, Ohio, July 7, 1876, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Dahler.

On Jan. 31, 1900, he was married to Miss Millie Roesch who preceded him in death. Also preceding him in death was one sister, Hazel.

Surviving are three sons, H. F. Dahler, California; James Dahler, California; and Raymond Dahler, Wichita, Kan.; one brother, Louis Dahler, Independence; and one sister, Mrs. William Anderson, 915 South Ohio.

He was a member of the United Church of Christ in California.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Monday at the Williams Funeral Home in California. The Rev. M. J. Kirchhoff, pastor of the United Church of Christ, will officiate.

Russell Magg will sing "Have Thine Own Way" and "Abide With Me" accompanied by Miss Ruth Longan, organist.

Burial will be in the Evangelical and Reformed Cemetery in California.

Kathleen S. Morris (Riverdale, Ill.)

Kathlene Sue Morris, 15, daughter of Elmer T. and Doris Morris, Riverdale, Ill., died Sunday, June 21. She was a granddaughter of Mrs. Susan Morris, 5100 East 11th, and Mrs. Ida McGrath, Chicago.

Surviving, also, are two brothers, William Hornung and Leigh Roy Hornung, both of Chicago, and one sister, Mrs. Jack Thomas, Kansas City.

Funeral services were held at 9 a.m. at the Hennessy-Hornburg Funeral Home in Chicago, with Mass at 9:30 a.m. at St. Mary's Church.

Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery in Chicago.

Emaleine Schulze (Florence)

Mrs. Emaleine Schulze, 71, Star Route, Florence, died at her home, Friday at 9:15 a.m. She had been in ill health for the past 17 years.

She was born at Krebs, Okla., Nov. 9, 1892, daughter of the late Frank W. and Stella Cartledge Sullivan.

One of a family of seven children, she was preceded in death by four brothers, Charles W. Sullivan, J. T. Sullivan, Harry H. Sullivan, Ed Sullivan and one sister, Miss Alice E. Sullivan.

She was married to J. T. Ward. They were the parents of one son.

She was later married at Liberty, April 9, 1928 to Fred J. Schulze. They lived at Lake Lotowana until they moved to Florence five years ago.

Mrs. Schulze is survived by her husband, Fred J. Schulze of the home; one son, John T. Ward, South Pasadena, Calif.; and one brother, Frank W. Sullivan, Kansas City.

● Accidents

The left front wheel of an eastbound truck came off at 7:30 a.m. Saturday morning about 1½ miles east of Sedalia on Highway 50 resulting in a collision between the truck and a westbound auto. Three persons were injured, but not seriously.

Highway Patrol Trooper William T. Southwick, who investigated the collision, reported Herbert L. Scholz, 54, Kansas City, Kan., was driving the 1948 Chevrolet two-ton truck when the vehicle lost the wheel and skidded 100 feet across the center-line into the westbound lane.

Mrs. William C. Gibson, 28, Route 2, was the driver of a westbound 1960 Valiant, which collided with the right rear dual wheels of the truck as it crossed into the westbound traffic lane.

Mrs. Gibson, her husband, William, and two of their children, Chery, 5, and Joseph Paul, 15 months, were taken to Bothwell Hospital in a Gillespie ambulance.

When first admitted to the hospital it was believed Mrs. Gibson sustained internal injuries, but X-rays indicated none. She was treated for a forehead laceration. Her husband and son, Joseph Paul, were treated for head bruises. Five-year-old Chery was apparently uninjured.

The Gibsons were released after treatment.

Mrs. Gibson skidded her car 63 feet before it struck the rear wheels of the truck crossing her path. The crash spun the Gibson auto around and both vehicles came to rest facing east in the driveway of the Harry Lutjen residence, Route 2, on the north side of east Highway 50.

Bacon wreckers towed the vehicles back to Sedalia. Trooper Southwick said the truck was demolished. The front of the Gibson car was extensively damaged.

The driver of a 1958 Dodge, Virginia C. Bennett, 65, 416 East Walnut, complained of injuries as the result of a two-car accident at 12:25 p.m. Friday at the intersection of Grand and Pettis. She reportedly did not seek treatment at Bothwell Hospital.

Also involved was a 1957 Ford, driven north on Grand by Opal L. Denham, 53, 703 North Prospect. The Bennett car was heading south on Grand and according to the accident report was negotiating a left turn.

Damaged was the front end of the Denham car and the right rear of the Bennett car.

Virginia Bennett received a police summons for careless and imprudent driving and is to appear in police court, June 29.

Police investigated a two-car accident in the 600 block of East Broadway at 8:28 p.m. Friday.

Involved were a 1962 Chevrolet, driven east on Broadway by William E. Rose, 36, Independence, and a 1956 Ford, driven west in Broaway and negotiating a left turn by Carl R. Tolliver, 17, Route 5.

Damaged were the front bumper, fender and the grille of the Rose car and the chrome on the right side and right rear fender of the Tolliver car.

Tolliver received a police summons for careless and imprudent driving and is to appear in police court, June 29.

Police investigated a collision between a parked car and a car being driven west on 16th in front of 320 West 16th at 11:45 p.m. Saturday.

A parked 1951 Plymouth owned by Rival Franklin Rhodes, 60, Hughesville, and a 1957 Ford driven west on 16th by Bobbie Dean McFatrich, 25, 1503 West Main, were involved.

Damaged were the right front of the McFatrich car and the left rear of the Rhodes.

In connection with this accident the Sedalia Fire Department was summoned to wash down the gasoline from one of the cars.

The intersection of Broadway and Kentucky was the scene of a two-car collision at 5:15 p.m. Saturday.

Involved were a southbound 1962 Chevrolet, driven by Angelina S. Roman, 39, Whiteman AFB, and a 1960 Dodge, southbound by Sara Gentges, 39, 901 South Missouri.

Damaged was the left rear door and fender of the Roman car and the front end of the Gentges car.

● Fires In City

The Sedalia Fire Department received a false alarm at 4:15 p.m. Friday to 221 East Johnson. Asst. Chief George Smithers investigated the call.

One wall and the attic of the Nathaniel Newbill residence, 405 East St. Louis, was damaged by fire at 7:37 a.m. Saturday.

Firemen used one booster line to douse the blaze and listed the probable cause as a cigarette. Damage was set at $200.

A fire of undetermined origin started in the garage of the W. E. Payne residence, 1017 East 10th, early Saturday morning and spread to the house causing $2,950 estimated damage before Sedalia firemen could extinguish the flames.

Payne awoke to find the garage well ablaze at 5:55 a.m.

Firemen laid one hose line to a hydrant in extinguishing the fire.

Damage was estimated at $2,400 to the house and at $450 to its contents.

Fire did approximately $35 damage to a lawn mower at 5:45 p.m. Saturday. The Sedalia Fire Department doused the burning lawn mower at the Paul Anthes residence, 1702 East 16th.

● Area Fires

Damages estimated at $2,000 resulted to a city-owned Caterpillar Saturday morning at the City Dump from a fire of undetermined origin. The Pettis County Fire Department answered the alarm and used one booster line to extinguish the blaze which was reported about 9:30 a.m. No one was injured.

● Police Reports

A blue 26-inch bicycle valued at $40 was reported stolen to police Friday by Connie Blankenship, 402 South Engineer. The bicycle was reportedly stolen Thursday.

Mrs. C. M. Stratton, 603 South New York, reported to police Friday that a heart shaped pin valued at $45 was stolen from her residence.

Barbara Moore, 1110 West Fourth, reported to police Friday that she had lost a pair of prescription sun glasses.

Two Sedalians reported to police Saturday morning that they had had their mail boxes damaged by fire works. Making the reports were Mrs. Higgins of near 28th and New York and Mrs. Sneathen, 1409 Cedar Drive. The incidents reportedly occurred sometime Friday night.

Sedalia police arrested Gary Eugene Williams, 17, 2401 Albert Lee, and Daniel J. Sylvester, 17, 803 East 13th, on charges of destruction of property by tearing mail boxes from their posts. Both were later freed on $25 cash bonds. They are to appear in police court June 29.

A bicycle valued at $30 was reported stolen to police Saturday by Ronnie Bozarth, 1818 East Sixth. The bicycle was black and white and was reportedly stolen sometime Thursday.

Mrs. M. K. Roseboom, 1220 Liberty Park Blvd., reported to police Saturday that her bone-colored purse containing $15-18 and important papers was stolen from a small table in her front room Friday evening.

Police found a bicycle abandoned earlyiSaturday morning in the alley behind Little Red Shoe Barn, 205 South Ohio. The bike was taken to police headquarters.

Ronnie Williams, 2020 East Sixth, reported the loss of a black leather billfold containing $1 in cash and his driver's license.

A 19-year-old Sedalia girl told police a man tried to force her into a stationwagon at Third and Missouri early Saturday morning and then struck her.

Barbara Bechtel, 520½ West Second, was taken to Bothwell Hospital by police where she was released after treatment by Dr. Karl Gonser. She sustained a cut under the right eye which required several stitches.

The incident occurred about 1:15 a.m. Police are investigating.

Police reported the glass in a telephone booth in the 2900 block of East 12th was broken. The vandalism was discovered about 3:15 a.m.

Nicklaus, Palmer Tied In Tourney

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jack Nicklaus shot a 69 Saturday to tie Arnold Palmer for the third round lead in the $100,000 Cleveland Open Golf Tournament with 54-hole scores of 202, 11 under par.

The two held a three-stroke edge over their nearest competitors.

Nicklaus and Palmer staged a see-saw battle as they played in the same threesome for the first time this year.

They halved the first six holes, Nicklaus getting a par with a 35-foot putt on the third hole and missing a two-footer on the fourth. He sank a two-foot birdie putt on the seventh to go only one behind. Both birdied the eighth, Palmer with a 20-foot putt and Nicklaus from 12 feet.

Palmer went two strokes ahead with a four-putt birdie putt on No. 12 and then disaster struck. He three-putted No. 13 from 40 feet for a bogey. After driving into the rough and hinting over the green on No. 14, he three-putted for a double bogey six and was one stroke behind the par-shooting Nicklaus.

They were even again at No. 15 when Nicklaus drove over the short green and failed to reach the putting surface in two strokes. They both birdied the long 16th and the two closing holes to wind up the 54 holes all square.

Deadlocked in third place with 205 totals were Billy Casper, Tony Lema, Gary Player, Don Fairfield and R. H. Sikes Jr., the 1961-62 National Public Links champion appearing in his first PGA tournament as a professional.

Tied at 206 were Don January, Terry Dill and George Bayer. Bracketed at 207 were Fred Marti, Rex Baxter Jr. and Al Geiberger, who led opening day with a 64.

Dan Sikes and Bruce Devlin, who had the day's best round of 67, were tied at 208 with Mason Rudolph, Miller Barber, Johnny Bulla and Ed Griffiths, the latter a former Ohio Open champion who does not play the tour.

The field was cut to the low 60 and ties after Saturday's round. The survivors go 18 holes Sunday, with the top 50 sharing in the big purse. The winner gets $20,000, second place $12,000 and third $7,500.

2 American Girls Win In Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) —Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, Calif., and Nancy Richey of Dallas, the two seeded American girls, won their way into the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon tennis tournament Saturday, while politics popped up again on the back courts.

Misses Moffitt and Richey were the only survivors of an American entry of 17 in the women's singles.

Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, the defending champion, is the sole U.S. survivor in the men's singles out of 25 who entered. He gained a quarter-finals berth Friday.

Miss Richey won her fourth round match with such dispatch that observers began talking of her chances to dethrone defender Margaret Smith of Australia. The Texas girl won over Judy Alvarez of Tampa, Fla., 6-2, 6-2.

Miss Moffitt, the runner-up last year, had a harder time with Jacqueline Rees-Lewis of France before she won 6-4, 6-4.

Miss Moffitt is seeded third, Miss Richey fifth.

Rafael Osuna of Mexico, the reigning U.S. singles champion, sparkled in the sunshine before the largest crowd of the tournament, 18,000, as he defeated Jose Arilla of Spain 6-4, 6-4, 10-12, 6-3 on the center court.

That put Osuna in the quarter-finals, along with McKinley; Christian Kuhnke and Wilhelm Bungert of Germany; Roy Emerson, Bob Hewitt and Fred Stolle of Australia, and Abe Segal of South Africa.

Segal is the South African left-hander—and McKinley's next opponent—who has caused two Communist block players to walk out already.

A Russian and a Hungarian have refused to play him—one in singles, the other in doubles—in protest against South Africa's racial policies.

The movement spread Saturday when Czecn players Jeri Javorsky and Vera Sukova pulled out rather than play Ray Weedon and Annette Van Zyl of South Africa in the mixed doubles.

Maria Bueno of Brazil continued her leisurely progress toward the women's crown she won in 1959 and 1960, as she defeated Trudy Groenman of the Netherlands 6-1, 6-1.

Miss Bueno has lost only seven games in three matches far.

Santa Claus Proves A Good Choice

CURRAGH, Ireland (AP)—Santa Claus, the 4-7 favorite, proved as good as his name Saturday as he surged to the front with three-sixteenths of a mile to go and won the third running of the Irish Sweepstakes Derby with the full-throated roar of 60,000 Irishmen ringing in his ears.

The bay son of Chamossaire-Aunt Clara stamped himself as the best 3-year-old thoroughbred in Europe with the addition of this victory to his English Derby triumph, scored earlier in the month at Epsom Downs.

The race carried the hopes of millions of people throughout the world — people who had bought Irish Sweepstakes tickets. A ticket on the winner was worth $140,000.

Just as he did in the English Derby, Santa Claus trailed far back during the early part of the 1½-mile race. Then he started moving through the field of 18 rivals. With three-sixteenths of a mile to go, jockey Willie Burke, an Irishman, shot the smooth-striding colt into the lead. Once on the front end it was nothing more than a canter to the finish line, and he finished four lengths in front of Lionhearted.

Sunseeker, owned by James Cox Brady of Hamilton Farms, N.J., was third after being beaten by Lionhearted in the photo for runner-up.

The victory carried first prize of $149,730 for Santa Claus' joint owners — 77-year-old Englishman John Ismay and the mother of the horse's Irish trainer, Mick Rogers. The purse boosted Santa Claus' total earnings to $376,423.

Oldest And Longest Air Race Classic Is Set For Saturday

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — At 9:20 a.m. next Saturday, a voice over a loudspeaker will say, "Man your aircraft."

More than a hundred women will dash across the runway for a try at the glory of winning the oldest and longest air race classic for women—the Powder Puff Derby.

The finish is 2,573 miles away, Atlantic City, N.J.

Sixty-one planes representing 19 states are entered in the 18 year old race, supervised by the All-woman Transcontinental Air Race.

The highest average speed determines the winner. Each plane has a handicap because of varying engine sizes and other technical differences.

All competitors will make nine scheduled stops—at Las Vegas, Nev.; Winslow, Ariz.; Albuquerque; Amarillo; Oklahoma City; Fayetteville, Ark.; Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Lexington, Ky., and Morgantown, W.Va.

Carr And Garrity To Vie For Title Honors

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Tom Carr of Springfield and Tom Garrity of Kansas City will play Sunday in the 36-hole finals of the Missouri Amateur Golf Tournament.

Carr, 42-year-old insurance man, overcame a balky putter to defeat Bob Cochran of St. Louis in a 22-hole semifinal marathon.

Garrity coasted past defending champion Jim Colbert of St. Joseph 5 and 4 in the other semifinal.

NEW BUSINESS FOR SEDALIA — The Wiley-Golf, Inc., now being manufactured at Wichita, Kan., has been incorporated in the State of Missouri. The corporation papers were issued to William F. Brown, attorney; George H. Miller of the Westside Realty Co., and Wiley Ash, who has the patents on the portable backyard golf course being manufactured by the firm. George Norris, Chanute, Kan., is handling the business transaction of the firm. The miniature course is of all steel construction with built-in hazards and traps, and is weather resistant and unbreakable. Each hole is a separate and different unit and can be set up in backyards or on patios in a minimum space of 15 by 18 feet. It is also arranged to be sold in units of one hole, five holes or a full nine-hole course. At present the main office and sales department will be located in Sedalia at the Westside Realty Co. building, 1024 South Limit. Norris pointed out present stockholders hope to bring the manufacturing of the novelty golf course to Sedalia. Other sports novelties are planned to be manufactured along with the course.

ARRL Field Day Trial

The Central Missouri Amateur Radio Club participated in the 1964 American Radio Relay League Field Day, an annual test for emergency-powered stations, held June 27-28.

Each year the ARRL Field Day test renews and demonstrates the individual and collective ability to set up radio communications in an emergency. Civil defense, as well as natural disaster, such as the recent one in Alaska, require all the communications equipment and facilities that can be devoloped.

The local club set up activities in a tent at the Catholic Community Center, south of Sedalia. Two transmitters were manned on a 24-hour basis. They were powered by portable generators.

At 8 p.m. Saturday, 27 stations in 16 states and Canada had been contacted, including states as far away as California and New Hampshire. A bigger generator was put into use, the transmission frequency was changed, and a second transmitter was put into service.

Points in the field day test were scored according to the number of stations contacted, power of the stations and other such bases.

According to the rules established by the American Radio Relay League, portable stations, mobile stations and home stations were eligible to participate. The rules state that all radio equipment must be independent of commercial power source.

The event is sponsored annually by the American Radio Relay League.

ARRL FIELD DAY — Shown are members of the Central Missouri Amateur Radio Club who participated in the American Radio Relay Field Day at the Catholic Community Center Saturday and Sunday. The test is a nation-wide event to test emergency broadcast facilities.

Two-Way Tie Results In Horseshoe Tourney

A two-way tie resulted in the weekly horseshoe contest at Liberty Park Thursday night. Sam Harlan and Bud Larson tied, winning eight games and losing one. The win was given to Harlan, however, because he had more points in his losing contest than Larson.

Third in the contest was Logan Wulff. Others participating were V. Abney, fourth; Everett Stumpf, fifth; Al Kroenke, sixth; C. Williams, seventh; Eugene Carr, eighth; Lawrence Popp, ninth; and Lawrence Eckhoff, tenth.

The public is cordially invited to come and participate in the weekly horseshoe tournaments which are held Thursday night on the new courts, adjacent to the swimming pool at Liberty Park.

Alston Names All Second Team Choices

CINCINNATI (AP) — Manager Walt Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers followed custom Saturday and named all of the second choices in player balloting to help fill out the National League roster for the annual All Star baseball game.

In addition to the second choices, Alston picked catcher Smoky Burgess of Pittsburgh and outfielder Johnny Callison of Philadelphia.

The pitchers for both the National and American League teams will be announced next Thursday.

Those who finished second in the player balloting and who were named by Alston to the All Star squad include:

Catcher Johnny Edwards of Cincinnati, first baseman Bill White of St. Louis, second baseman Bill Mazeroski of Pittsburgh, third baseman Ron Santo of Chicago, shortstop Leo Cardenas of Cincinnati, left fielder Willie Stargell of Pittsburgh, center fielder Curt Flood of St. Louis and right fielder Hank Aaron of Milwaukee.

The starters in the game were selected by vote of the players and each must play at least the first three innings unless injured or ill.

They are catcher Joe Torre of Milwaukee, first baseman Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco, second baseman Ron Hunt of New York, third baseman Ken Boyer of St. Louis, shortstop Dick Groat of St. Louis, left fielder Billy Williams of Chicago, center fielder Willie Mays of San Francisco and right fielder Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh.

This year's All-Star game will be played July 7 in the New York Mets' new Shea Stadium.

Comets Whip Rockets In Girls' Softball

In a close five-inning contest, the Rockets fell to the Comets, 3-5, in the petite league of the girls' Khoury softball league. Two homeruns were hit in the contest, one for each team.

The Rockets' homer came in the third inning by Anna Williams with two on. Alma Green got a four-base hit for the Comets with two on also in the third inning.

Carol Knight absorbed the loss for the Rockets. The winning pitcher for the Comets was Alana Green.

Rex Allen

Rex Allen, America's handsome singing cowboy, who will be the star of the J Bar H Rodeo, Camdenton, July 1 thru 4, needs no introduction to millions of record fans throughout the world—fans whose hearts have been captured by songs from the heart, sung in the inimitable Rex Allen style. Nor does Rex Allen need an introduction to millions of moviegoers or thousands of city and country folks who cheer him when he enters an arena astride his famous horse, Koko, Jr. In 1962, the cowboy with the wonderful voice once again soared to the top of the nation's hit charts when he strummed his guitar and sang his now famous Mercury platter, "Don't Go Near The Indians," and album, "Rex Allen Sings."

Rex will be assisted in his act at Camdenton by "The Country Gentlemen," four stars in their own right; Hugh Farr, violin, vocals, 32 years with the "Sons of the Pioneers"; Jimmy Widener, rhythm guitar, seven years with Bob Wills, eight years with Tex Williams, eight years with NBC-TV, Hollywood; Pat Patterson, bass, vocals, three years with Red Foley, Ozark Jubilee NBC-TV; Kenny Baker, electric guitar, vibes, banjo, three years with Tex Williams, two years with Lawrence Welk.

Sports Scraps

(By D. KELLY SCRUTON)

COMPARING notes this past week, I learned the Little Leaguers, at least most of them, are getting soda pop regardless of whether they win or lose. Kenny Melton, Little League president, informed me that the practice of getting the boys cold pop is true, but that many of the losing teams also get pop—so there is no favoritism being shown the boys, win or lose.

He pointed out some of the managers do furnish the money for the pop, while on the other hand a goodly number of parents set the boys up after a game, and then there are some sponsors who pick up the "tab" for the pop given boys playing on their team.

It is strictly unintentional if the boys do not get a soda, but the report they are being "bribed" to go out to win is false.

However, during a conversation with a person I would say is a comparatively new manager last Sunday, I learned he got his surprise when his Little Leaguers walked up to the stand and they ordered their pop. The next thing he knew he was told by one of the fine mothers of the L. L. Auxiliary he owed her $1.10. It surprised him, but he didn't complain and he doesn't think it will break him up. Gosh the kids played like mad—they didn't win either — but they were entitled to a cold drink. The only thing he wished was they had said something to him first.

Anyway that little matter is now straightened up — I hope.

COVERAGE of the many sports activities being held during the summer months has become a problem. There are just too many activities for the sports department to cover due to a shortage of reporters, but we are just as anxious to get the items as the boys and girls are to see their names in print.

If the various Leagues and organizations will get the information to us we will be happy to give the space for them in the paper. Little League, in particular, in past years has had an official handling the reports on the various games in all the parks. If they will get a member or members of the group to get it to us, we'll be happy to handle it here.

If the information can be turned in the night the games are played or before 8:15 in the morning we can get it in the evening paper and the morning paper the following day.

Your cooperation will be greatly appreciated: Little League, Babe Ruth League, Industrial League, Girl's softball league and others.

THERE is also pleasure besides business at some of these district meetings as Johnie Breese, Cedar Falls, Iowa, can testify. Breese got in some golf at the Sedalia Country Club as guest of Harold Anderson, but was playing in a foursome composed of Russell Reed, and Harold Henning, both of Omaha, Neb., and Ned Finn, Oklahoma City, Okla., when he collected a "hole-in-one" on Number Seven, Little Dinky.

Anderson was host to a district sales meeting of State Agents of the Grain Dealers Mutual Insurance Co., for two days. The meeting was held at Anderson's summer home, just south of the Covered Bridge, and he arranged for the golf for the visitors at the Country Club Thursday.

There were eight representatives of the company including the foursome, attending the meeting, coming from Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri. Anderson is GDM agent for Western Missouri.

SEDALIA golfers who entered the Missouri State Amateur played at Indian Hills, Kansas City, this past week didn't fair so well, although Dr. C. W. Kateman did get past the first round. However, it gave Sedalia some recognition as one of the many Missouri Country Clubs participating in the annual tournament.

The other three Sedalians from the Sedalia C. C. who took part were Gordon Childers, Jim Buchanan and Damon Hieronymus, the latter the golfing dean of the Country Club who has entered ever so many tournaments.

Hieronymus, although he hasn't won any championships, has often remarked, "We get Sedalia's name on the listings, but I love to participate for the 'kicks' I get out of playing in the State tournament." Damon has been on the State Board for several years.

Dr. Kateman had a 39-40 on his first round to qualify for the Wednesday play, and fell below the cut-off line with an 82 for a total 161. He had a 39-40 for 79 his first day.

Buchanan on the first round had a 43-39—82; Heironymus had 41-42 for 83 and Childers 51-40 for a 91, all falling below the "cut-off" line.

But they reported a "lot of fun" anyway.

Dandy K. Upsets Roman Brother In Stretch Push

CHICAGO (AP)—Dandy K., a 4-1 shot, upset heavily favored Roman Brother in a stretch drive Saturday to win the $115,000 Chicagoan by about 2½ lengths over the Harbor View Farm's ace at Arlington Park.

Dandy K., a 3-year-old chestnut colt owned and bred in Kentucky by Cecil Carmine of Lexington, came from out of the pack as Roman Brother captured the lead in the turn for home.

Under urging by jockey Don Brumfield, Dandy K. raced neck and neck with the 4-5 favorite before gradually opening up a gap which was expanded at the wire.

Cap Size was third in the field of 11 and National finished fourth.

Alvis Shows Improvement In Illness

BOSTON (AP) — Max Alvis, Cleveland Indians' third baseman, showed improvement Saturday after being stricken with spinal meningitis.

Dr. Thomas Tierney, team physician for the Boston Red Sox, said Alvis had a comfortable night and was improved.

He said Alvis was more comfortable Saturday, with much less pain. The disease is marked by headaches and painful stiffening of the neck.

Alvis became ill Friday.

He will be hospitalized probably for three weeks, but Dr. Tierney said it is difficult to say when he will be fully recovered.

Alvis' teammates and others who traveled with them to Boston were given sulfa pills as a precaution.

Meanwhile, the Cleveland Indians called Chico Salmon up from their Portland farm club Saturday to replace Alvis.

Ban Johnson Team Loses To Merchants

The Sedalia Merchants defeated the Ban Johnson team 2-1 Friday evening. A pitcher's duel between Jim Johnson pitching for the Ban Johnson team and Larry Bowes pitching for the Merchants together with fine defense on the part of both teams made for an exciting game.

Don Crank and Paul Horner led the hitting for the Ban Johnson team with two hits each. Bill Dey with three hits and Nick Nichols with two hits led the victorious Merchants in hitting power. Bones Morgan gave run in the bottom of the eighth.

Pitching for the Ban Johnson team was led by Jim Johnson for five innings. He allowed five hits, one run, striking out three and walked two. Jim Schanberg pitched for two innings allowing no hits, no runs, striking out three and walking one. Terry Fletcher pitched one inning and allowed two hits, striking out one and walking one, thus receiving the loss.

Larry Bowes started the game for the Merchants and went six and two-thirds innings allowing eight hits, one run, striking out six, walking four, and hitting one batter. Bob Brown relieved him and threw the remaining two and one third innings allowing one hit, no runs, striking out two, and walking one, thus receiving the win.

The merchants will play Warsaw Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m. at Liberty Park. Brushers will pitch for Warsaw and Skip Schulz will pitch for the Merchants. The Warsaw team has just entered the state semi-pro tournament to be played July 21 and is reported to be a very strong team.

Leo Richards New President Of Local Club

New officers were elected by the Sedalia Rod and Gun Club at its annual meeting held this month. Leo Richards was elected president to succeed Dick Cole, who served as president several years.

Richards was nominated from the floor by Cole, who had declined to run for re-election.

George Espelin, also a nominee of Cole was elected Vice-President.

E. L. Eikleberry, nominated by John Rose, who declined to run for re-election, was elected by acclamation.

Jim Grady was reelected by acclamation as treasurer of the club.

An active program for the coming year was discussed and plans indicate considerable projects in store for the new officers.

ACHIEVEMENT TRAMPOLINE AWARDS

Dick Lybarger, 906 West Fifth, son of Mrs. Joe W. Grechus, is the second person to receive the varsity Trampoline award since the program was started.

Reaching junior varsity status this past week was George S. Long. Comet awards went to George Long, Terry Long, Mark White and Dennis Edwards. Achieving shooting star ratings were John Boyd, Mark White, Dannis Edwards, Lynn Edwards, Paul White, Linda Lutzin, John Heuerman, Viv Marcum, Terry Long and George Long.

Orioles 3, Senators 1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boog Powell slammed three home runs Saturday as Baltimore won its fifth straight game by defeating Washington 3-1.

Powell drove the ball against the scoreboard in right field in the first inning, lined a homer over the right field fence in the fourth and hit his third over the right-center fence in the ninth. He grounded out in the sixth.

The outburst gave Powell four homers in his last five times at bat and six in five games at D.C. Stadium this season. He has 20 in all.

Milt Pappas of the Orioles allowed only three hits in seven innings as he recorded his sixth triumph in 10 decisions. He left for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

Yankees 5, Tigers 4

NEW YORK (AP)—Ed Rakow walked Tom Tresh with the bases loaded and two out in the 10th inning, forcing in the winning run, as the New York Yankees nipped Detroit 5-4 Saturday.

Rakow went to a 3-2 count to Tresh before walking him, forcing in Bobby Richardson.

Tiger pitchers Fred Gladding and Dick Egan walked the bases loaded after two were out. Rakow replaced Egan after Roger Maris received the third pass.

The Yankees rallied for three runs in the sixth inning, tying the game with the help of Larry Sherry's wild pitch on a third strike.

Joe Pepitone's single with the bases loaded drove in the first two runs. Tresh, who had singled, stopped at second on Pepitone's hit but came home a minute later as Johnny Blanchard struck out. Sherry's pitch bounced back to the screen behind home plate.

Mickey Mantle hit his 15th homer for the Yankees in the fourth.

Indians 4, Red Sox 2

BOSTON (AP) — Cleveland scored three runs in the first inning with the help of two walks by Boston's Earl Wilson and held on to defeat the Red Sox 4-2 Saturday.

Wilson walked the first two batters, Dick Howser and Vic Davalillo, then yielded a run-scoring single to Leon Wagner. Wilson gave up two more runs when Bob Chance bounced a single off the bag at second into center field.

Wilson then walked John Romano before leaving for reliever Bob Heffner.

Heffner sparkled in his relief role, surrendering only three hits before retiring after the eighth. He allowed a double to Davalillo in the second, then retired the next 16 batters. Bowser broke the spell with a single in the eighth.

Rookie right-hander Sonny Siebert, recording his second victory against three losses, allowed eight hits. He needed relief from Don McMahon in the eighth when Carl Yastrzemski tripled and scored on Dick Stuart's single.

Twins 5, White Sox 3

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Harmon Killebrew and Bob Allison smashed successive home runs off reliever Hoyt Wilhelm in the seventh inning, lifting Minnesota to a 5-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

Killebrew's 26th homer of the season with Tony Oliva aboard shoved the Twins into a 4-3 lead. Allison followed with his 19th homer to chase Wilhelm.

Chicago had led 3-1 after Mike Hershberger doubled home a run in the sixth.

Minnesota narrowed it to 3-2 in the sixth but Wilhelm came on to prevent further damage by the Twins. He got out of a bases-loaded, one-out jam with only one run scoring on Don Mincher's infield single.

Cardinals 9, Phillies 4

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals scored four unearned runs on three errors and whipped the National League-leading Philadelphia Phillies 9-4 Saturday.

Lou Brock broke a 4-4 tie in the fourth inning with a two-run single after Philadelphia's Richie Allen bobbled a bunt and Tony Taylor dropped a throw.

Ken Boyer reached first when Roy Sievers let a throw get away to open the fifth inning and moments later winning pitcher Curt Simmons singled home a run off hard-luck loser Rick Wise.

Simmons settled down after the teams traded four-run first innings and blanked the Phillies the rest of the way on six hits for his eighth victory against six defeats.

Bill White's double, the first of his three hits, drove in two runs and singles by Charlie James and Julian Javier brought home the other two.

Javier tied the Natitonal League record for putouts for second basemen with 11.

Giants 9, Dodgers 1

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Tom Haller belted two homers for four runs and Juan Marichal won his 10th game in a 9-1 rout of Los Angeles that pulled San Francisco into a near-tie for the National League lead.

Orlando Cepeda also drove in four runs with a homer and single as the Giants exploded in the fourth and fifth innings for their third straight victory over the Dodgers and seventh in nine meetings.

Coupled with Philadelphia's loss at St. Louis, it moved the Giants within seven percentage points of the league-leading Phils.

Marichal retired the first ten batters, yielded a fourth-inning run on two hits and a ground ball, then gave up only three hits the rest of the way. The Dominican right-hander, 10-3, struck out eight.

Cubs 2, Colts 1

CHICAGO (AP)—Home runs by Billy Cowan and Ron Santo carried the Chicago Cubs to a 2-1 victory over Houston Saturday and snapped right-hander Dick Farrell's string of seven straight victories.

Farrell, seeking his 11th triumph, suffered his second loss. His only other setback was a 4-1 loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers May 6.

Cowan slammed his 10th home run in the fifth inning, breaking a scoreless duel between Farrell and southpaw Dick Ellsworth.

Pirates 4, Reds 2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Roberto Clemente's two-run double and pinch hitter Manny Mota's two-run homer in the eighth inning lifted Pittsburgh to a 4-2 victory over Cincinnati Saturday. It was the fifth straight triumph for the Pirates.

Bob Purkey was sailing along with a four-hit 2-0 lead when the Pirates struck in the eighth. Dick Schofield singled, Bill Virdon doubled, and both came home on Clemente's ground-rule double that bounced over the center field wall.

Bill Henry replaced Purkey and got Willie Stargell on a grounder before Mota batted for Jerry Lynch and hit his second homer to the upper stands in right field.

Al McBean, who relieved starter Steve Blass in the eighth was credited with his third victory without a defeat.

Braves 9, Mets 6

MILWAUKEE (AP)— Charlie Smith's error led to seven unearned runs in the second inning that carried Milwaukee to a 9-6 triumph over the New York Mets Saturday.

A two-run homer by Hank Aaron and a three-run double by Denis Menke powered the assault on starter Carl Willey and Al Jackson.

Rico Carty also hit a home run for the Braves in the seventh after Ron Hunt connected in the Mets half of the inning.

Hank Fischer received credit for the victory, only the second for the Braves in their last 11 games.

Smith fumbled Gene Oliver's grounder with one out in the second. Carty then walked Frank Bolling singled, and after Fischer sacrificed, an intentional pass to Eddie Mathews filled the bases. Menke came through with a bases-clearing double, before Aaron sent Willey away with his 10th home run.

About Town

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Eickhoff, Route 1, have had as their guests their granddaughter, Jo Ellen Cannon; two nieces, Helen and Mildred Little and two nephews, Philip and Melvin Little, Jr. all of Des Moines, Ia. Mrs. Eickhoff has returned after taking them back home. Her brother, Melvin Little, father of the youngsters, who has been ill, is improved. Another brother, Dryden S. Piatt, Stevens Point, Wis. who had gone to Milwaukee to get his granddaughter so she could accompany him and his family to Missouri for a visit, had an accident from a tire blowing out on his way home and received serious back injury. He is a patient in St. Michaels Hospital in Stevens Point. Both are former Sedalians.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Loveland, 1515 South Missouri, and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reynolds, Kansas City, have returned from a trip to Detroit and on into Canada as far as Montreal. They also toured the New England states, being particularly impressed with the beauty of Vermont, attended the World's Fair in New York City and visited Washington, D. C. They saw the changing of the guards at the grave of the late President Kennedy and toured other states seeing interesting places enroute back home.

Hour For Complaints

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—India's Home Minister G. L. Nanda, who pledged to cut government corruption or quit, has set aside one hour each morning to hear complaints from the people about bureaucracy.

New Russian Ship

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet ship designer Rostislav Alexeyev has joined two turboprop engines from an IL18 airliner with a ship's hull named "Stormy Petrel" and propelled 150 passengers at 68.75 m.p.h., Tass reports.

The Soviet news agency said this is the first of a fleet of such hydrofoil ships and an advance over the May Alexeyev diesel-powered hydrofoils now in river service.

Will Receive Estate

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A Harvard University law professor, Paul A. Freund, will receive the $340,701 estate of his sister, Miss Virginia P. Freund of St. Louis, according to an inventory filed in Probate Court here Friday.

Miss Freund, 54, died April 18. She lived with her father, Charles J. Freund, former officer of a St. Louis bread firm bearing his name.

Barge Hits Dike

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP)—A barge loaded with 1,100 tons of wheat struck a submerged dike in the Mississippi River Saturday near St. Charles.

Towboat Captain Bill Morgan grounded the barge in an effort to reduce water damage to the estimated $100,000 in wheat the barge was carrying. The dike ripped a large hole in the barge's hull, Morgan said.

Another barge loaded with flour being pushed by Morgan's towboat was not damaged.

Resolution Endorsed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Missouri Veterans of Foreign Wars, in state convention Saturday, endorsed a resolution recommending the hiring of Negroes at the organization's national headquarters here.

The resolution, presented by the Jackson County Council, said there are now no Negroes among the 250 employes.

Delegates and members of the Women's Auxiliary turned out Saturday morning for a parade through downtown.

Talks To Be Resumed

OTTAWA (AP) — Talks with the United States on Canada's proposed extension of territorial waters and fishing limits to 12 miles from three will be resumed soon, Foreign Secretary Paul Martin told the House of Commons.

Soccer Pool Winner Finds Out Money Brings Problem

LONDON (AP) —Jimmy Gault, 57, picked up a record English soccer pools winning check worth 300,684 pounds — $841,915 — tax free — and the world was his oyster.

He was the envy of 10 million people who play the pools every week.

But Jimmy, the little Irishman with a $28 a week job on a building site, suddenly found that money brought problems.

Sacks of begging letters — thousands of them from all parts of the world — poured into his home.

No longer was he just "Little Jimmy." He was Jimmy with the lolly—money.

Soon after his big win — he shared it with a half-blind cousin — Jimmy went on a trip around the world.

Back home in Britain he moved to try and rid himself of the people trying to get money out of him.

He enjoyed himself in the garden and helped breed horses. Still the begging letters came.

After five years of riches, Jimmy died from thrombosis. He had suffered from it for months.

His cousin, Billy Stranaghan, died a few months earlier. He was 76. Billy left $63,364 after spending a lot in a bid to restore his sight and also contributing secretly to charities.

The story of Jimmy and Billy is the sort that people read about.

"The success stories are the ones that rarely get into the papers," said pools official Norman Martlew.

"We find that once people become adjusted to their new wealth they are far happier human beings than when we first met.

"At least eight of the 10 big money winners were genuinely hard up before winning. Seems as though fate doesn't worry about rich people and hands out prizes to those who deserve them most."

But one rich couple—Charlie and Elsie Dormer—did land $112,000 in the pools. Dormer is a near millionaire as a transport boss.

"I wish we had never won," said Mrs. Dormer. "It has brought us nothing but misery.

"We said we would give the winnings to charity. Suddenly we became a human peepshow. People turned up and just stared.

"We've both been treated for nervous trouble."

Their win came in 1962 and they've had about 20,000 begging letters.

But happiness and contentment came to the Hughes who won $210,000 10 years ago.

They own a dream house with modern equipment everywhere. There's a luxury auto in the garage. They've got a holiday cottage.

They're happy—and her husband is back in business at his old job of bricklaying. This time as his own boss.

"We've had our problems," said Dorothy Hughes. "But we are a whole lot happier now than we were before that fortune came our way."

Charlie Cooper, the 46-year-old bachelor who hit the jackpot of $630,000 earlier this year, said after his win:

"My only hope is that it does not give me a heart attack. The amount I won was frightening."

Charlie looked miserable in most photographs taken after his win. He even got an offer to appear in a Hollywood film to "cheer him up."

He turned down Hollywood, paid a week's rent for people living on a municipal estate and then went for a holiday to get "away from it all."

The bill for the rent came to $4,200. "And he's not all that miserable," said a friend of the family. "He's just miserable with all the publicity and the begging letters."

Harry Hayes won $142,800 — and found that life was a misery.

His new bungalow at Portishead, near Bristol, was beside a bus stop.

In the queue were people who lined up and shouted through the window: "Give us some of the money you've won."

The bus company had to move the stop further down the road.

Raymond Collins bought a new car out of his winnings early in 1963. Six weeks later he was dead. He died in an auto crash.

Molly Muirhead and her $50.40 a week husband landed $140,000. Then said Molly: "We're nervous wrecks. It's too much. But I reckon we'll get accustomed to it."

Molly got this advice from Vivien Nicholson, whose miner husband Keith won $426,493 two years previously—in 1961.

"You'll grow to live with it—just like we have. At first it's strange. But you soon get used to it."

ENLISTS IN ARMY — Jerry Reuter, 17, son of Mrs. Herman Reuter, Pilot Grove, has enlisted in the United States Army for a period of three years. Jerry chose to enlist for Electrical Instrument Repair School and has departed for Fort Leonard Wood for processing and assignment for basic training. Upon completion of basic training, he will report to Fort Gordon, Ga., for school. He is a 1964 graduate of Pilot Grove High School.

Informers Singing Of Dread Mafia

PALERMO, Sicily (AP)—The "birds" have started singing in Sicily.

Police say the informers are finally talking, at last cracking the wall of silence that has stood for centuries between the law and the lawless on this island stronghold of the dread Mafia.

If that wall can be broken down it might mean the end of the Mafia, Sicily's so-called "Honored Society," after seven centuries sodden with the blood of uncounted thousands slain for power, for profit or for vengeance.

A year ago, before a massive police crackdown began, it was easy to hear fascinating stories about the Mafia. In any village you could find someone willing to talk, but name no names. He would pull open his jacket to show the short gun stuffed in his pants waistband, give you a cold-eyed stare, and start off: "Well, I don't speak for myself, of course. But I have a cousin who—"

Today the waistband pistol is hidden. It is hard to find a Sicilian who has a cousin.

Yet few Sicilians really share police optimism that the Mafia is finally being stamped out.

The "Honored Society" thrived through the medieval days of foreign conquerors who ruled this Mediterranean island. It survived everything that Mussolini's fascism could do to wipe it out. It endured the violent opposition of postwar communism, and held its own against the assault of modern trade unions.

Sicilians think the loose-knit alliance of "families" of the lawless league has merely gone underground, quietly waiting out the present storm.

The Mafia, elder brother of the old American "Black Hand" and father of the new American "Cosa Nostra" crime syndicate, flowered naturally in the waterless, treeless, eroded mountains of western Sicily where nothing but poverty grows easily.

It started, probably in the 13th century, as a secret society to defend the oppressed Sicilians against foreign overlords.

Time and the taste of blood and power brought a cruel metamorphosis. The white knight defender of the poor tarnished into the oppressor of peasants.

It imposed the rule of omerta —that no one dared carry tales to the police on pain of death. It was its own court and executioner under the ancient law of vendetta—blood vengeance.

The terror became rooted so deeply, and the penalties so sure, that witnesses in a thousand court cases sat mute. Mothers stood dry-eyed and ashen-faced beside the body of a slain son and denied that they knew who he was.

The Mafia dealt out small shares of its prosperity to its members and its friends. It controlled lands, transport, markets, prices, construction, contracts, jobs, smuggling, traffic in narcotics. Its men in politics governed cities and provinces and controlled the regional legislature.

It became a part of Sicily—like the eternal heat, the blighting poverty. There was only one hope: to leave, to get away, to try anew somewhere else.

That sent Sicilians streaming to the United States by hundreds of thousands at the turn of the century when America needed labor and there were no immigration quotas.

Neglect of Children

Romney Sees Major Threat In Decline of US Morals

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following is from a recent interview by the Indianapolis News with Gov. George Romney of Michigan.

By SEXSON HUMPHREYS
Reporter, Indianapolis News

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan's governor, George Romney, has a son who is a high school junior.

The other day Mrs. Romney asked her son if he would not like to have a group of classmates at the executitve mansion in Lansing for a teen party.

"The crowd," said the boy, "wants to go where parents will serve the kids liquor."

Teetotaling, non-smoking Mormon Romney thinks that is shocking.

Romney is shocked at a great many other aspects of American life today.

"The greatest threats to the United States," he said in an interview at his Detroit office, "are not communism, intercontinental ballistic missiles or space ships but the decline in religious convictions, moral character and family life."

Family life is being destroyed, he said, pushing his pen into a calendar pad for emphasis, by immorality and "neglect of children." This neglect, he said, could include misleading examples and parental conduct that gives children a warped sense of values.

To reverse the trend, the governor argued strongly for the place of religious and moral teaching in education. The United States is more a product of the Judeo-Christian religion, he said, than any other single factor and citizens need to acknowledge this.

He declared that the religious foundation of the whole American way of life is being weakened.

"American ideals are based upon religious foundations," he declared. Separation of church and state, he said, does not mean the state must prevent children's being taught the religious background of the country.

He said the present attack upon religion in public life, "coupled with the preoccupation of people with comforts and pleasures are not only destroying religious conviction and faith, and making some religious organizations more social than religious, but also underminng the basic institutions of our society."

Such weakening of national morals has destroyed other nations and will destroy ours, he declared. "The reason we are soft abroad, the reason we are losing respect abroad, is that we are soft at home," he said, "and we can't get respect abroad, is that we are soft at home," he said. "and we can't get respect abroad until we regain self-respect at home."

Three Sneeds Join Shorthorn Breeder Group

John A., Meg, and Jim Sneed, Sedalia, have been named members of the newly-formed Missouri Junior Shorthorn Association, state-wide organization for the promotion of Shorthorn and Polled Shorthorn cattle to young boys and girls under 21 years of age. John Sneed has been elected a director.

Missouri Junior Shorthorn Association provides an effective organization whereby Junior Breeders and Feeders can join together for their mutual assistance and Shorthorn promotion.

Improving efficiency and furnishing a product demanded by the ultimate consumer is the basis of all sound animal husbandry and Shorthorn promotion. Early acceptance of these truths by the young men and women offers their best hope for achievement and leadership development.

Sunday, June 28, 1964 | In Combination With The Sedalia Capital | Feature Section

Big Family No Major Crisis for Mom

'KINDA FUN, being Queen Bee,' says Katie Weller, wife of Don Weller, who stands right center. Creators of the buzz surrounding her most of the time, are her five sons, Rick, 13, at the left, in the back row, and Gary, 16, at the opposite end of the line. In the foreground, are Scottie, 4, Ken, 6 and Steven, 7.

FORE! for there's plenty of room in the Weller yard at 3131 South Kentucky, for Rick to practice one of his favorite sports. He is a straight top-grade student at Sacred Heart High School and won an oratory contest this year.

By MURRY ENGLE

With the population "bulge," large families are nothing unusual. Families of primarily one sex, however, are of interest. Mr. and Mrs. Warren Herrick have five girls and one boy. The family of Mr. and Mrs. Don Weller is comprised of five boys.

Equal exhuberance seems to abound in both families. There is not so much emphasis on different approaches to male or female children, but stress on different approaches to each individual's personality and needs.

Girls In Stairsteps

Five girls, in stairstep height, ranging from two to 13 years of age, make a lively feminine household for Mr. and Mrs. Herrick and their 14-year-old son, Mike.

Mike and his father are not aware of any special problems in living with so many girls. They are easy-going and practice the theory advanced by Mr. Herrick, that if you treat little girls like ladies, they will grow up to be ladies.

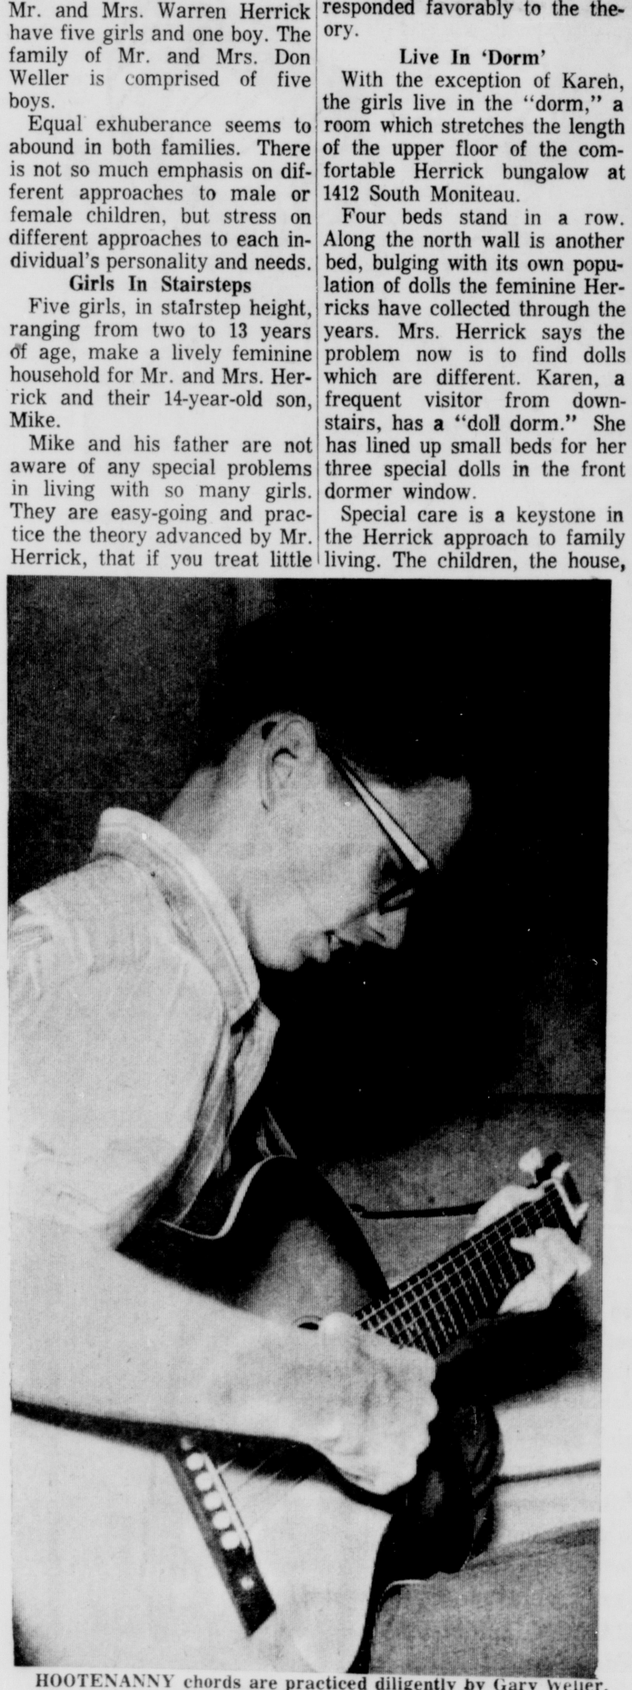
The girls, Theresa 13; Genie 11; Paula 10; Janice 7 and Karen, a busy two year old, have responded favorably to the theory.

Live In 'Dorm'

With the exception of Karen, the girls live in the "dorm," a room which stretches the length of the upper floor of the comfortable Herrick bungalow at 1412 South Moniteau.

Four beds stand in a row. Along the north wall is another bed, bulging with its own population of dolls the feminine Herricks have collected through the years. Mrs. Herrick says the problem now is to find dolls which are different. Karen, a frequent visitor from downstairs, has a "doll dorm." She has lined up small beds for her three special dolls in the front dormer window.

Special care is a keystone in the Herrick approach to family living. The children, the house, the clothes, the yard, the food, the toys and each individual receive special care, consideration and attention.



HOOTENANNY chords are practiced diligently by Gary Weller, 16, a devotee of folk music. The Weller recreation room is a practice area for Gary and his friends. Teen age friends flock there to hear the group. The situation is acceptable to the Wellers, but Gary is given responsibility for keeping the room in presentable appearance.

Adopt Young Puppy

"Buttons," the newest family addition, is given his share of care. He is a pointer pup, adopted by the family when he was two days old, at the death of his mother. Bottles are sterilized for "Buttons" and he is fed formula and special baby food.

Clara Herrick, mother of the family, says Warren may have a problem when he starts to take Buttons to the hunting field. The pup has received so much "mothering" he may refuse to point or anything else unless the girls are along.

Privileges and responsibilities are given the Herrick children as soon as they are able to handle them. The entire family enjoys swimming, but Mondays are reserved for washing and ironing.

Clothes Biggest Chore

Clara has found clothes to be an unending chore. By the time they have been re-classified for age, size and season, another season is almost at hand. But, the closets full of freshly washed and ironed dresses and play clothes attest much effort was expended by the girls and their mother. Clara makes all the girls' clothes and occasionally dresses them alike. Once, one of the younger girls ended up with four dresses alike as a result of that practice.

All the girls will be familiar with cooking. They assist in the kitchen making biscuits, cakes and cornbread from scratch. "No mix is big enough for this family," says Clara.

Solve Hair-Fixing Problems

Saturday nights are spent preparing for 8 a.m. mass at Sacred Heart Church. The family attends together. The girls like polished shoes for Sunday. Hats are sometimes a problem and fixing hair is time consuming. Braids were once a solution to the hair problem, but braids have been shorn and all the girls wear their hair in a manner which requires styling. When church time arrives, the girls help each other get ready, selecting hats and dressing.

Mike serves mass at church. He is tolerant and affectionate toward his sisters, interested in sports and has jobs mowing lawns and carrying newspapers for the Sedalia Democrat.

His sisters appreciate him. They do their own Christmas shopping and pooled their money for Mike's present one year. They were pleased with their ingenious purchase of insulated underwear for him to wear while delivering papers.

Mrs. Herrick says she and Warren try to understand the various stages their children journey through; only it is a little difficult to remember sometimes who is in what stage.

Having a large family is sometimes complicated, like when childhood diseases hit in sequence. Once the chicken pox and flu confined the family for more than a month. The family closeness is regarded as a strength that cannot be measured for the future. On the lighter side, say the Herricks, the price of a dishwasher is saved.

The Other Side

Weeds and worms have been typical gifts of love to their mother from the five Weller boys. The thought behind the presents has always been deeply appreciated by Katie Weller, their mother. She has managed to subdue her squeamishness and smile as she contemplated a worm and tried to figure out "Which end is the head, Mama?"

"Little boys can give mothers lots of love," says Katie. "And it's kinda nice, being the Queen Bee."

Folk music and teen agers often fill the house, as Gary, 16, who plays the guitar, and his friends stage Hootenannys.

Teaches Son the Business

Don Weller, father of the brood, is breaking Gary into retailing men and boys' clothing in the store he manages in downtown Sedalia.

Rick, who is 13, is a golf and swim enthusiast. His grades at Sacred Heart School are an unvarying top level. This year he won an oratory contest sponsored by Woodmen of America, using the subject, "Free Enterprise."

Steven is seven years old and will be a third grader in autumn. He is taking swimming lessons this year and looking forward to Cub Scouting and being a Little Leaguer.

Kindergarten was an adventure for Ken, 6. Otherwise, his mother says, his specialty is play.

Sottie is the energetic livewire of the family. He is four years old and trying hard to copy everything his bigger brothers do.

Enjoy Hiking

The family lives at 3131 South Kentucky. The Old Covered Bridge and the waterworks, nearby, draw the boys like magnets. They take frequent hikes to the bridge and use the free space in between for target practice with their BB guns.

They also take advantage of town living, and play with neighborhood children.

Don and the boys took to the country Christmas to select a tree. Katie looked into the backyard after their return and saw what she assumed was the Christmas tree. The greenery in the yard was a batch of trimming for a ceiling tall tree, already installed in the house. Besides that, they had cut seven feet off the tree at the site of the cutting, because it wouldn't go into the station wagon. "Must have been the biggest tree in the country," muttered Katie.

The boys have taken over the job of decorating the holiday tree. Special ornaments are the ones made by the boys.

Share Discipline Job

Discipline is shared by Katie and Don. The older boys are restricted from activities when their behavior is not up to par. Spanking is "in" in the Weller home, and applied, with desired results, when the younger boys misbehave. But, discipline is fair and tailored to the individual.

Each of the boys has had a party at one time or another for his birthday, but birthdays are principally family affairs with dinner and cake.

Katie and Don are able to attend early mass together, now that the two older boys can care for the younger ones and go to mass later.

Last summer the family attempted vacationing at an undeveloped lake site in a camper. Everything was marvelous as far as the boys were concerned. "Next time," says Katie, "there is going to be running water at least somewhere nearby!"

Boys Cook, Too

The boys have all been taught to assume responsibility. Gary does some cooking and takes over the kitchen after the evening meal. At the same time, Rick takes the three younger boys into the sleeping wing for baths and bedtime. Each boy is charged with keeping his belongings and living area in order. All the Weller boys share in cleaning up the recreation room and the older ones keep the lawn mowed.

Boys or girls, in quantity, make for living that cannot be called dull. The Herricks and Wellers say the thought, work, energy and love that go into rearing their families are investments in tomorrow and well worthwhile.

Flightless Birds

Flightless birds are called "ratites" from a scientific designation which comes from the Latin for "raft," because they have flat breastbones. Flying birds have a keel on the breastbone to support their flying muscles.

CURIOSITY isn't just the province of cats. "Buttons," Pointer pup, bottle-fed by the Warren Herrick family since he was two days old, pauses in friendly inspection of the photographer. Karen, two-year-old livewire of the family, urges "Buttons," to "tend to business." (Democrat-Capital photos)

Mrs. Robert J. Garrison

Miss Violetta Boneff is Bride Of Mister Robert J. Garrison

Anna A. Kresge Chapel of the National College, Kansas City, was the scene of the double ring ceremony which united in marriage Miss Violetta Boneff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Slavi Boneff, Kansas City, and Mr. Robert J. Garrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Garrison, 243 East Boonville, at eight o'clock Saturday evening, June 20. The Rev. Toney A. Conley read the ceremony.

The altar was set with two arrangements of pink, orchid, and violet chrysanthemums and white stock. Two seven branch candelabra held white tapers.

Mrs. Marsha Liggett, Kansas City, played traditional wedding music at the organ. She was accompanist for Mr. Nick Chartier, Kansas City, who sang, "One Hand, One Heart," and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white crystalline peau de soie, styled with a smooth bodice, Sabrina neckline and a slim, controlled skirt, caught at the waist by slight gathers and featuring a flat, center bow. The long sleeves were of re-embroidered Alencon lace and were gathered at the wrist into a narrow peau de soie band. The Watteau train featured a wide center panel of the same lace and was enclosed by narrow panels of peau de soie on each side. The train attached beneath the low, collared "V" in the back of the dress.

A circlet of lace and seed pearls held the elbow length veil of white illusion. The bride carried a cascade of white carnations with a center of white orchids and violets scattered throughout.

Maid of honor was Miss Kathleen Leach, Kansas City. She and the bridesmaids, Miss Sherrie Marsh, Mrs. Louise Jones, and Miss Cheryl Lozier, all of Kansas City, and the candlelighters Miss Rosie Boneff, the bride's sister, and Miss Kim Davis, also of Kansas City, wore floor-length gowns of crystalline peau de soie. The gowns were scooped necked, and sleeveless and were caught in empire lines by center bows and sashes. The maids also wore white, formal length gloves and their headpieces were circlets of matching material with bows in the back and circle veiling.

Candlelighters were dressed in pink, the bridesmaids in orchid, and the maid of honor and flower girl in violet. Each maid carried three long - stemmed pompon crysanthemums of pink, orchid and violet.

Violet petals were scattered in the bride's path by Miss Carrie Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jones, Kansas City.

Master Timmy Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Nelson, Independence, carried wedding bands to the altar.

Best man was Mr. Marshall Bryan, Sedalia. Mr. J. D. Sherman, Independence, Mr. Woodie Dean Garrison, both brothers of the bridegroom, and Mr. David Dotson served as groomsmen. Mr. John Boul and Mr. Bill Reed were ushers.

The bride's mother wore a pink linen suit, styled with a white pique dickey at the neckline. She wore a pink hat, short white gloves, white shoes, and carried a white purse. Her corsage was a pink orchid. The bridegroom's mother chose a dress of lavender flowered whipped cream. She wore a lavender hat and carried a lavender bag. White shoes and gloves and a lavender orchid corsage completed her ensemble.

Guests were entertained following the ceremony at a reception in Fisk Hall at the college. Mrs. Hazel Halstead, Mrs. Carol Morris, and Miss Joan Lackey, Independence, served. Miss Kay Denny, Jefferson City, and Miss Phyllis Nichols, Kansas City, received the gifts. Miss Joyce Ogrizovich, Kansas City, attended the guest book.

For the wedding trip, the bride chose a citrus yellow suit, featuring an A-line skirt, and a loose, long jacket. Black alligator shoes and bag, white gloves and a white orchid corsage completed her ensemble.

The couple left the following Monday for Grand Rapids, Mich. Mr. Garrison, who is a 1963 graduate of Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg, and a member of Phi Sigma Epsilon is field representative for A. C. Nielson Co. there. The bride will continue her education in the fall at Michigan State University. She was a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha, Alpha Phi Delta, and Alpha Lambda Delta at CMSC.

The couple will be at home in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale McGregor, Cotton Plant, Ark., announce the engagement of their daughter, Sara Frances, to Mr. Melvin Roy Hagan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hagen, Dacoma, Okla. Miss McGregor is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Stanley, Sedalia. She is a graduate of Cotton Plant High School, Stephens College, Columbia, and the University of Arkansas, where she was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. She has served as graduate counselor for the sorority at Oklahoma State University, and has been an assistant in the zoology department there. She will be a candidate for a master's degree in natural science at the August graduation of that university. Mr. Hagen was graduated from Dacoma High School and Northwestern State College, Alva, Okla., where he was elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. He obtained his master's degree at Oklahoma State University and will be a candidate for the doctor of philosophy degree in mathematics at the August graduation. He has been an assistant in the mathematics department at the university for several years. He will be a member of the faculty of Stephen F. Austin State College, Nacogdoches, Tex., starting in September. The wedding will be in mid-August in Cotton Plant, Ark.

Several parties were given for Miss Boneff before the wedding day:

Miss Cheryl Lozier, Kansas City, and Miss Joan Lackey, Independence, were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower at CMS.

Mrs. W. W. Garrison, Mrs. Edward Clark and Mrs. Walter Clark were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower at the Garrison home.

Hostess at a personal shower for the bride in Kansas City, was Miss Kathleen Leach, maid of honor.

Miss Boneff entertained at a bridesmaids' dinner at her home.

Mrs. Donald Lloyd Barnes

Miss Carol Ann Smith Is June Bride of Donald Lloyd Barnes

June weddings included the double ring ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Carol Ann Smith, Independence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Smith, Buckner, to Mr. Donald Lloyd Barnes, 1820 West Eleventh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira W. Barnes, 909 West Tenth, June 14, at Reorganized Church of Latter-Day Saints Stone Church, Independence.

Elder Gomer Malone heard the exchange of vows, assisted by Elder Ward Smith.

Nuptial music was played by Miss Mary Ellen Sutton, organist. Soloists were Mrs. Margaret Sanders, soprano, and Mr. Robert Young, baritone. The auditorium chorale, under the direction of Frank Hunter, provided prelude music and choral responses.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of peau de soie satin with a detachable train. The fitted bodice was adorned with a jacket of imported Italian lace with long fitted sleeves, which came to points over the wrists. A cluster of satin petals with matching applique lace motifs held the elbow length silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade of white Stephanotis and pink rose buds, centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. Elsa May Brooks, of the State of Pennsylvania, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a emerald green floor length satin gown, similar in style to that of the bride. Her flowers were a cascade of pink carnations.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Dianna Gibler, Independence, and Miss Mary Louise Barnes, Sedalia, sister of the bridegroom. They wore gowns of jade green satin, similar to the bride's gown. Their headpieces were bows of jade green, with green net veils. They carried cascade arrangements of pink carnations.

Candles were lighted by Mr. Brian Smith and Mr. Wayne Parker, Buckner.

Best man was Dr. Loren Broaddus, Columbia. Groomsmen were Mr. Bob Baxter, Warrensburg, and Mr. Harold Thomson, Hamilton.

Mr. Firmin Boul, Sedalia, and Mr. Donald Waldrep, of the State of South Carolina, were ushers.

Mrs. Sharon Hammar, Raytown, attended the guest book.

The bride's mother chose a powder blue street length dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The mother of the bridegroom selected a white-over-rose ribbon sheath, with white accessories and a pink carnation corsage.

A reception was held, following the ceremony, in the church education building.

For a wedding trip with her husband to Colorado Springs, Colo., the bride wore a brown and white striped three piece suit of seersucker and pique, with matching accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid. The couple will be at home after July 1 at 1820 West Eleventh.

Morrows Hold 50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Morrow, St. Petersburg, Fla., former California residents, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary June 14 at the home of Mrs. Morrow's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howard, north of California. Open house was held in the afternoon.

Guests were greeted by Earl Bowlin and Mrs. Bowlin attended the guest register.

The serving table was covered with a lace cloth and held the 3-tiered anniversary cake decorated with white swans and gold colored leaves. The cake was on a crystal cake stand, which was a wedding gift of Mrs. Morrow's mother. Gold colored spider chrysanthemums and holly encircled the crystal stand. Assisting at the serving table were Mrs. Ernest Stuart, Louisiana, and Mrs. Vivian Hale of Kansas City, sisters of Mrs. Morrow. Punch, cake, nuts and mints were served.

Mrs. Morrow is the former Miss Vera Howard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Howard, Jamestown. When she was two years old, her parents purchased the Howard farm where the anniversary was held Sunday.

The couple was married by the Rev. I. V. Johnson, a Baptist minister, and grandfather of the bride, at the home of her parents in June of 1914. The Morrows have one son, Richard Morrow, St. Petersburg, Fla., and two granddaughters, Rachel Morrow 11 and Gloria 7.

Mr. Morrow was born at McGirk, the son of I. G. and Lilly Milburn Morrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrow made their home in California after their marriage, where they were engaged in the furniture business until about 20 years ago, when they sold the store and moved to St. Petersburg, Fla. Mr. Morrow was superintendent of maintenance at Fifth Avenue Baptist Church in St. Petersburg until recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrow attended high school in California, Mo. They have been visiting relatives and friends in California for a few weeks and plan to return to St. Petersburg in about two or three weeks.

Mrs. Larry Huffman

Miss Linda Jenkins Trades Vows With Mr. Larry Huffman June 12

Standing baskets of yellow gladioli and white chrysanthemums and huckleberry entwined in a 14 branch candelabra holding lighted white tapers decorated the altar of First Presbyterian Church, Otterville, for the marriage of Miss Linda Jenkins to Mr. Larry Huffman, at eight o'clock Friday evening, June 12. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Burford Jenkins, Otterville. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. C. R. Huffman, Otterville, and the late Mr. Huffman.

The double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. James Dorsett, Columbia.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. James Farris, III, Mulvane, Kan., played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Mrs. A. Y. Burford, Sedalia, who sang "The Lord's Prayer." After the exchange of vows, Mrs. Burford sang "A Wedding Prayer," as the couple knelt.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, wore a floor length gown of silk organza over taffeta. The bodice was styled with a scalloped Sabrina neckline and the sleeves tapered to traditional points over the hands. The controlled skirt featured side pleats and flowed into a chapel length train. Bodice and skirt were appliqued in rose pattern lace with sequins and tiny seed pearls. Her headdress was a double crown of pearls and rose pattern lace which held the elbow length double illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of a white orchid surrounded by Stephanotis and white sweetheart roses. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Bonnie Kelly, Sedalia, served as maid of honor. She wore a street length dress of maize peau de soie with a scoop neckline and bell shaped skirt. An apron overskirt tapered to a fabric bow at the back of the waist. A maize bow, attached to a headband, held the shoulder length veil. She carried a nosegay of white carnations and yellow sweetheart roses tied with white streamers and surrounded with white lace and net.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Charles Jones, Warrensburg, and Miss Bobbie Holman, Otterville. Their dresses and bouquets were identical to those of the maid of honor.

Mr. Larry Castle, Otterville, was best man. Mr. Charles Jones, Warrensburg, and Mr. Jerry Page, Otterville, served as groomsmen.

Miss Rebecca Glenn, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Her dress was styled like those of the bridal attendants. She wore a circlet of split carnations in her hair. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Glenn.

Master Robert Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Young, carried the rings to the altar on a heart shaped pillow.

Serving as ushers were Mr. James Young, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Cecil Cook, both of Otterville.

The bride's mother wore a two piece beige silk shantung dress with matching accessories. Her corsage was of yellow rosebuds.

The mother of the bridegroom selected a light blue lace dress with blue and white accessories. She wore a corsage of white rosebuds.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for 175 guests at the IOOF Hall. Guests were registered by Miss Kathy Kruse and gifts were received by Misses Sharon and Jackie Gochenour, cousins of the bridegroom.

The bridal table was covered with white net over white, caught at intervals with white bows. A three tiered wedding cake centered the table. Crystal candelabra with lighted tapers were on either side of the cake. Serving were Mrs. James Young, Mrs. Warren Lewis and Mrs. Albert Kreisel. Mrs. Earl Routen was in charge of the reception, assisted by Mrs. Jack Gochenour and Mrs. Lloyd Aldrich.

Miss Shelly Aldrich distributed miniature bags of rice to guests.

For traveling, the bride chose a figured sheath of whipped cream silk with yellow accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid.

The bride, majoring in English education, attended the University of Missouri, Columbia and will continue studies at the University of Missouri at Kansas City this fall.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Moler Barber School and is employed in Kansas City, where the couple will reside.

On Thursday evening, June 11, the bride's parents were hosts at a rehearsal dinner for the wedding party at the Old Missouri Homestead. There were 30 guests.

Miss Mary Alice McLaughlin Weds Mr. Douglas Norman Keith

Mrs. D. N. Keith

Before relatives from Sedalia and California, Miss Mary Alice McLaughlin, daughter of Mr. Philip Miner McLaughlin, 500 South Grand, and the late Mrs. McLaughlin, was united in marage to Mr. Douglas Norman Keith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Keith, Altadena, Calif., at four o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 20, at Wesley Methodist Church.

The Rev. George Sparling, pastor, read the double ring ceremony at the church altar, which held arrangements of yellow roses.

Mrs. C. C. DeLozier played organ selections.

Mr. P. M. McLaughlin escorted his daughter to the altar and presented her for marriage. Miss McLaughlin wore a wedding gown of silk linen. Styled with simplicity, the bodice was designed with an oval neckline and elbow length sleeves. Its only adornment was a banding down the skirt and about the waist, held by a fabric bow. The controlled skirt ended in a chapel train. Her headdress was a bandeau of silk linen, which held her veil of illusion. She carried an arrangement of yellow roses and Stephanotis.

Mrs. Donn Shapiro, Chicago, Ill., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Robert Woodall, Boston, Mass., was bridesmaid. Their ankle length princess gowns were of yellow silk organza with matching shoulder capes. Bow bandeaux of yellow organza held their short brush veils and their flowers were white majestic daisies with ivy.

Lt. Dennis Keith, Portsmouth, N.H., was best man. Groomsman was Mr. David Howell, Oklahoma City, Okla.

A reception was held at the church following the ceremony. The couple left for Tan Tara Resort, Lake of the Ozarks, for a wedding trip.

For traveling, the bride wore a green three piece raw silk suit. Her shoes and handbag were black patent. Upon their return, the newlyweds will spend the summer with the bride's father.

The bride and bridegroom were graduated from Principia College, Elsah, Ill. In September, the couple will live at the college, where the bridegroom will be assistant dean of men and assistant athletic coach.

Out of town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. John Feldman, grandparents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. John Feldman, Jr., and daughter, Chris, Mr. and Mrs. Clem C. Glass, Pasadena, Calif.; Lt. and Mrs. Dennis Keith, Portsmouth, N.H.; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver B. Simmons, Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Shapiro, Chicago, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Searle, Albuquerque, N.M.

Mrs. Kenneth Dean Colyne

Miss Kathleen Mary Siegel Weds Kenneth Dean Colyne June 20th

Double ring vows united in marriage Miss Kathleen Mary Siegel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Siegel, Cole Camp, and Mr. Kenneth Dean Colyne, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Colyne, Green Ridge, at half past seven o'clock Saturday evening, June 20, at St. John's United Church of Christ, Florence.

The Rev. Harry E. Boughey heard the vows before an altar decorated with vases of white gladioli and blue and white chrysanthemums. Seven branch brass candelabra held lighted white tapers at the sides of the altar.

Organ selections were played by Miss Shirley Kananbley, Florence. She was accompanist for Mrs. Carl E. Zimmerschied, Sedalia, who sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer."

A cousin of the bride, Miss Nanette Roloff, Columbia, was candlelighter. Her street length dress was of schiffili eyelet in light blue. Her matching headband was of eyelet and tulle. A candle, tied with blue ribbon was carried by Miss Roloff and on one wrist was acorsage of carnations.

The bride's father escorted her to the altar and gave her in marriage. Her floor length gown was of white satin. The fitted bodice was designed with long tapered sleeves and a circlet neckline with lace and pearls embroidered in a leaf and flower design. Soft gathers released fullness which formed a short chapel train. A coronet of pearls held the bride's veil of white silk tulle. She carried an arrangement of carnations and ivy centered with a white orchid.

Miss Jeanette Eickhoff, Cole Camp, serving as maid of honor, wore a street length dress of light blue schiffili eyelet with matching headband of eyelet and tulle. She carried a cascade of blue carnations. Mrs. B. G. Wallis, Iown Park, Tex., sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Her gown and flowers were like that of the maid of honor.

Mr. James Williams, Sedalia, was best man and groomsman was Mr. Kenneth Siegel, Cole Camp, brother of the bride.

Ushers were Mr. Paul B. Zimmerschied, Sedalia, and Mr. Wayne Kanenbley, Florence.

Miss Paula Zimmerschied, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Zimmerschied, Sedalia, was flower girl. She wore a wide sashed, full skirted white eyelet gown. Rose petals were placed in the basket she carried.

Mrs. Siegel wore a dress of light blue at the wedding. It featured white eyelet embroidery and was accessorized with white. Mrs. Colyne selected a light blue dress with accessories of white. Their corsages were of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, 200 guests were received by the wedding party in the parish hall of the church. A cake of four tiers centered the bride's table. Serving were Mrs. Oscar Roloff, Columbia, Mrs. Vernon Siegel, New Bloomfield, and Miss Gladys Zimmerschied, Hayleton, Illinois.

Guests were listed in a book for the couple by Miss Irene Rehmer, Florence.

Gifts were attended by Mrs. Orville Heimsoth and Miss Nancy Witt.

The couple will be at home in New York State.

The bride, a graduate of Cole Camp High School and Elmhurst, has been employed as bookkeeper at S. S. Kresge Co. in Sedalia. The bridegroom is also a Cole Camp High School and is serving in the United States Marines, stationed at Utica, N.Y.

Murphy-Ziehmer Vows Said in June

Regal lilies, greenery and lighted candles in candelabra were placed on the altar of California First Baptist Church for the two o'clock Sunday afternoon wedding of Miss Andree Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Murphy, California, and Mr. Carl E. Ziehmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Ziehmer, California.

The Rev. Roy Sparks read the double ring ceremony.

Miss Sharon Rohrbach, California, played traditional wedding music at the organ. She was accompanist for Mrs. Don Moore, who sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Pryer."

Candles were lighted by Mrs. William F. Murphy, Lohman, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Hilton Schlup, who were also ushers.

Her father gave the bride in marriage. A floor length gown of white satin peau de soie was chosen by the bride for her wedding. It was fashioned with a rounded neckline and traditional long tapered sleeves, which came to wrist points and were fastened with tiny pearl buttons. The skirt featured soft, unpressed pleats, which fell to form a gentle bell effect. The back of the gown was enhanced by a court train of Alencon lace, which fell from the shoulders. Her veil of French illusion was attached to a double crown of pearls and aurora borealis crystals. Her only jewelry was a single strand of cultured pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. She carried a cascade of white Phalaenopsis orchids, white feathered carnations and greenery.

Miss Janet Ziehmer, California, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a street length dress of yellow taffeta. The fitted bodice featured a scoop neckline, with a single bow at each shoulder. Her face length veil of yellow tulle was attached to a band of yellow taffeta. She carried a nosegay of white pompon chrysanthemums and greenery, tied with white streamers. Attired like the honor bridal attendant, Miss Beverly Bieri, served as bridesmaid.

Mr. Frederick Ziehmer, Fort Benning, Ga., brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

A yellow basket of flower petals was carried to the altar by Miss Julie Ziehmer, flower girl and sister of the bridegroom. She wore a dress of white peau de soie in A-line styling. The bodice featured a rounded neckline and short sleeves.

A brother of the bride, Master Patrick Murphy, was ringbearer.

Feathered carnations and accessories of bone were worn by the couple's mothers with their costumes. The bride's mother's dress was fashioned of beige lace over taffeta. The mother of the bridegroom selected a light blue dress of silk crepe.

Wedding guests were entertained in the church parlors at a reception after the ceremony. Imported Irish linen, in white, covered the bride's table. The three tiered wedding cake was decorated with yellow roses. A miniature bridal couple highlighted the bridal tier.

Servers were Mrs. S. A. Duvall, Jefferson City; Mrs. Harold Lademann, Kirksville; Mrs. Jack Ziehmer, California; Mrs. Ralph Featherstone, Kansas City. Miss Julie Lademann, Kirksville, listed names of guests.

The couple is at home at 309 Randolph.

The bride was graduated from California High School this spring.

The bridegroom, a 1961 graduate of California High School, is employed as a carpenter with his father.

Hill Folk Fight to Save Post Office of Romance

By LARRY HAZELRIGG
The Springfield Leader-Press
Written for
The Associated Press

ROMANCE, Mo. (AP) — A many hill folk are hoping to make a big affair out of Romance.

If they don't, there's a possibility that Romance may be doomed in the Ozarks.

A rumor going around is that the federal government is going to close the Romance Post Office when the present postmaster, Mrs. T. J. Moorhouse, retires next fall.

But the folks, all three of them who live in this Ozark County community about 20 miles north of Gainesville, and the 14 boxholders and 22 star route patrons served by the facility don't intend to give up without a fight.

The Moorhouses own a home and general store—Ozark style—where the post office is located. Only other person who lives in town is William Coones, who has a house on a hill overlooking the store.

"Romance is a name with meaning for old and young," says a neighbor, Even P. Humble. "The setting of this Post Office is ideal, garden - like surroundings and a duck pond, a short distance to a little white church and the natural beauty of the Ozarks everywhere. The history of this place is in itself enough to warrant keeping it as a landmark."

Mail patrons think if others would send their mail to Romance to be postmarked with "Romance, Mo.," there would be a prime reason to keep the office in operation.

"We really have a booming office at Valentine time," said Mrs. Moorhouse.

She plans to retire some time after Sept. 30, when she will have been postmaster for eight years. Prior to her taking over, her husband, Tom, was postmaster, taking the post in 1941.

Romance sits in a cool valley, complete with wooded valley walls and a stream bed in the bottom. A cool spring flows at the foot of the hill on which sits the Moorhouse home, only a stone's throw fro mthe store postoffice. Pan-sized fish swim in the pool formed by the spring.

A few hundred yards down the gravel road is the little community church and an old one-room school. Moorhouse has completed the purchase of the school "so they wouldn't move it away. It had been here so long, we hated to see it go."

The church is maintained by area residents and a circuit minister stops by twice monthly.

The Romance area came into existence in 1881 when F. H Chaffin founded a station called Nora. He left the following year and Jason F. Norman became postmaster. Records show he took a "tow sack" over a shoulder and walked to Nora to move the post office to its present location.

Norman also changed the name to Romance, after getting permission from the Post Office Department for the change.

The charm of the area sinks in quickly, and visitors find themselves wandering into the store to see the rustic fixtures. Mrs. Moorhouse said the store had been kept in the traditional general store image because "we didn't want to be a city."

It no doubt never will be a city, but the people around here put it simply enough about the possible loss of their Post Office—"we'd sure hate to see it taken away."

Now all they can do is wait.

Book Salesman Speaks Before Sertoma Group

JUNCTION CITY, Kan. (AP) The solution to the problem of juveniles reading adult literature is not indiscriminate censorship and seizure, a news distributor who instituted the Kansas book-burning case, said Thursday.

Robert Thompson, co-owner of the P-K News Co. which won a U.S. Supreme Court reversal Monday of a Kansas decision ordering the burning of 1,715 so-called obscene books seized from P-K, had another proposal.

He suggested that authorities, news distributors and others interested in the problem "join in a cooperative effort to discourage retail dealers from selling books to juveniles tailored to the adult level, and to foster good, inexpensive reading in the schools."

Thompson, who addressed the Junction City Sertoma Club said his firm fought state seizure because "they seize magazines and books in the manner they would seize contraband such as alcohol, guns and gambling devices." He added:

"Legal authorities must stop and realize censorship laws and seizure of the printed word is different from any cases they will handle. Even a knowledgeable county attorney should not be allowed to seize magazines and books at his discretion.

"Censorship in the manner exhibited in our case is certainly not the positive approach or the answer to this problem."

Fateful Event In Yugoslavia

Shot Heard Around World 50 Years Ago

EDITOR'S NOTE—Fifty years ago Sunday a fanatic Serbian youth assassinated the Austrian Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his wife and Europe soon was plunged into World War I. Here is a reconstruction of the fateful event in Sarajevo, and a look at the little town today.

By CARL HARTMAN

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP)—A crown prince with some startling political ideas—a feverish boy fanatic, manipulated from the shadows by a mysterious spymaster—shots from a little automatic.

Did they start World War I?

Or would it have come anyhow, whether the Archduke Franz Ferdinand was murdered on that sunny Sunday morning 50 years ago.

Historians argue the point. Some say the rivalries of the great powers made the conflict inevitable. Others contend that European statesmen had been handling incidents like this for 40 years without a major war, and given a little less stupidity they might have handled this one too.

Some of its mysteries still are unsolved.

Start with Col. Dragutin Dimitrjevic, chief of both the Serbian military intelligence and the conspiratorial "Black Hand." His cover name was "Apis"—the bee—and a busier intriguer no novelist ever created.

He wanted to eliminate Franz Ferdinand heir to the 84-year-old Emperor Franz Josef of Austria-Hungary.

Why? That's one of the mysteries. Apis said later it was because Franz Ferdinand was head of the war party in Austria-Hungary, and killing him was a way of forestalling an attack on Serbia, then an independent nation and now part of Yugoslavia.

This makes little sense. Franz Ferdinand's murder was used by the Austrians as the excuse for an attack on Serbia, and there were many more eager for war then he had been.

A better guess: Franz Ferdinand had some idea of giving his own Serb subjects more self-rule. That might have cooled off their enthusiasm for breaking loose from Austria-Hungary and joining Serbia, an enthusiasm Apis was most eager to keep warm.

Nor would it have pleased Gavrilo Princip, a frail but fiery Serb of 19 from Austria-Hungary's province of Serbia. Apis supplied him and his fellow conspirators with automatics and grenades, got them some target practice and had them smuggled across the border from Serbia back to Bosnia and its capital, Sarajevo.

Princip was a sensitive, idealistic young man. He had a small black moustache, some talent as a poet, fair aim with an automatic and an advanced case of tuberculosis. He and his friends felt that in murdering Franz Ferdinand they were striking a blow for freedom.

"Aside from their compulsion to commit treason and murder" says an American historian, "they were really good and kindly fellows."

Their plan was simple. Franz Ferdinand, his wife and a small entourage — in Sarajevo for a civic function—were driving in six open cars along the Miljacks River, which flows through the city.

After a reception at City Hall the cars were to drive back along the river and through the main streets. The half - dozen conspirators stationed themselves at likely points along the river.

As the procession passed near the Zrinzsko Bridge a young printer named Nedjelko Cabrinovic threw a grenade. It bounced off the folded back top of the archduke's car and exploded in the street, wounding several bystanders and two of the archduke's aides in the next automobile.

The archduke's wife was scratched on the face by a splinter.

At the reception, the archduke had decided to cancel the drive through the main streets and visit one of the wounded aides in the hospital. But nobody told the chauffeurs.

The cars started back along the river. When they reached the street called Franz Josef Gasse, the driver of the lead car started to turn in toward the center of the town.

"Not that way, you fool—straight ahead!" shouted a general riding with the archduke.

The order brought the little column to a halt just in front of Moritz Schiller's fancy grocery store, where Princip was stationed. He stepped to the curb and fired at a range of less than 10 feet, killing both both the archduke and his wife.

It seems ancient history now, even in Sarajevo, where the quay along the Miljacka looks much as it looked half a century ago.

The old City Hall serves as a library with an exhibit on the ground floor glorifying Yugoslav President's Tito's struggles in World War II.

Schiller's grocery has been turned into a museum which subordinates Princip to the activity of an organization called "Young Bosnia." The official feeling is that emphasis on Princip and Apis tends to saddle the guilt for World War I on the founders of Yugoslavia, and to give too much importance to the Serbs at the expense of other national groups in the country.

Princip's fame has faded in the publicity given to his nephew, Slobodan Princip, a guerrilla who died fighting the Germans in World War II. In Belgrade, a school has been named for Slobodan. There is no similar attempt to keep Gavrilo's memory green.

But in Sarajevo, there still are people who remember the day vividly.

One who remembers is a tall, ruddy-cheeked history teacher of 68, now retired. Vojoslav Bogicevic has become the city's most devoted historian of the conspirators, several of whom were his schoolmates.

He was standing next to one—Cvijetko Popovic—when Cabrinovic threw his grenade nearby, and he was on the spot within a few minutes when Princip fired the fatal shots.

Bogicevic won't say now whether he was in on the plot himself, but he does admit: "If they had offered me a gun, it would have been hard to refuse."

Popovic is still alive, head of the ethnographic section of the Bosnian National Museum in Sarajevo, but he refused to talk to strangers. So does another of the conspirators named Vaso Cubrilovic who—like Popovic—failed to throw his grenade. He became a professor of history, and served for a time as a member of President Tito's Cabinet.

Mrs. E. E. Barrick reviewed a book in the June 24 morning session of Pleasant Hill WSCS at the home of Mrs. James McFatrick.

Contributive luncheon was served.

The afternoon program was given by Mrs. Pauline Garrett, assisted by Edith Franklin, Irene Van Dyke, Elsie Barton, Helen McFatrick and Pearl Coffman. Mrs. N. C. Leiter presided.

Plans were made for an ice cream supper at Pleasant Hill Methodist Church.

Silent auction was held.

Visitors were Mrs. Larry Moore, Mrs. Ada Miller and Mrs. Glenn Miller.

Social Security Topic At Jaycee Meeting

Richard Witcig, assistant manager of the district Social Security office here, explained the provisions of the Social Security law and showed a 14-minute film pointing up the measure's disability benefits before the Sedalia Jaycees Thursday night at Bothwell Hotel.

Willis Arnold arranged for the program. Invocation was given by James Schmidt.

Two new members were bibbed as a part of induction into the club. They were Jim Watson and Eddie Wise.

Women's Club Hears About Conservation

Mrs. J. C. Higgins reported on conservation projects of Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs at the June 24 meeting of Houstonia Women's Club at the home of Mrs. Jay Dorsey.

Pro and con arguments about subscription television were given by Mrs. James Blackburn and Mrs. Martin Bening.

Mrs. J. B. Hand outlined history of the fifth district.

Devotional was given by Mrs. C. F. Wicker.

The group voted to have a booth at the Sidewalk Bazaar in Sedalia.

Guests were Angie and Cindy Wicker.

New Building Falls Below Pace In 1963

NEW YORK (AP)—New construction is falling below its year-ago pace. The slip from the like period in 1963 could be the first signal of a leveling off in the long boom in this essential segment of the economy.

Or, say construction experts, it could be only a minor bobble. They note that despite the slippage in May, the total of construction projects started so far this year still is leading 1963 figures.

The building boom has been one of the chief factors in the 40-month advance of the general economy.

April had seen a dip from the March figures for construction contracts awarded. But these forerunners of building activity to come still held above the April 1963 figures.

Then May dipped 4 per cent below the year ago total. This was the first year-to-year decline in new construction reported since early in 1963.

The awards as collected by F. W. Dodge Co., a division of McGraw-Hill, Inc., show that in May contracts for future construction came to $4.6 billion, by no means a trivial addition to economic growth. And they brought the total for the first five months of the year to $19.6 billion, a pleasant 9 per cent above the like period in 1963.

The only sour note was that the May figures, in all categories, dipped below the year ago awards. Nonresidential building was off by 6 per cent; residential awards by 1 per cent; and nonbuilding construction, such as highways, by 8 per cent.

George A. Christie, economist for F. W. Dodge, prefers to call the May figures a sign that new construction demand has stabilized.

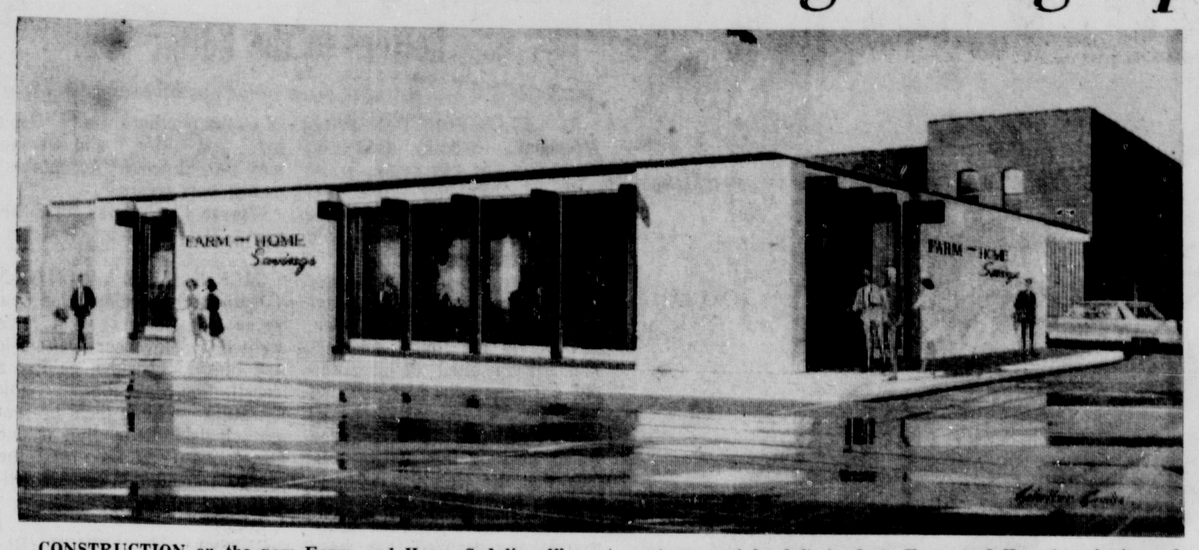
Farm & Home Building Going Up



CONSTRUCTION on the new Farm and Home Sedalia office, shown above, was started this week by the Dean Construction Co., of Sedalia, at the northeast corner of Fourth and Osage. The front entrance, at right, will face on Fourth. The rear entrance, at far left, leads to Farm and Home's private parking lot on the north. Walls will be painted stone and glass. The building is scheduled to be completed the latter part of this year.

JOLTING FOURTH STREET — Removal of concrete pavement at the corner of Fourth and Osage in preparation for construction of a new building for Farm & Home Savings Association began this week and Thursday buildings in the 100 block of West Fourth were feeling the jolt. This crane operated by workmen for the Atkinson Construction Company raises and drops near a ton-weight piece of steel, which breaks up the pavement in order that it may be hauled away.

Construction on the new Farm and Home Savings Association building at the corner of Fourth and Osage was launched last week by the Dean Construction Company of Sedalia, low bidder on the $100,000-plus project. Completion of the structure is scheduled for the end of the year.

When the building is finished, the Van Wagner Agency, which has represented Farm and Home in Sedalia for more than 45 years, will be converted to a branch office of the Association and all local records and personnel will be moved to the new structure.

The exterior of the 2400-square-foot building will feature painted stone walls and wide expanses of glass with heavy beamed overhangs. The front entrance, highlighted by a small garden area, will be located on Fourth Street. An entrance to the rear will lead to Farm and Home's private parking lot and the public parking lot to the north.

For the convenience of customers and passers-by, sidewalks on both the Fourth and Osage Street sides of the new building will be heated during winter weather to prevent any accumulation of ice or snow.

Foyers inside the two entrances open onto the offices of the Association and to stairs to the basement area. The public area of the first floor will feature a glass wall overlooking Osage Street, colorful quarry tile floors, a customers' counter with three teller's windows, a check counter and several occasional chairs. Officers' desks will be at one end of the room in a carpeted area.

Also on the main floor will be a private conference room, work room, vault and rest room. A drive-up window and night depository will be placed in the east side of the building under a covered driveway. Wood grillwork will be installed along the entire east side of the drive.

In the basement will be located a community room which will seat approximately 100 persons, ladies' lounge and restroom, men's room, a small coffee shop for employees, equipment and storage rooms.

The community room, a feature in several of Farm and Home's new buildings in Missouri, will be available to local church, civic, school and fraternal groups without charge.

The Sedalia office will be the 15th branch of Farm and Home. In Missouri, the Association has branch offices at: downtown Kansas City, the Loma Vista suburb of Kansas City, Independence, Columbia, St. Louis, Webster Groves, Clayton, St. Ann and Springfield. Texas branch offices are located in Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio and Corpus Christi. In addition, the firm has agencies in more than 20 other Missouri and Texas cities.

Farm and Home's latest financial statement, which will be published this week, shows total resources of more than $350,000,000.

Woman, 80, Moves Long Rail Fence

VIOLA, Mo. (AP)—Mrs. Lucy Smith, who lives alone on acreage homesteaded by her family more than 100 years ago, has just completed a job of moving a 2,000-foot rail fence.

A highway project made the fence's removal necessary, and she did it all by herself, except for a half-hour's help from a neighbor.

And, when the roadwork was finished, she rebuilt the fence in its new location.

Police Are Concerned Over Growing Civilian Patrols

By RALEIGH ALLSBROOK

NEW YORK (AP) — Auxiliary police perform vital services in many cities, but a growing civilian patrol movement is causing police concern here.

"We feel they are complicating rather than simplifying the problem," a Police Department spokesman said. "We can't let amateurs take over police work."

A Jewish group began a car patrol plan recently in Brooklyn in an effort to curb a rising number of attacks by hoodlums. The wife of a rabbi had been dragged from her home and raped.

The group's members now include both whites and Negroes and a number of religions are represented. Radio cars patrol the Crown Heights section from dusk to dawn.

Most large cities have civilian auxiliary police units, but operating under regular police jurisdiction.

Regular police generally train the units, uniforms of both usually are similar. In some cases, the auxiliary members are armed. Often they work without pay.

Much of their work is devoted to parade, park, traffic and similar assignments that keep them away from violence.

The Brooklyn group, called the Community Safety Patrol, operates independently and has resisted police efforts to have it join the police auxiliary.

When trouble develops, police are notified.

"There is no action we can take against them because they are not violating the law," the police spokesman said.

Los Angeles has two reserve police units, a city police group of 110 and 1,120 men with the county sheriff's office.

About half of the sheriff's reservists pair with regular officers in patrol cars, work in jails, and perform jobs similar to those of full-time deputies. Others serve on mountain rescue teams and in the sheriff's mounted posse.

They come from various walks of life and join for different reasons.

In New York, author Max Wylie patrols in Central Park two nights a week as part of the city's auxiliary police force.

His 21-year-old daughter, Janice, and her roommate, Emily Hoffert, were slain in their East Side apartment last year and Wylie says he is determined to do everything possible to prevent similar tragedies.

New York has an auxiliary force of 3,816 persons, but they have no more authority than civilians. The Central Park precinct is the only one in which they normally are sent out on patrol duty.

Portland, Ore., has nearly 500 auxiliary policemen to help its 650 regular officers. A bad windstorm hit the city on Columbus Day in 1962 and within an hour 150 auxiliary workers were on duty.

"We'd be hard put to get along without them," said Lt. Thomas W. Simmons, a regular policeman assigned to the group as liaison officer.

In Philadelphia, auxiliaries patrol the streets on weekends, help in parades, conventions and do traffic and other work. Police credit them with helping to cut down on robberies and muggings.

St. Louis, Mo., tried the plan seven years ago, but said it didn't meet the department's needs.

Jersey City disbanded its force several years ago after members lost interest.

Potosi, Bolivia, was situated at the foot of what was for many years the richest silver mine in the world.

Soggy Enthusiasm Is Deadly

Why doesn't the Chamber of Commerce do something about bringing more industry to Sedalia? What do the guys over there do, anyhow? Meet and talk, talk and meet?

What this town needs is some action, and that would include disbanding the Chamber of Commerce!

Actually some Sedalians talk like that and believe what they say so staunchly they would if given opportunity mount a soap box on the court house square and roar their rabble-rousing opinions.

Chatter or loud noise like this, has no vital significance so there is little likelihood Sedalia would be willing to operate very long without a Chamber of Commerce. This organization is composed of a cross section of men and women identified with the business, industrial, professional and laboring life of our community. Their mission most definitely is to work for the best interests of Sedalia. This includes efforts to attract industry here.

But these efforts, no matter how determined, cannot be of consequence in an area where people succumb to a comfortable feeling of isolation, or resolve imprudently not to become involved in civic matters.

When industries are looking for new locations what is it they seek other than physical advantages? Why, a good business climate, of course.

What determines a good business climate? One factor is the type of available employees willing to cooperate with management in the matter of relationship of wages to production. Another is the general attitude of the people toward pitching in with business leaders in such organizations as the Chamber of Commerce when matters of civic progress are undertaken.

A Chamber of Commerce cannot be blamed entirely if industry does not come. The Chamber's attitude can be positive, but if the general attitude of the rank and file is indifferent to industry's necessity to function profitably, then new factories will shun that community like a plague.

Industry scouts quickly spot undesirable attitudes among people; the attitudes of those who complain of others but goof off themselves; the attitudes of those who demand services of others but who give little of themselves; the attitudes of those who nod approval to progressive ventures, but who rebel when called upon to stand up and be counted.

No industry or business is attracted to a community which becomes infirm because of a poor business climate diseased by soggy enthusiasm.

Soggy enthusiasm neither builds a town, triumphs in a courtship, nor wins a political election. GHS

"They Gave an Inch!"

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

A number of Sedalia girls have gone to the Girl Scout camp at Kaiser, Mo., for two weeks, including Ruth Elaine Scruton, Betty May Barnett, Dorothy Hedderich, Mildred Gould and Virginia Lindstrom. Another group which will go there in two weeks is comprised of the following: Dorothy Dean, LaVonne Wright, Charlotte Smith, Mary Beth Kueck, Hazel Bell, Virginia Armstrong and Patty Quinn. Four Sedalia counselors at the camp for the summer are: Miss Jane McEniry, Miss Elizabeth McLaughlin, Miss Arline Downs and Miss Margaret Bapple.

FORTY YEARS AGO

About 2,000 persons witnessed the laying of the cornerstone of the new $65,000 First Baptist Church, Sixth street and Lamine avenue. The program was presided over by Ira E. Melton, chairman of the building committee. It was opened by music by the Missouri Pacific Booster Band, followed by a prayer by the Rev. A. W. Kokendoffer, pastor of the First Christian church. In the absence of Judge Louis Hoffman, who is ill, his paper on the history of the church was read by Miss Lydia Montgomery. Other papers were read by Miss Lois McNeil, Mrs. W. O. Stanley and W. Roy Melton. The principal address was given by the Rev. R. M. Inlow, pastor. Laying of the cornerstone was done by E. L. Calvert, chairman of the board, and Judge T. M. Jones, senior member of the building committee, T. K. Barley and Emmett Dugan, two of the oldest members assisting.

Small Ray of Hope

Optimism about Red China is so rare that it deserves notice and comment.

Speaking at Harvard University recently, Robert W. Barnett, deputy assistant secretary of state, predicted that "the pragmatic Chinese people will ultimately reject or curb ambitions of men who speak and act with too little regard for responsibility to the people."

Barnett, in charge of Far East economic affairs in the State Department, noted that the Chinese on the mainland once thought differently of the United States "and can come to think differently again."

What the United States must do, he said, is make it plain to the Chinese that we are not against them, that we pursue our policies toward Peking patiently, "more in sorrow than in anger."

Well enough. The only question is, how do you convey this information to the Chinese people?

A Chat With Mr. Truman

By CYRENE DEAR

Independence, Mo. — Former President Harry S. Truman rose from his chair in his office at the Truman Library to greet D. Kelly Scruton of the Sedalia, Missouri Democrat, his wife and me. This was not an interview but a few moments granted for a chat. No politics; only reminiscences.

When asked if he had designed the library he said: "I certainly did because I raised the money for it." He was modest about his three grandsons and related the story of a person who had to listen to a number of adoring grandparents until he found someone who didn't have any grandchildren and he said: "You are the man I want to talk to."

Mr. Truman said: "The press is trying to make a sick man out of me because I had a virus and had to cancel a few speaking engagements but I am feeling fit and enjoyed my 80th birthday celebrations." Being an octogenarian has not taken away the sparkle in his eye, the chuckle in his laugh nor his typical Missouri drawl.

Sensing that small talk was just taking up his time, we left for a tour of the library. As we rose to go I realized that the power of political friendship was greater than the power of the press when the former president said to me: "You would not have gotten in if it hadn't been for Kelly." Kelly Scruton worked hard to elect Harry Truman in 1948 and he has never forgotten his old friend.

Mr. Truman is an historian. His feeling for American history and the office of the presidency is expressed in the beautiful Truman Library in Independence. Although modern in structure, the severe pillars at the entrance give it a Grecian beauty and dignity. In Mr. Truman's own words: "This Library will belong to the people of the United States. My papers will be the property of the people and be accessible to them. And this is as it should be. The papers of the President are among the most valuable source materials for history. They ought to be preserved and they ought to be used."

The building was built and furnished by the Harry S. Truman Library, Inc. without cost to the government from funds donated by thousands of individuals and organizations. Research students are welcomed and are permitted to work on the materials housed there.

The Missouri artist, Thomas Hart Benton's mural "Independence and the Opening of the West," gives a colorful panorama on the wall in the museum entrance. The many gifts, from great and small, presented to the Trumans while in the White House are appropriately displayed in the spacious rooms throughout the library.

In the Presidential Room the exhibits exemplify what Mr. Truman thinks should express the office of the President of the United States. He defines this office in six categories: the Chief Executive, Ceremonial Chief of State; Legislative planner in dealing with Congress; Head of his political party; Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces and Director of Foreign Policy.

The Reproduction of the President's office is as it was when Mr. Truman was president and the mementos are the ones that were on his desk.

In the foyer leading to the auditorium is a beautiful mantel removed from the White House when it was renovated. It bears this inscription written by President John Adams: "I Pray Heaven to Bestow the Best of Blessings on This House and All that shall hereafter Inhabit it. May none but Honest Men ever rule under this Roof."

The various eras of Mr. Truman's life are displayed throughout the museum. His military career in the first World War, his political rise from Jackson County Judge, United States Senator, Vice President and President; colorful displays of newspaper cartoons and clippings of his stormy campaign; the story of the bomb which ended the war with Japan and the signing of the peace treaty on board the U.S.S. Missouri are among the historic events depicted.

Harry S. Truman is still a devoted family man. Pictures of his mother, his wife Bess, daughter Margaret, her husband Clifton Daniel and their three little boys emphasize the close family unity. He and Mrs. Truman still live in the big white victorian house in Independence. He is still friend and neighbor to those about him and it is little wonder that Harry S. Truman is known throughout the world as "a typical American President."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Republican May Desert to Democrats

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Sen. Tom Kuchel, the No. 2 Republican in Congress, isn't advertising it, but he is giving grave thought to the precedent set by his fellow Californian, the late Senator Hiram Johnson, who switched to the Democratic party. If Goldwater is nominated and also controls the GOP platform, Kuchel may do the same.

Only Kuchel's strong sense of party loyalty is causing him to hesitate.

He got a rude shove toward the Democrats from his former Senate colleague, Oakland Tribune publisher William Knowland, who heads the Goldwater forces in California. During a Washington visit, Knowland stopped by the Senate, exchanged greetings with Kuchel, and they both agreed to get together later for a talk.

Instead, Knowland flew back to California without seeing Kuchel again, and issued a public invitation to him to hop aboard the Goldwater bandwagon. The language sounded more like an ultimatum than an invitation.

Unable to bring himself to do this, Kuchel desperately hopes Goldwater can be stopped or that the convention can persuade him to accept a moderate platform. Meanwhile, Kuchel is going through mental anguish over what he should do if moderate Republicans are crushed.

As co-captain of the civil rights forces, Kuchel was in the thick of the epic battle for civil rights. He was dismayed over Goldwater's vote against the bill.

But Kuchel is even more haunted by the memory of Goldwater's stand against a nuclear test-ban treaty. The conscientious Californian attended all hearings, questioned most of the witnesses while Goldwater was off politicking.

Belittling Nuclear Peace

Kuchel also arranged a private luncheon with the Marine Corps commandant, General David Shoup, to discuss the treaty. The gruff old soldier, who holds the congressional medal of honor, the nation's highest decoration for bravery, told Kuchel solemnly:

"This treaty will have a greater effect on the future of mankind than any event since the birth of Jesus Christ."

Yet Goldwater took the Senate floor to belittle the nuclear danger and oppose the pact. As Kuchel later recalled to a friend, "Goldwater read a speech someone else had prepared for him."

Kuchel told how he rose to challenge Goldwater.

"Let me ask my friend from Arizona," Kuchel began, "whether he favors severance of diplomatic relations by the United States with the Soviet Union?"

"Yes," Goldwater replied bluntly. "I have expressed myself on that point since 1934."

"Let me ask the senator," Kuchel pressed, "whether this is a correct statement of what he said the other day in the state of California: 'I don't give a tinker's dam what the rest of the world thinks about the United States as long as we keep strong militarily.' "

"The senator has read what I said," acknowledged Goldwater. "I meant it. I have been chastised for using the word 'dam.' "

Kuchel then asked whether the Arizona senator had opposed former President Eisenhower's moratorium on nuclear testing. Goldwater said he had not considered Ike's action "wise," then added apologetically:

"Perhaps I have been too close to the military and perhaps lean too heavily in that direction."

"The senator from Arizona has a distinguished service record in both war and peace," replied Kuchel. "He need not apologize for saying that he leans heavily in the direction of the military. But is it not a fact that every member of the joint chiefs of staff approved the treaty?"

"That is true," agreed Goldwater. "It is also true that other members who have military responsibility have disapproved."

Sen. Kuchel cannot forget Goldwater's failure to study a treaty which may help to bring a new era of peace to the world. This irresponsibility on the part of a man who seeks the power, as president, to release the A-bomb, may make a Democrat out of the No. 2 Republican in the Senate.

Good Citizens

He was a very good looking teen
And every thought in his mind was clean,
He wanted a job and he didn't shirk
When he came to one that meant hard work—
With the strength of youth he wasn't afraid
Of blisters a pick and shovel made,
He didn't mind sweat upon his brow,
It was for a future that he worked now,
For he hoped to go on and get a degree,
He had in his mind what he wanted to be,
He was a high school athlete, too,
And this work would harden his muscles he knew,
He loved his church with all his heart
And in its youth group liked to take part,
He was well pleased, too, with the town
He thought little of those who run it down,
There's plenty to do here, so he found,
If people only will look around,
Swimming and bowling, ballgames and shows
And dozens of other things, goodness knows,
All the entertainment anyone would need
If bored there's the library to go and read—
A citizenship award this boy won
In school for the many things he had done,
Being polite and willing to do
Anything to help when they wanted him to;
This was the thinking of a well balanced teen—
Along with the others I have seen,
When their educattion is finished — then —
We hope they come back here—these fine young men,
But this is the one thing that we know
They will be top citizens wherever they go,
They'll be pleased with the town wherever they live
Because they will always have so much to give—
Because they'll smile on it instead of frown—
They're the type who build instead of tear down,
They're ready to push and they're ready to pull,
And they'll find that their lives are happy and full,
They'll think the town good—just no matter where—
And it will be better because they are there.

Democrat Pick-ups

AT AN AUCTION of used office equipment a woman bought a desk. Her husband didn't see any good reason why she needed a desk but she wanted one anyway.

She bought a small one and the first thing that happened the door fell off. Well she got straightened out on that deal all right, and to the amazement of her husband a little later when a very large desk was put up, she started bidding on that one. Not only that — she bought it.

About 10:30 that night a friend who was also at the sale heard her telephone ring, and knew the minute that she heard the voice of the woman who bought the desk that something else had gone wrong.

"You know that big desk I bought," said the woman, "I was going to put it in the basement but I can't get it in the house. It is too big. We tried to get it through the basement door and couldn't — and it's too big to get on the back porch—" and so there she is with a big desk which, she thinks, is just what she needs in her basement — but she can't get it in any of the doors of her house or even on the back porch.

It seems some people are like that — no matter what they do they have problems—they can't even get a bargain at an auction sale and have it work out right — and this is a big problem — a too big desk that she doesn't know what to do with. — H. L.

WHEN YOU SNEEZE almost automatically your hand goes up over your mouth — and the reasons are probably that you've been taught that for sanitary reasons you should do that, or just to be polite—but certainly there is another reason as one man found out recently is more important—at least to him —than the others.

The big sneeze came unexpectedly while he was off guard and somehow his hand didn't get up there in time and with the force of the sneeze out popped his dentures, and went kerplunk on the floor. They were good sturdy teeth, though, they didn't break and he simply picked them up and shoved them back in.—H.L.

What They Say In Letters to the Editor

D. KELLY SCRUTON (Vice-President, Sedalia Democrat Co.)—Here is my reply to the editorial, "Popular, Able, Acceptable" which appeared in the June 21 edition of the Sedalia Democrat-Capital:

The fearless prognosticator GHS's gyrations show the next governor will be Hilary Bush. Apparently the illustrious GHS had not consulted all his political paraphernalia in preparing his "Missouri forecast."

The evidence of the three words heading this article indicate that the view presented is slanted. If GHS had stopped to consider a few things, he surely would have realized that these three words can also apply to another Democratic candidate who is equally "Popular," equally "Able" and equally "Acceptable." That man is Warren E. Hearnes.

It is certainly a known fact that too much of a good thing can be bad for most everyone concerned. It goes without saying that if Mr. Bush were elected, the state would get a continuation of the same type of leadership it has experienced the past four years. But in a period of expansion within the state, new blood is needed in the office of governor and Warren E. Hearnes can provide this new blood.

As for "Popularity," no candidate of either party can claim more than Mr. Hearnes. Attendance at a political rally will bear this out. Or one can read most any edition of any paper about the diversified groups supporting Mr. Hearnes.

Surely no one would be so completely "in the dark" concerning a candidate's qualifications as to question the ability of Mr. Hearnes. If he were not "Able," he would not have wasted his time running for election. His ten years in the legislature and four years in the executive branch, as Secretary of State, have given him a deep understanding of the state government in all its ramifications. His "Able" service as House Majority Leader, several times, revealed a talent for political leadership and a capacity to direct it to constructive ends. At 40, and with authority, he is "Able" to grasp the problems of the state during the present age of urbanization and industrial expansion.

The last of the three qualifications our forecaster listed is "Acceptable." One can only state the candidate's qualifications and then let the voters decide. To say that Mr. Bush is more "Acceptable" than Mr. Hearnes, or any one else aspiring to the governorship, is engaging in the purest form of speculation.

Mr. Hearnes' nomination will bring new inspiration for the Democratic Party in Missouri; his ideas are fresh and alive. His platform is a sound one, with no weak planks. Above all, he will not knuckle under to machine politics or the "Establishment" as past administrations have done.

To use in paraphrase the summary of GHS: "Our evaluation of the man coincides with that of so many others. He is "Popular," and "Able," and we feel sure he will prove "Acceptable" to Missouri voters."

Warren E. Hearnes WILL become Missouri's next Governor.

JACK E. SWEARINGIN (Democratic candidate for Congress ,4th District) — I have written to Governor Dalton to ask him to consider calling a constitution convention to enable the states to keep their present state legislature — that is one house based on area and the other on population like the federal government.

RUSSELL McFATRICH (Rt. 1, Sedalia) and J. W. RISSLER, (Route. 2, Sedalia) — Dairy farmers and wholesale milk plants are being blamed for the recent hike in the price of retail grade A milk in Sedalia. The dairy farmers would like to present the following facts for your consideration:

Some 60 days ago the wholesale price of grade A milk was reduced 4½ cents per half gallon to the retailer. Instead of passing this reduction on to the consumer, most retail outlets in Sedalia maintained their same retail price. On June 1 wholesale prices were raised five cents per half gallon and immediately most retailers added five cents to the retail price. An excuse often given to those who protested was that farmers and milk plants were to blame for the increase in price.

As to farmer prices . . . the price paid to Pettis County farmers during the month of May was $3.93 per 100 pounds or 14 cents less than the price paid in the month of April, and 50 cents less than the March price.

Now — most thinking dairymen don't begrudge the milk plants and retail stores an honest and fair profit for helping us to process, package, and sell our milk — nature's most perfect food. We, do however, object to the practice of using an excessive profit on our product to pay for loss-leaders which are often sold in the dairy counter.

Milk is sold to grocers on a guaranteed sale basis. Any leakers, sour milk, or milk rejected for any reason is picked up and replaced with fresh milk. There is no loss from trimming, spoilage or shrinkage as in meats. There are no packaging costs and no extra labor involved.

This is strictly a local condition. Consumers in Warrensburg, Marshall, Boonville and Columbia are paying less for their milk, yet the wholesale level is identical with that of Sedalia. This irrelevancy can be corrected only by an aroused public, for our efforts have met only with evasions, buck passing, etc.

So — we suggest, Mr. and Mrs. Consumer, that you ask this question: Why is there a need for a mark up of 13 cents per half gallon of milk on which there is no loss and a guaranteed sale, when on the same counter there are offered gallons of orange drink with only a five cent mark up?

FINDING THE WAY

Faith Is No Stage Setting

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Anatole France is reported to have changed the scenery of his home to provide the mood for the book that he was writing. For "Thais" he surrounded himself with the art of Greece. When Joan of Arc was the subject, he hung on his walls some beautiful tapestries from 15th century France.

There is also the famous story of the czar who had scenery contrived along the river in order to hide the realities of the countryside.

Our problem today is the danger that "God" will become a scenery-shift, a name to be used to cover up our illiteracy. We ought to keep the phrase "under God" in our pledges, not because it is nice scenery but because it is a faith of our people.

We ought be concerned about the secularization of our society not because it is a pious gesture, but because it is an expression of a way of life.

Lewis Mumford once described the ancient Hellenistic world, writing, "The breakup of a civilization is often accompanied by a deceptive amount of social activity. As in a bodily fever, the pulse becomes more rapid, the rate of oxidization faster, even the flush on the patient's cheek may give the deceptive appearance of health; only the glassy eye will indicate that the patient is unconscious of what is going on about him: his mind instead is grappling with phantoms."

The busyness of our scenery-changing may be interesting, but it is as futile as this phantom-grappling. Religion isn't a gesture. It isn't contriving a kind of atmosphere for life. It is a commitment to a way of life. It has to do with the whole of existence. It isn't a badge one wears; it's a faith one shares.

In the days of the Old Testament prophets, men were willing to allow them to be "religious," so long as they were scenery and not life-changing forces.

If John the Baptist had stayed in the wilderness, he would have been regarded as an interesting phenomenon, but certainly not a person to be opposed.

If Jesus had spoken to a few followers without disturbing the complacencies about him, he wouldn't have confronted Golgotha.

This is always the history of faith. If it's scenery, there's no opposition. If it's life-changing, there's a challenge. But there's also a new and important vitality.

Braselle Knows Both Extremes

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "When you are cold in this town, nothing can be colder. But when you are hot—it is something quite marvelous."

Keefe Brasselle was speaking and he has known both temperature extremes.

Hollywood remembers him from 15 years ago as a young actor with plenty of both syllables of his last name. Sell he did, and he enjoyed a brisk career as a youthful leading man. And then he made "The Eddie Cantor Story," in which the critics found little whoopee.

"It got the most tremendously bad reviews of any picture in years," he recalled, "and I suddenly was cold as anybody could get. Nobody called me on the telephone, but nobody.

"Actually, the picture wasn't that bad. In fact, it has been on television and I have been somewhat vindicated. But it suffered at the time from having to follow 'The Jolson Story'."

Brasselle sought relief by playing Las Vegas, and the desert dates warmed his bankroll enough to permit the purchase of an office building in Beverly Hills. But the movie offers dwindled to nothing, so he hustled to New York.

How did all this happen?

"It was simple," he explained. "CBS was hot on signing big-name writers to develop series, but they couldn't get Jerome Weidman to consider it. When I heard about it, I asked if I could have my own production company if I could sign Weidman. The answer was yes, so I simply asked him. I've known Jerry for 18 years — he wrote 'The Eddie Cantor Story'!"

Weidman signed as chief writer and consultant for "Reporter," a New York newspaper series. Brasselle sold the two comedies and already has a deal to develop two more series for 1965-66. With series shooting on both coasts, he doesn't have time to cool off. And that's just the way he likes it.

IN THE GROVES OF ACADEME—Traveling the college commencement circuit is getting to be routine for President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson. Their string of honorary degrees proves it. At left, Mrs. Johnson tells the girls at Radcliffe College that "the woman of 1964 can be a careerist without being a feminist." And the President, looking somewhat like a resolute John Wayne, peers into his audience at Holy Cross College.

Dr. W. C. Blankenship Joins Library Staff

Dr. W. C. Blankensip, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Blankensip, 1014 East Sixth, has accepted a position in the Library of Wisconsin State University at Whitewater, Wis., and assumed his duties there June 15.

Dr. Blankenship has been director of the libraries at Midwestern University, Wichita Falls, Tex., and a picture of him, with Senator George Moffett, for whom the new library at the Midwestern University has been named, and Dr. Edmon Low, head librarian at Oklahoma State University, appeared in a recent issue of the Wichita Falls Times. The new George Moffett Library was dedicated May 29.

Last signer of the Declaration of Independence to die was Charles Carroll, at the age of 95.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about a shut-in friend who wields her telephone like a club, holding me a prisoner in my own home as many as three times a day?

I want to be kind to this woman because I know she is pathetically lonely. I do all I can for her, including bringing new friends to her home to fill her empty hours. But the more I give, the more she demands.

I find myself becoming increasingly resentful because this person can find happiness only if her mouth is open. Hints don't help.

Is there anything I can do to get her to cut her calls to one a day? She is a little unstable and I don't want to upset her. Thank you.—BUNION ON MY EAR LOBE.

Dear Bun: A woman who is so inconsiderate of your time that she would telephone you three times a day is more than "a little unstable"—she is a tyrant. Telling her to limit herself to one call a day will not help. You will have to compose a cut-off sentence, write it out and have it handy by the phone. (Sample: "Sorry I can't talk now. I'm running.") When she calls a second or third time, spiel it off in a breathless voice and run.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 32, have never been married. Now I am going with a woman I think I want to make my wife.

Greta (not her real name) is good-looking, a fine cook and housekeeper and she is crazy about me. The onl ything holding me up is that Greta has three children by a previous marriage.

These kids are fairly well-behaved but sometimes they get on my nerves by just being around. There are times when I walk out of that house and say to myself, "I'm glad to be away from there." And then at other times I tell myself I will get used to it.

I could write two more pages but you get the idea I'm sure. Do you have any advice for me? UP A TREE.

Dear Up: Yes. Get out of that tree and find a single woman or a widow who has no children. A 32-year-old bachelor who says "sometimes the kids get on my nerves by just being around" should not take on a ready-made family.

True, some fathers (and mothers as well) say to themselves when they leave their little brood after a trying day, "I'm glad to be away from there," but fundamentally they love their children and wouldn't trade them for all the tea in Ceylon, but this is not the case with you, Bub.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother raised me to believe I was beautiful, brilliant and that I should make a spectacular marriage. Somehow I changed signals on her and married the only man I ever loved. Of course he was the man she hated most.

We did not have the grand wedding mother had dreamed of because Dick's parents were not elegent enough and they might pick up the wrong fork at the wedding dinner. We were married in the minister's study and mother wept all through the service. After the ceremony she told me I had broken her heart by making such a poor marriage and that she didn't want to see us again. Dick and I moved out of town.

That was two years ago. Last night my aunt called to tell me mother is not well. I asked if mother had asked her to call. She replied, "no."

Dick is urging me to go home. Should I?—THE DISAPPOINTMENT.

Dear Friend: Yes, you should go home. And soon.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MacRae's Daughter To Wed Next Year

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Engagement of Meredith Lynn MacRae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon MacRae, the entertainers, to Richard Laurence Berger was announced Thursday.

Berger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hill Berger of Kansas City, Mo., is with a Los Angeles accounting firm. The elder Berger is director of the orchestra at Kansas City's Starlight Theater.

The wedding will be next year.

Blonde Actress Mistakenly Mails Her Dog

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gale Gilmore isn't sure how it happened.

She walked up to a Sunset Strip mailbox Thursday with a package to mail in one hand and her black and white mongrel puppy, Snipper, in the other.

"I got confused," she said. And she mailed the dog.

Gale, 21, blonde, and an actress, called the dog and cried. Someone else called the newspapers. A passerby called the post office.

"The postal authorities came" Miss Gilmore explained later. "A man in a uniform with a key. He opened the box, and there was Snipper, right down in the bottom. Some lady had dropped a letter on his head."

Snipper emerged without so much as a postmark, and Miss Gilmore got nothing more than a hard look from the postal authorities.

"If this was a Hollywood publicity stunt," said one, "it's the first time in Hollywood history that anyone has mailed a dog."

Kurt Gerstein

Jewish Survivor Champions Cause Of Ex-Nazis Officer

By HANNS NEUERBOURG

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) —A new youth center in the Ruhr bears the name of Kurt Gerstein, a lieutenant in the Nazi SS who had the job of supplying poison gas for the Auschwitz death mills.

Gerstein's cause is championed by a Jewish survivor of Nazi concentration camps and has been taken up by Jewish organizations.

"If here had been thousands more like Gerstein, there would have been no Auschwitz'" says Issy Wygoda, 43, a Frankfurt fur dealer an donetime concentration camp inmate.

Gerstein died under mysterious conditions shortly after World War II, but he provided important evidence which was used at the Nuernberg war crimes trials. He risked his life to obtain much of it, Wygoda believes.

Wygoda is incensed because West German authorities have classified Gerstein as a Nazi offender and have denied his widow a pension.

In 1940 a sister-in-law was killed as a mental patient under the Nazi "mercy killing" program and Gerstein began checking on Nazi killings. He joined the SS to gain inside knowledge of Nazi crimes, Wygoda says.

Gerstein had studied some medicine and chemistry. The SS needed men with his training and he eventually headed a section in the "Hygiene Institute."

One of his jobs was to procure a cyanide gas used by extermination camps.

Gerstein tried to sabotage the operations in a limited way. Evidence shows he stopped one shipment of gas by marking it no good and ordering it buried.

But, according to Wygoda, his main effort was to alert the world outside Germany to concentration camp horrors.

A Lutheran, he got word to German Bishop Otto Dibelius of his church. Dibelius in turn informed Swedish clergymen.

He was allegedly turned away when he sought an audience with the Papal Nuncio in Berlin, and later wrote:

"Could one expect that an ordinary citizen can do something when even the vicar of Christ does not want to listen to me although tens of thousands are murdered."

Gerstein's visit inspired German author Rolf Hochhuth in writing his largely fictitious play "The Deputy."

In 1945 Gerstein surrendered to the Allies and gave the most detailed report on Nazi crimes ever to reach Allied hands. As proof he supplied bills for the cyanide gas.

The Allies could not be sure of Gerstein's anti - Nazi efforts and he was interned. He died July 25, 1945, in a Paris prison. Officially the cause was suicide, but there have been recurrent rumors that he was murdered to silence an accuser.

In 1950, a German court ruled that Gerstein was a Nazi offender. His widow, Elfriede Gerstein, appealed but the appeal was rejected.

Wygoda heard of the Gerstein case just after he had successfilly finished a 13 - year struggle with authorities for recognition of his own German citizenship.

Struck by what he regarded as another case of postwar injustice, Wygoda got Mrs. Gerstein's permission to reopen her husband's case.

Jewish organizations in Germany and France have taken up the cause.

German authorities have advised Wygoda that they will take another look at the Gerstein case.

Stork Shower Honors Mrs. O. Courtney

American H-Bombs—Suicide or Safeguard?

Here is an Independence Day message from a famed Air Force general about the movie and book fiction which suggests we face a threat from the very people defending us

By Gen. EMMETT ("Rosie") O'DONNELL, JR. U.S.A.F. (Ret.)

■ GEN. EMMETT O'DONNELL, JR., West Point '28, is a veteran of military aviation, from flying the mail in the early '30s to commanding Flying Fortresses in the Philippines at the time of the Japanese attack in 1941. He led our first B-29 attacks on Japan in 1944 and commanded the 15th Air Force during the Korean War. He retired last July after serving as commander-in-chief of the Pacific Air Forces. General O'Donnell is now a member of Louis Marx Co., New York; national chairman, campaign committee of the U.S.O.; and chairman, businessmen's committee of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

A STRATEGIC AIR COMMAND general goes berserk and orders United States bombers to Russian targets, triggering a nuclear holocaust that incinerates the world.

A condenser blows in an SAC computer in Omaha headquarters, sending American nuclear bombers to wipe out Moscow by accident.

These are the basic plots of two motion pictures—"Doctor Strangelove" and "Fail Safe"—which tens of millions will be seeing all over the world in coming months. The measure of their success is the host of imitative science-fiction scare tales which leave you almost believing that the United States is bent on triggering a doomsday war. (It's never the Russians who play the heavies in these melodramas. Isn't that curious?)

The pseudo documentaries (like the best-selling books they are based upon) will amuse some, excite others—and terrify many. By current standards, they are entertaining, but unless put in perspective, they could drive a damaging and unwarranted wedge between the people of this country and the military who serve them.

Ordinarily, American military men are accustomed to being portrayed as dazzling heroes during wartime and boobs or maniacs during peacetime, but in these troublesome days anything that breeds distrust among Americans or might break down national unity could be dangerous. That's why I'd like to set the record straight by pointing out what is fact and what is fiction. Once the truth is known, I think you'll enjoy the fiction without being duped by it.

Fiction: In the book, "Fail Safe," a single unidentified flying object sets SAC bombers off on a course to Moscow.

Fact: Our warning systems frequently have registered single and multiple unidentified flying objects headed for the U.S.—sometimes during international crises. Were bombers or missiles attacking us? Within seconds, long before even our fighters could scramble, our experts had the answers. Once it was an airliner blown off course; another time it was a freak disturbance caused by reflections off the moon. The idea that a single unidentified flying object could instantly send six bombers on an attack course is nonsense. In fact, SAC has never yet felt the need to launch its ground bomber force in earnest.

Fiction: In "Fail Safe," apparently a single condenser in a complicated "activating" system fails. Nobody realizes it, and the defect causes the bombers to continue on an attack course even after the flying object has been identified.

Fact: Our defense system is indeed a complex mixture of men and delicate machines. Both make errors. But one reason for the system's complexity is to double-check every bit of information and weed out errors instantly. It's unlikely, but even if all cross-checking systems failed simultaneously at one base, similar systems at other bases would note the error and provide correct information. The concept that nuclear bombers are controlled by one machine—or by machines at all—is as much a fiction as the idea that they are controlled by one man.

Fiction: "Fail Safe" is predicated on the idea that our nuclear bombers on an attack course will proceed unless recalled by specific automated command and that a communications malfunction would make it impossible to recall them.

Fact: Just the opposite is true. The Air Force's plan of "Positive Control" requires a crew to return unless it receives specific, verbal orders to attack. If a communications breakdown did occur, our bombers would turn back, not proceed. Our concern should not be about accidental war, but whether the free world has imposed so many safeguards on its defense that in case of actual attack some enemy targets might be left untouched "by mistake." It is a calculated risk we Americans are willing to take, yet the world is presented with a picture of Americans as trigger-happy bunglers blowing the world to smithereens.

Let's take "Doctor Strangelove" next. It has virtually the same plot idea but is played for laughs, a kind of sick joke in which tens of millions die. Yet for all its satire, "Strangelove" has

HERE is the travel-bargain of the year! The six new MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDES for 1964 are just published — and each one contains 17 reduced-price admission coupons to leading World's Fair attractions, including transportation to the Fair grounds by Hydrofoil (the boat from Manhattan that skims over the water at 40 m.p.h.). One of these coupons alone can save you the price of the book —

For example: For a family of 3 adults, regular admission to the Ice-travaganza is $6.60. With the Guest Coupon: only $5.10. So on this one attraction alone you can save the whole price of the MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDE which costs $1.50. (If you're a family of 6 you save twice the cost of the book). And there are 16 other coupons!

In addition, each MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDE contains 13 to 19 coupons saving you and your family as much as $100 on high caliber regional tourist attractions. In the NORTHEAST GUIDE, for example, these include Mystic Seaport, American Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, and the Rockefeller Center Tour.

And Mobil Guide's superb travel information saves you even more

But these spectacular guest coupons are only the frosting on the cake! Each of the new 1964 MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDES can save you and your family far more than $42 or $100 by its exhaustive, travel-wise information on the best buys in food and lodgings.

Wherever you go in the U.S., whatever your budget — the MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDE'S descriptive check list of hotels, motels and restaurants will get you the most travel pleasure for your money — in terms of good food, good service, charming atmosphere, comfortable accommodations, and all the amenities for you and your children.

Unprecedented on-the-spot inspection and rating of every establishment listed

Every year MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDES are completely updated. Every year 47 inspectors travel and re-travel more than a quarter of a million miles through the United States, in making unannounced inspections of over 25,000 hotels, motels and restaurants. Their complete, candid reports on the best of these appear in MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDES.

Actual prices are given. Accurate one-to-five-star ratings point out not only the finest places, but also the best buys for your vacation dollar.

All your questions are answered: Is this restaurant worth a detour? What's the best inexpensive hotel we can find before it gets dark? Will they furnish a baby sitter? Put up our dog? Where can I get clothes cleaned quickly? What's the best luxury hotel? How much? Whatever you ask, you'll find the answer in your MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDE.

In addition, each Guide gives information about places to see in its area — museums, historical sites, beautiful spots, famous buildings, parks, recreation, festivals and other annual events.

SPECIAL WORLD'S FAIR INFORMATION

Each of the 6 new MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDES contains over 450 pages and includes approximately 2,800 listings. All the guides — no matter to which region — contain the 17 World's Fair coupons in addition to coupons for local attractions.

But for special World's Fair information, get the 528-page MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDE TO THE NORTHEAST. It includes a two-page map of the Fair, plus suggested itineraries for one-day, two-day, and three-day visits, plus detailed information on all the Fair pavilions. Just under 100 jam-packed pages are devoted to the Fair and New York City — with descriptions, prices, ratings for 432 restaurants, 96 hotels, and 26 nightclubs.

"We're lost without it"!

These comments are typical of hundreds from satisfied users across the land

"For three years, we have used Mobil Travel Guides — Not once have we encountered a motel, inn or restaurant which did not fulfill your description — it's the only guide we have ever used which has been accurate. We're 'lost' without it. Thanks again."

"Having used the GUIDE MICHELIN in France, Italy and Spain for many years, I previously regretted that there was no similar American guide. Returning to the United States after six years in Europe, I am delighted to discover the Mobil Travel Guides and I am writing to congratulate you for their publication." —F. C., Wash. D. C.

"Our congratulations to the Mobil Oil Co. and to Simon and Schuster for publishing this series of guides. I don't know when we, as a family, have been more enthusiastic about anything. The New England book saved us a great deal of money and at the same time ensured us of uniformly good to excellent places to eat and sleep. This kind of thing has for long been needed in this country, and we are delighted to see that it has been undertaken so well." —S. B., Closter, N. J.

"We traveled over 6,000 miles to West Coast and back. We used two Mobil Guide Books constantly — we would have been lost without them."
—A. C., Antioch, Tenn.

"Excellent regional 'Baedekers' to good food and lodging all over the U.S.A. Even without these money-saving certificates, each would be a bonanza of a bargain in information at $1.50 apiece."

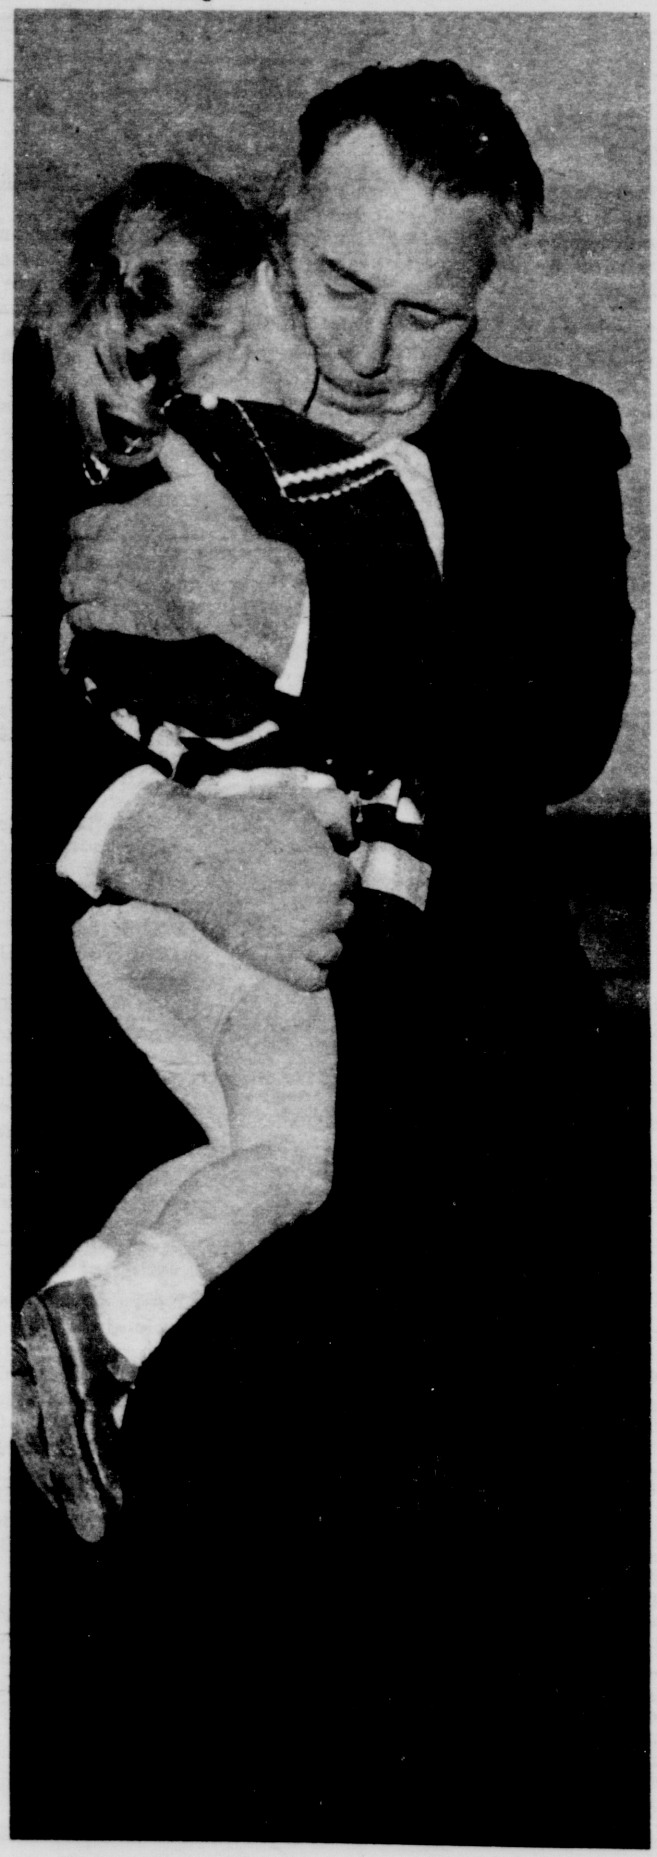
Mrs. George Hutchison, shown above with four of her seven children, waits for her husband's return from prison. As he returns (below), daughter Valeria hugs him in emotion-choked moment.



My Husband

By MRS. GEORGE HUTCHISON

as told to Jack Ryan

MY HUSBAND had tossed restlessly all night. Even in the morning, as we got the children ready for school, he seemed nervous.

"Lucille," he said finally, "what would happen if I weren't here?"

I was busy putting clothes on the baby and probably sounded offhanded in answering. "Is that what's worrying you? Why, we'd be all right. There's Social Security . . ."

Clyde shook his head. "I don't mean if I die—just if I wasn't here."

We had been married 17 years and have seven children, but now my husband seemed a stranger. Tears welled in his eyes, and he choked back a sob. I hustled the children off and asked George what he meant.

"I have to go away—probably for a long time," he said. "Twenty-seven years ago, I escaped prison. I just can't take it any more, running like a deer in the forest."

I didn't believe him. My husband is an operator on a detergent-spray drying tower at a soap-processing plant near St. Louis, Mo., and has always been a good provider (although, with seven children, we just manage to scrape by). Recently he had opened his own upholstery business to add income, but it had failed. I knew he was working too hard, and I felt the burden had simply snapped his nerves completely.

"I have to give myself up," he continued. "Every morning when I see the kids go off, I worry about them. They don't even have a real name."

As he added detail to detail, I began to realize that the man who had never lied to me in all our years together had been tormented day and night by a secret he could not even share with his wife.

Clyde Swanson was really George Hutchison, whose story began in the Depression. Those hard times drove Clyde—or rather George now—from his family's home town of Exline, Iowa, to Rockford, Ill. "Mostly I remember being hungry," he told me.

George was brutally frank about his past. With a young friend he had turned to robbing streetcars. Once his friend had shoved a gun against the head of an old lady and lifted back the trigger. "I talked him out of killing her," George said, "but that one moment was enough for me. I swore I'd never do anything that could possibly hurt anybody, and I went home to Exline."

George's partner continued the streetcar robberies and one night killed a conductor in cold blood. When captured, he implicated George, who was brought back to Illinois. He was sentenced to one year to life—at the age of 17.

After six years, George was eligible for parole, but a crime wave broke out in the state, and the parole board changed to a "tough" policy.

"I'd served more time for a $12 robbery than most big crooks," my husband said. "One winter day I was working on a farm detail and just sneaked away. I was a woodsman, and I knew how to cover my tracks by brushing dirt over them. All I was wearing, though, were work clothes, and I almost froze until I climbed into a boxcar.

"I rode a freight to St. Louis. I was hungry, scared, and cold—but, Honey, it never occurred to me to steal even then. I lived on soybeans from along the track. Then I found a dime on a sidewalk. It was enough for a streetcar ride to the other side of St. Louis where I tried to bum a meal from a lady before heading West. She asked me whether I would work for it, and I said I sure would. That was a new beginning—odd jobs for room, board, and 50 cents a week."

George Hutchison became Clyde Swanson, a man who avoided people and rarely spoke. Then in 1941 the United States issued a draft call, and my husband's world crumbled again.

"I drew out my savings," he explained, "packed my bag, and decided to go to Mexico. I figured they'd fingerprint me at the induction center and find out who I was. I was set to leave early one week—then that Sunday the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor. For two days I just walked around trying to decide what I had to do. I didn't want to go back to prison. But I was big, healthy, and young, too, and mad as the devil at those Japs. It was no use. I couldn't run. On Dec. 9, I went to the induction center, hoping I'd be lucky."

By my husband's standards, he was "lucky." Nobody discovered his true identity. Officers at Camp Roberts, Calif., were impressed with George's command presence and intelligence and wanted him to apply for officer's training. But George knew officer candidates are closely investigated. He refused.

He went to the South Pacific with the 41st Division and saw face-to-face combat with Jap patrols on Biak. "You know," he told me, "I think I may even have helped shoot down a Jap strafing plane with my rifle—I sure think I hit him." From his combat experience came an offer for a

Was an Escaped Convict

How does a woman react when her husband of 17 years, father of her seven children, reveals a secret his conscience can no longer contain? Here is her own story noncommissioned rating: George had to turn it down. On June 3, 1944, a burst of shrapnel wounded George in the leg, and the war ended for him.

After the war, George returned to St. Louis and became friends with my father, who operated a garage. He introduced us, and it was love at first sight. George never made friends, and we moved often, but this didn't seem strange to me. Whatever George worked at, he did well. Once he was promoted to an excellent position, and we thought our financial troubles would end. But George learned he would be investigated for a surety bond. He turned down the advancement, telling me he couldn't get along with his supervisor and could do better elsewhere. I thought that was odd, but I went along. I always believed the man should make the decisions.

Eventually we settled in an old frame farmhouse on the bottom lands not far from the Missouri River in Bridgeton, Mo. We had to carry our own drinking water, and the place was drafty and cold until George fixed the stoves. But we were isolated and that was important.

"You know, I remember one day," George went on, "when I was shaving, and you answered a knock on the door. I heard a man say, 'We're from the FBI. May we speak to your husband?' I looked in the mirror and thought, 'Well, they've caught you at last.' All I could think of was you and the kids learning about me this way. Instead, the FBI man just said, 'We're investigating the possibility that a stolen interstate-commerce truck is hidden around here, Mr. Swanson, and we wonder whether you could help us.' That was all. But I was limp when they left."

Fear and Shame Were Forever with Him

Over the years, George's apprehensions built steadily. "I wanted to buy you and the kids a house, but I was scared about the mortgage and insurance checking. I wanted to go to church with the family, but how could I sit there knowing everything about me was a lie? I kept asking myself, 'What am I leaving them? Nothing. Not even a name.' "

People ask me how I felt listening to my husband tell me he was a fugitive. I didn't feel anything. I just remember repeating numbly: "We'll make out all right. Mustn't worry. Do what you have to do." I meant it, too. I had sensed for a long time that something was driving my husband beyond endurance. I felt relief in having the cause in the open. Together I knew we could make anything bearable.

"I'll be in prison three years," he kept saying. "There will be headlines. You and the kids might have to move. No telling what people will do once they learn what I am."

When George finished his story, we coolly made plans for the day he would end his double life. We seldom got more than three hours sleep a night during the next week. We would lie in bed and talk over our problems softly so as not to wake the children.

We told my family, and they were wonderful. They pledged all the help they could. George gave away his new snow tires and other things he figured he couldn't use again. I took my final driver's-license test because now all the chores would be mine. And we made plans to be married—married as Mr. and Mrs. George Hutchison. Oh, the trouble George had signing his real name to the marriage license after 27 years! We both practiced saying and writing Hutchison, but it was a long time before it came naturally.

I don't think we will ever forget Jan. 14. My brother picked us up in his car. We were to drive to Troy, Mo., for our wedding, then directly to the sheriff's office. Bruce, 16, stayed home with the youngest children—David, 6, Valeria, 4, and Irene, eight months—who huddled unconcernedly around the television set. George stopped at the door, and he was crying. "So long, kids," he said. They thought Daddy was going shopping and paid no attention.

Our older children—Glenn, 14, Michael, 12, and Rebecca, 10—came along as witnesses. All through the ride, Becky clung to her father's arm. They both wept quietly, the rest of us pretending not to notice.

When George told his story to a deputy sheriff later, it was obvious the officer thought he was a crank. But Sheriff Lester Plackmeyer of St. Charles County telephoned Pontiac Penitentiary in Illinois, and about an hour later they called back after checking the records. Yes, all details checked out. Everybody thought George had frozen to death or drowned, and little effort had been made to find him. Now, however, the state would send marshals to return him to prison.

"When they take me," George said, "I don't want you there." I insisted I'd stay with him until the last moment. "No," he replied. "The law says I have to be returned in chains. I don't want you or the kids to see me like that."

Sheriff Plackmeyer was wonderful. He got newspaper photographers to agree not to take pictures of George in chains. But a tv crew hid down the street and filmed the scene. That night our children were watching tv when the film appeared. Despite all the precautions, they saw their father being led away in chains.

I must have been in shock after returning home from the sheriff's office. I stood ironing until midnight. Things kept going over and over in my mind: I must get George's army papers together . . . I must apply for aid for the children . . . I must get a hold of myself—the children will need me if people turn against us.

How the Public Reacted

The story appeared on the front pages the next day. Our first incident involved the oil company, which refused to refill our tank although it was dead winter and the house was getting bitter cold. I thought the worst had come, but soon another truck drove up and began delivery. I told the driver I didn't know when we could pay.

"Already paid for, ma'am," he said, but he couldn't tell me by whom. "The man just said he wanted to help until your husband came back." That was the first in a series of offers to help us. The phone rang constantly with neighbors worried about how we'd make out and asking how they could help. In the afternoon, a delegation from George's plant knocked on our door.

"We took up a collection, Mrs. Swanson . . . er, Mrs. Hutchison," the spokesman said. "Here's about $100. There'll be more. We know George and won't let him down."

But what about the children? I knew kids can be cruel without understanding what they are doing. When our children came home from school, though, they were all excited over how everybody at school was talking about their daddy and how brave he must be.

According to prison policy, George and I could not even correspond for weeks, but many wonderful people interceded for us, and soon I was flying to Pontiac. I was quite anxious because George had been taken ill and confined to the prison hospital. When I entered his room, though, he wouldn't talk about himself.

"Please tell me the truth," he said. "How are you making out? Is it rough?" He couldn't seem to believe how many friends we had and how they were not only helping us financially but petitioning Gov. Otto Kerner for a pardon.

"I know," George said, "but don't get up your hopes. If they fail, I don't think either of us could take it."

He was right, of course, and I put the idea out of my mind. George told me how his brother, whom he hadn't seen in nearly 30 years, had visited him, and how he had discovered for the first time he had three half-sisters.

"And the warden gave me this," George added quietly. He handed me an old picture. "It's my mother. They've kept it in my file all this time." He paused. "If I get out of here, Hon, I want to go back to Exline, visit her grave, see where it all started." I guess he felt he had to close the circle before we really could be free.

The Illinois parole board began carefully investigating George's story. They thought he might have given himself up because somebody from his past was blackmailing him. It wasn't true. Everywhere they went, they got the same answer: George was a respected man who revealed a secret life because of conscience and love of family.

When parole officials visited me, I remembered what George had said earlier—"In 27 years, the only thing I did wrong was marry a fine girl and father seven children."

"He never did anything wrong," I told them. "I'm a very lucky woman with very lucky children, and nothing can change that."

The parole people were noncommittal. They said they "hoped" I would have my husband home soon. Meanwhile, it seemed like everybody—newspapers, fellow workers, total strangers—was writing Illinois officials noting that, if modern justice aimed at rehabilitating wrongdoers rather than punishing them, then George should be free with all his citizenship rights restored.

I was holding a cup of coffee the morning of Jan. 23 when the radio announcer read: "Governor Kerner today granted a full pardon to George Hutchison, the father of seven who . . ."

The cup crashed to the floor. For the first time, the agony of the past weeks welled up inside me. The clearest recollection I have is of the children running in from school.

"The teacher announced it in class," they kept shouting. "Everybody started cheering and clapping."

The house was in turmoil when George came home—photographers, newsmen, well-wishers. The men at George's plant had taken up a fourth collection for us. But, with much gratitude, I turned it down. I knew George would want to do the providing now that he was free.

One of the first things he did, with the kids whooping around him, was to paint the name Swanson off our mailbox and put on Hutchison. Next we drove to Exline. Life seemed so strange now, and I wondered what would happen in George's old home town. I hoped somehow the journey would make us feel like real people again. We stopped in the gracious old farm town, and I asked directions from a lady. "You're George's wife, aren't you?" she said pleasantly. "We knew he would come back some day."

EVERYWHERE it was like that. George had never changed; it was obvious that the gentle man I knew always had been like that: one terrible period of desperation had cheated him of so much.

I learned, for instance, that a neighbor, Mrs. Snyder, had actually kept a light burning in a window for 26 years until her death in 1963 at age 97 to let George know he could find refuge in her home. She called it "George's light." Sounds corny to some people, I suppose, but hearing it made both of us misty-eyed. Another example was George's Aunt Evelyn who kept an icebox on her back porch filled with food in case George should return and be so hunted he could not show himself.

"I never felt so good," George said as we left Exline. Back home his job was waiting for him as well as many new friends—people we had no reason to fear now. "I feel I've really gotten my birthright back. It's all over at last—and thanks."

"Well, you've still got one problem," I told him. "You've got one wife—but two wedding anniversaries. And I expect a wonderful present for each one."

certain "documentary" effects that might scare the devil out of the literal-minded and no doubt will fuel up "Ban-the-Bomb" crusaders.

Fiction: A deranged Air Force general decides the Communist conspiracy is winning out, and he alone must take action—by ordering his nuclear bombers to Russia.

Fact: The Air Force realizes the responsibility for nuclear weapons must rest in the hands of stable persons. It constantly screens personnel for signs of "cracking up." In 1962, for example, 1,296 persons were relieved of duty on nuclear assignments because of emotional illness, marital problems, and similar difficulties. Still, as the movie says, there could be "one slip-up," so other precautions have been taken . . .

Fiction: The general, on his own authority, transmits an attack message to his bombers. They assume he is acting on order from the President of the United States—the only person authorized to command the expenditure of nuclear weapons—and proceed to attack Russia.

Fact: Two points—1) Bombers attack only upon receipt of a coded voice message which would be authenticated by officers at each of several levels of command. 2) The Air Force follows the "two-man" rule: just as it takes at least two men to activate a bomb, it also requires at least two responsible individuals to authenticate any bombing order. In other words, no one man can act alone in regard to nuclear weapons.

Still another movie, "Seven Days in May," has the military "elite" trying to overthrow the government. This plot simply substitutes the traditions of, say, some banana republic for our basic history in which the American military has never defied elected authority after a decision has been made. On the other hand, appointed U.S. officials unfortunately have usurped the functions of men in uniform all too often.

WHY MAKE A POINT of separating fact from fiction? Well, many people, particularly overseas, have been convinced by Communist propaganda that Americans are warmongers. In contrast to these movies, facts prove that actually the U. S. has taken every conceivable precaution to prevent an accidental war. I wonder whether we can say the same about the Russians and their allies.

Secondly, there is an idea that nuclear weapons are inevitably suicidal rather than a safeguard. For 18 years, however, the free world has remained free simply because the Communists feared our nuclear-deterrent strength. They still do. But what would happen to the free world if Americans threw away their H-bombs without foolproof assurance that others would do the same?

So, "Fail Safe," "Strangelove," and "Seven Days" are great thrillers. Just remember, though, that like most thrillers, they rely not on fact but on man's flightful and frightful fancy.

Wedding Belle

■ A WEDDING is something special for everyone involved. But for a little four-year-old who is a member of a bridal party, the occasion is something extra-special. Such was the experience of Lesley Louise Carothers, a budding Southern belle from New Orleans. Her big brother, A. J. Carothers, a tv writer and producer, and Caryl Volkmann, a model, were "stars" of the wedding—but it was Lesley Louise, as flower girl, who stole the show.

Ready for the guests are: Appetizer Spareribs; green pepper squares, cherry tomatoes, and avocado pieces in glass tumblers for serve-yourself Grilled Shrimp Appetizers (on hibachi); Roast Corn with Perky Butter Sauce; Grilled Lamb Chops; and crisp salad greens with an assortment of dressings.

Appetizer Spareribs

Put 4 lbs. spareribs, meaty side up, in a shallow roasting pan. Rub with a cut clove of garlic and sprinkle with salt. Roast in a 350°F oven 1½ hrs., or until done, draining off excess fat as it accumulates. Cut ribs apart. Dip in either Tangy Plum Sauce or Sweet-Sour Apricot Sauce; grill 3 in. from coals until well browned; turn frequently. Appetizers for 10 to 12

Tangy Plum Sauce

Drain a 1-lb. can purple plums and reserve ¼ cup sirup; pit and force plums through a sieve or food mill into a bowl. Blend in reserved sirup, ½ cup thawed frozen orange juice concentrate, and ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Store, covered, in refrigerator until ready to use. About 1½ cups sauce

Sweet-Sour Apricot Sauce

Drain two 1-lb., 14-oz. cans apricot halves; force apricots through a sieve or food mill into a saucepan. Stir in a mixture of ½ cup drained crushed pineapple, ½ cup honey, ½ cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains white pepper, and 2 tablespoons cider vinegar. Add 2 large cloves garlic, quartered. Bring mixture to boiling, reduce heat to medium, and cook for 10 min., stirring occasionally. Remove garlic. Cool and store, covered, in refrigerator until ready to use. About 2½ cups sauce

Grilled Shrimp Appetizers

Shell fresh shrimp, leaving tails; devein and rinse under running cold water; put into a large bowl. Partially cover with Italian salad dressing; cover bowl and refrigerate at least 2 hrs., turning shrimp several times. Drain shrimp, reserving marinade. Allow guests to thread onto metal or bamboo skewers (soak bamboo skewers in water before using): shrimp, cherry tomatoes, green pepper squares, and avocado pieces. (See photo.) Grill 3 in. from coals about 3 min., or until shrimp are done, turning and brushing with marinade.

Grilled Lamb Chops

4 loin or rib lamb chops, cut 1½ to 2 in. thick
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon Accent
⅛ teaspoon freshly ground pepper

1. Trim most of the fat from the lamb chops; rub each side of meat with cut clove of garlic.

2. Grill chops about 4 in. from coals 8 to 10 min. on one side, or until meat is browned. Turn and season with half of a mixture of the salt, Accent, and pepper. Grill second side about 8 to 10 min., or until done. To test doneness, slit meat near bone and note color of meat. Season other side and serve immediately. 4 servings

Roast Corn

Loosen husks only enough to remove silks and blemishes from ears of corn. Dip ears in pail of water. Shake well. Rewrap husks around corn. Plunge into water again and let stand until husks are soaked, about 1 hr. Place ears on grill over coals and roast, turning frequently, until tender, about 15 min. Husk and brush generously with Perky Butter Sauce.

Perky Butter Sauce

Heat together ½ cup butter, ½ teaspoon Italian salad dressing mix, ½ teaspoon paprika, and ¼ teaspoon chili powder. Serve hot.

Vegetable Medley in Foil

3 medium-sized zucchini, cut in ½-in. slices
7 large mushrooms, sliced lengthwise through caps and stems
8 large pimiento-stuffed green olives, sliced
1 large tomato, cut in pieces
3 medium-sized onions, thinly sliced
3 tablespoons olive oil
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
½ teaspoon sweet basil
1 teaspoon salt
Freshly ground black pepper

1. Toss together first five ingredients in the center of a large square of heavy-duty aluminum foil; gently mix in remaining ingredients. Bring edges of foil up over mixture and seal tightly to avoid leakage when packet is turned.

2. Place on grill about 3 in. from coals and cook 15 to 20 min., or until zucchini is tender. Turn packet over occasionally to cook vegetables evenly.

4 to 6 servings

Dilled Potatoes in Packets

6 medium-sized potatoes, pared
Salt
½ cup butter or margarine, softened
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
1 tablespoon dill weed

1. Cut each potato crosswise into 1-in. slices and place on an individual square of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Sprinkle slices generously with salt and spread with butter. Sprinkle evenly with snipped parsley and dill weed.

2. Put slices together to reassemble each potato; wrap in foil, sealing tightly.

3. Place on grill 3 in. from coals and cook about 35 min., or until potatoes are tender. Turn packets occasionally to cook evenly.

6 servings

Herbed Biscuit Ring

¼ cup butter or margarine
½ teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon celery seed
½ teaspoon sage
¼ teaspoon thyme
Few grains salt
Few grains paprika
1 8-oz. container ready-to-bake biscuits

1. Cream butter until softened. Blend in the lemon juice, celery seed, sage, thyme, salt, and paprika. Cover and chill at least 1 hr. to allow flavors to blend thoroughly. (Soften herb butter slightly before using.)

2. Open biscuit container according to directions on package. Separate biscuits and spread each with the herb butter.

3. Arrange biscuits, slightly overlapping, to form a ring in a shallow baking pan.

4. Bake at 400°F 15 min., or until golden brown.

10 or 12 biscuits

Minted Broiled Lamb Chops

8 loin or rib lamb chops, cut 1½ to 2 in. thick
¼ cup finely chopped mushrooms, lightly browned in butter
2 tablespoons crushed fresh mint leaves or 1 tablespoon dry mint leaves
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons wine vinegar

1. Combine mushrooms, mint, sugar, mustard, salt, and vinegar; toss gently to mix.

2. Grill chops about 4 in. from coals 8 to 10 min. on one side. Turn chops and spoon mushroom mixture over surface of each; grill second side 8 to 10 min., or until done. To test doneness, slit meat near bone and note color of meat.

James Franciscus—From Riches to Success

Once ill at ease with girls, Franciscus now is happily surrounded by them. He and his wife have two daughters, Kelly (above) and Jamie.

He's happy he traded a social background for the hard work of Hollywood—and so are his fans

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

JAMES FRANCISCUS, 30-year-old star of Warner Brothers' "Youngblood Hawke" and television's "Mr. Novak," recalled fondly the gift his stepfather gave him upon graduation from Yale —a trip to Europe.

"One afternoon," he recalled, "I came upon a picturesque farmhouse near Toledo in Spain. I stopped to ask for a cup of water and ended up staying five days, helping with all sorts of chores." The heir of a socially prominent Eastern family, who was kicked out of the Social Register for marrying an actress, paused: "It was my first experience with poor people."

Jim has no desire to be the horse-set scion or society success. "So I come from a well-known family. So we were in the Social Register," he continued almost belligerently. "It played such a little part in my life, I wish people wouldn't make so much of it."

He was referring to his stepfather, Francis LeFarge, a New York stockbroker. His own father, a real-estate broker, was killed when Jim was eight. He was shot down by enemy planes shortly after he'd entered the Royal Canadian Air Force as a pilot during the early part of World War II. Jim doesn't remember much about him other than the time when he was six and his father took him up in a two-seater biplane near his native Clayton, Mo. "We buzzed the house and flew upside-down for a couple of minutes. We had no parachutes, and I was sure the motor would fall out. I felt scared and exhilarated. Thank heaven, Mother was a very open-minded gal."

Jim has inherited his father's love for danger. I first met him at a Hollywood party shortly after he came to California from New York, where he had played the rookie detective in tv's "Naked City." He didn't mix much with the other guests, yet when cornered seemed eager to talk about such experiences as running with the bulls through the streets of Pamplona in Spain. "It was the highlight of my graduation trip—and very nearly the end of it and me," he says. "When the bulls chased us through the narrow streets, I was knocked off my feet, and people fell on top of me and jumped over me to get away from the bulls. Since I was at the bottom of the pile, I got bruised quite a bit, but at least I wasn't gored."

Today his favorite pastime is tearing up and down the California hills on a Japanese motorcycle with his brave wife Kitty frantically clinging to him. "I love it—in fact, I gave him the motorcycle!" she told me.

THREE YEARS after his father was killed, his mother married socially prominent Francis LeFarge. The 11-year-old Jim hated leaving the Midwest. "I was never really able to fit in with the ways of New York social life," he says. "I was never able to talk to people."

He believes his uneasiness about girls was at least partly due to being brought up in exclusive boys' schools before he enrolled at Yale. "It's an unhealthy situation. At the time you are most curious about the opposite sex, you're separated from girls. I never really learned to be at ease with women, and often I made girls feel uncomfortable with me."

His wife Kitty, actress-daughter of director Bill Wellman, can vouch for that. "I was scared to death of Jim when we first went out together. He usually talked about books, the theater, and classical music. I wasn't used to this. The fellows I went out with before talked about rock 'n' roll and that sort of thing. I didn't want Jim to know how dumb I was, so I didn't say much."

Jim recalls, "I thought maybe she was a little bit awed because she'd seen me in 'Naked City' and that she figured I took her out just to be nice—which sometimes was true! She was so quiet I thought, what a dull cookie."

It finally dawned on Jim that maybe her quietness was caused by his own unapproachable attitude, because when she was with her own family she was vivacious and full of fun.

"I thought he wanted a sister because that's how he treated me," Kitty told me. "Often he would ask me out at the last minute. Eleven dates and he didn't even shake hands! That went on for nearly two years!"

THEIR PLATONIC relationship changed abruptly the evening they attended a party for singer Bobby Rydell. While sitting quietly together, Jim suddenly confronted her with, "Why don't you ever talk to me?"

"I told him he scared me and that sometimes I just wanted to hug him," Kitty says. "That's when Jim told me he loved me."

They were married a month and a half later and now have two daughters, Jamie and Kelly.

Kitty insists—and my own experiences confirmed it—that there are two Jims: one at work —hard driving, dedicated, not always easy to get along with; the other away from his career —with a sense of humor to match his sincerity and intelligence.

I found out the hard way about the Jim-Franciscus-at-work. I have known Jim socially for four years and always found him friendly. Yet when I had lunch with him at MGM recently, he was distant and a bit curt—his mind apparently was more on his role than the interview, which he obviously didn't enjoy. For instance, when I asked—after he'd explained his Sicilian-Corsican-Scotch-Irish-Cherokee ancestry —if Franciscus were his real name, he snapped, "Why make up one like that?"

Later, when I expressed surprise at Jim's rather abrupt attitude, Kitty explained, "At the studio he's strictly work. That's the kind of actor he is, that's why he's so good—and that's why I stay away from the set! Outside the studio he's just crazy and wonderful. But he can't combine the two. Even at home, at times when he's given a rewritten script to study, his mind is consumed with it. I talk to him, but I know he isn't paying any attention. I learned to accept him like this."

Jim is delighted the way his career has progressed but resents playing the part of a star off-screen. "Because of his schoolteacher role on tv, people honestly think he is one," Kitty told me. "We recently spent a weekend in Las Vegas and everywhere we went, they brought him their educational problems. Jim just cringed and fled back to our hotel.

"If he'd have his way, he'd just go to the studio and work, come home, and have nobody see him except on the screen. Maybe this sounds trite, but he's the only actor I ever met who loves his work simply for the joy of doing it—and not for the trimmings."

I was just thinking...®

"IS MR. SMITH IN?"
"Who is this?"
"Patty Johnson."
"He's out."

Here is a little news item for Mr. Smith. He has heard from me for the last time. If I'd said my name is Tuesday Weld, Mr. Smith might have been in to me, but I won't bother to take a chance on it.

This sort of approach also gives the screening meemies to a businessman otherwise known as my father. Long ago he issued his employees strict orders never to annoy a caller by intimating that the name would decide whether he was in or out.

Neither he nor I has any objection to the following exchange:

"Is Mr. Smith in?"

"No, I'm sorry. He's out of town today. May I give him a message?"

But my businessman father has been known to pop his cork when asked who's calling even if Mr. Smith is in. He is wont to reply, "Does it make a difference?" and leave Mr. Smith's hapless helper tongue-tied.

I'm convinced you can discover everything you need to know by the simple expedient of being considerate and diplomatic. I'm willing to give my age, weight, and hair color to anyone who wants to know, provided he asks politely. And that is information I usually don't pass out to any old Tom, Dick, or Harry's girl Friday.

The only time I insist on knowing who's calling me is after he has told me off, with some unpleasant side comments concerning my antecedents. After I've heard all that, I'd really rather not know him, anyway.

As for you, Mr. Smith, send not to know for whom the bell tolls.

You can live on an island for all of me.

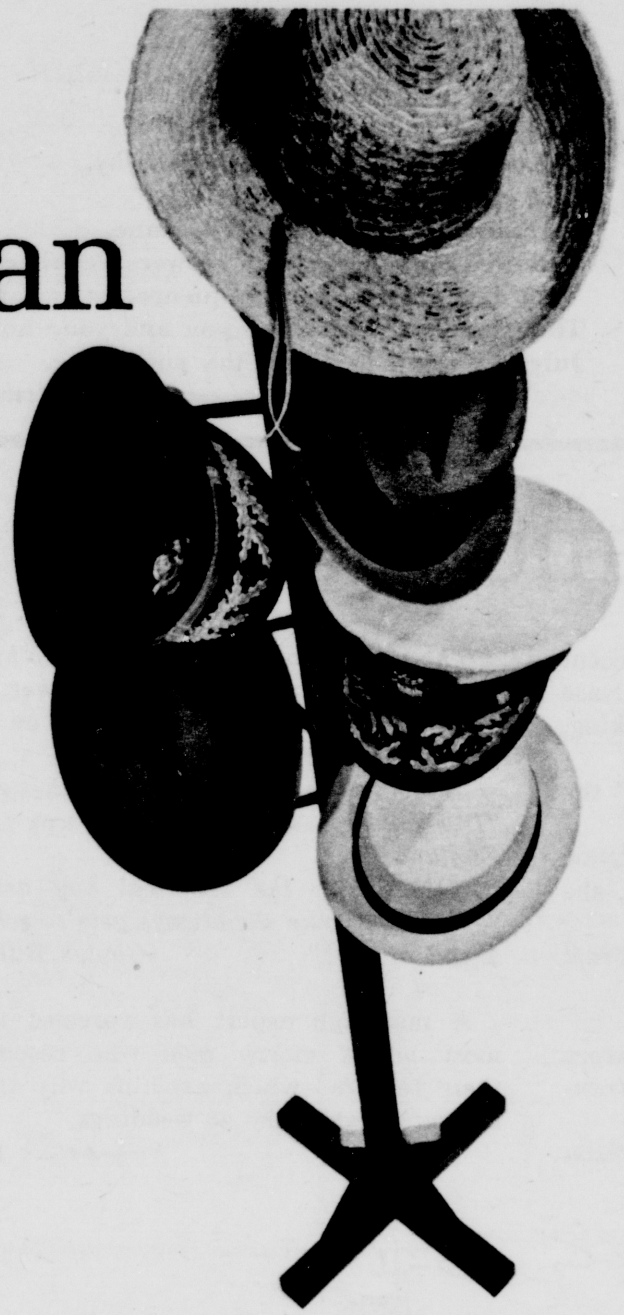
WOULD YOU VOTE FOR A Woman as President?



PHOTOGRAPH BY WALTER HERSTATT

By JOHN KENT

Family Weekly polled national leaders and found they say "yes," but men (and women) on the street seem to oppose the idea; now here's your chance to have your say

SEN. MARGARET CHASE SMITH's formal campaigning for the Republican Presidential nomination has revived a question for American voters.

Would you vote for a qualified woman candidate as President of the United States—or, for that matter, as Vice President, a position many believe Senator Smith may still settle for?

The answer seems to depend on whom you ask. FAMILY WEEKLY queried a select list of Very Important People. Generally, they responded "yes." But what about the men and women on the street? They really have the final say, and their answer seems to be "no." For example, a poll of visitors to the New York World's Fair showed opposition to a woman President by a more than 2-1 vote.

Here and there, others expressed opinions. Lucille Ball, herself a Hollywood boss: "No, it's a bad idea. The boss should be a man."

Clare Boothe Luce, former congresswoman and ambassador: "Women are obviously discriminated against. For any woman to be elected President, she would have to possess remarkable ability and tremendous popular appeal."

Arlene Francis, television personality: "I don't think a woman should be commander-in-chief of the Armed Forces."

Author Harry Golden: "I'd like to see a woman President. They're a little more practical."

Mayor J. Bracken Lee of Salt Lake City: "Certainly a woman couldn't run the country any worse than it's being run."

But how does grass-roots America feel? Here, for the first time, the people who really elect a President get a chance to sound off. On this page is a simple ballot which FAMILY WEEKLY readers can fill out and mail. Our editors will tabulate the results and prepare a story based on the opinions of our more than 10 million readers.

Before you vote, however, here is a selection of what some of those VIPs told FAMILY WEEKLY in its recent poll:

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith: "I see no special qualifications or disqualifications for women for I think they are people just as much as men are. I think they are no more and no less capable than men. Whether a man or a woman, the candidate should be judged on his or her ability and record rather than on his or her sex."

Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania: "I know of no reason why a woman could not become President; women have served successfully as heads of state in other countries. In our country, custom, of course, has up to now assigned this position to men, but although custom maintains a strong hold on people, it is not totally inflexible, especially in America."

Anthropologist-author Margaret Mead: " . . . Acceptance of women in executive positions is likely to be slower than acceptance of women in legislative and judicial positions. It would be particularly difficult for a married woman to assume high office; a single woman greatly revered, such as Jane Addams was, would be a possibility. A widow whose husband had been politically successful is at present likely to be the most acceptable candidate for any high political office."

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York: "I think (Senator Smith's) entering into the race is a tribute to her and to the quality of opportunity of all in this country."

Marietta Tree, U. S. mission to the United Nations: "American citizens have often elected women to high office . . . Thus, the time may come when we will have a woman President, but I would guess that she would have to be extremely popular and extraordinarily qualified to break the male tradition."

Gov. George Romney of Michigan: "I think any candidate ought to be judged on the basis of merit and not on the basis of sex."

Social arbiter Amy Vanderbilt: ". . . Being President is an awesome responsibility. Leave it to those big, stalwart men, I say!"

Critic Marya Mannes: ". . . Within the foreseeable future . . . probably the only way a woman could become President would be through inheritance of the office as Vice President . . ."

Anna Rosenberg, former assistant Secretary of Defense and now public and industrial-relations consultant: "There are far too few women in positions of importance at the present time, and before the country can get used to the idea of a woman President or Vice President, many more will have to serve in important jobs . . . so that the voters will be prepared to consider them without prejudice."

Esther Peterson, assistant Secretary of Labor: "I would say the social climate for women is becoming better all the time and that the future could be favorable indeed for the woman who aspires to the Presidency or the Vice Presidency."

Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson's reply came through her press secretary, Elizabeth Carpenter, who noted: "As you can well imagine, Mrs. Johnson is more than pleased with the present officeholder."

How to Make a Fortune Today —starting from scratch

William Nickerson, self-made millionaire and author of the best-seller HOW I TURNED $1000 INTO A MILLION IN REAL ESTATE—IN MY SPARE TIME tells you about his new book

William Nickerson

BEFORE my first book was published, four years ago—telling how I had made a fortune in real estate, mostly in my spare time—five publishers turned the book down. They all said I had succeeded only because I started during the Depression—that nobody could do the same thing today because the same opportunities no longer exist!

When those publishers said "it can't be done any more," I had only half a million dollars, and no intentions of increasing my estate. But I got fighting mad, and decided to prove the skeptics wrong. I went out on the current real estate market, shopped exclusively from ads that realtors put in metropolitan papers. And in two years I doubled my net estate to over a million dollars.

So before my first book went to press I was able to add new material, to scrap the original title "The Realty Road to Riches," and retitle it HOW I TURNED $1000 INTO A MILLION.

Perhaps you are one of the almost half a million people who read that book. Maybe you are one of the hundreds of fortunate men and women who have put my principles into practice, and are now well along the road to financial independence. Or perhaps, like the five publishers I mentioned, you doubt that you can do the same thing today that I did then. If that's the case, then it is for you that I have written my new book, just published. It is called HOW TO MAKE A FORTUNE TODAY—STARTING FROM SCRATCH!

You Can Still Make a Fortune In Real Estate Today!

In the past two years, thousands of people have asked for my advice. "How can I save a nest egg to start investing, when all I have now is a goose egg?"

"Can an ordinary person like myself achieve success?"

"With only $2,500 saved, how can I pyramid to a million dollars?"

And the big question on everybody's mind: "Is it still possible to succeed today?"

Believe me when I answer with an unqualified "YES!" You can still find and capitalize on many opportunities all around you. And I want to show you how! In my new book I tell you, in detail, exactly what you need to know to succeed in real estate NOW . . . and I answer specifically the countless questions that have been fired at me from all over the world, the same questions that you too probably would like to ask.

Since the publication of my first book, the door of opportunity has swung open to many thousands of people. Every day letters pour in that prove how my book betters the lives of ordinary folk like you and me. They come from every major country in the free world, and from every section of the United States, Maine to Hawaii, Alaska to Florida.

Turn a Small Sum Into Fortunes Just as These People Did

Many of these letters thank me for revealing my secrets of success. Frequently they give examples of how my proven formula has helped men and women from every walk of life—regardless of age, experience, location, education, capital or lack of it—to start on the realty road to riches in leisure time. Hundreds of case histories are brought to my attention continually, like that of Roy Dygert, retired carpenter from Portland, Oregon, who bought a triplex for $8,000, paying only $800 down. In seven months he spent $600 for materials and used his own labor to make improvements. After a total cash outlay of $1,400, Roy sold the property for $14,500, and made a profit of $5,900.

"Can Reading a Book Make You Rich?"—an article in the April, 1961 Cosmopolitan, told the story of Gerard Pinault of Pawtucket, Rhode Island, who didn't graduate from grammar school, never earned more than a five thousand dollars a year. Then he read my first real-estate book. Yet, less than two years later, Pinault had seven buildings, a total of fifty units, and about eighteen thousand dollars a year income from rentals—all accomplished in his spare time and on credit.

Victor J. Zaro started his first realty investment in Philadelphia after my book came out, and in three years pyramided from scratch to a net worth of a third of a million dollars in apartment equities. He writes: "And some brokers told me your program wouldn't work in Philadelphia! For the first time in my life I feel I have achieved complete economic security. I know I wouldn't even have started investing except for the inspiration and know-how of your book, and for this I shall be forever grateful."

These current examples of success prove over and over how real-estate investment can turn small nest eggs into large fortunes—using my methods.

Specific Advice, Facts, Know-How, Start You on Road to Fortune NOW

In HOW TO MAKE A FORTUNE TODAY I bring you up-to-date on opportunities in real estate, and reveal valuable facts and advice on:

- How You Can Succeed with Average Ability in a Dwindling City
- How to Get Started
- Where to Find Good Buys
- When You Need a Lawyer
- Whether It Pays to Deal with a Realtor
- How You Can Tell a Good Risk
- How You Can Judge Risky Deals
- Where You Can Make Advantageous Trades
- How You Can Dispose of Homes and Other Equities

- How to Get 100% Financing
- How to Determine Your Net Worth and Establish Credit
- The Best Place to Borrow Money
- How to Save Taxes on Operating Income
- How to Save Taxes on Pyramiding Profits

. . . and much, much more

I answer specifically questions like:

Where is the best place to invest?
How can you profit by inflation?
Will the real-estate boom hold up?
How can you make money and have a legitimate tax loss?
How will proposed tax laws affect pyramiding to a million dollars?
How can you recognize a good deal?
Does it pay to put in new furniture?
Where can I buy at a discount?
Is do-it-yourself necessary?
What contractors and contractors' gimmicks should I guard against?
What steps should I take before signing a contract?
What should I watch after the job is finished?
When should general rent increases be made?
How do you borrow huge amounts?
Where do I get 75% financing?

. . . and hundreds more

Case Histories Show You How

My book tells you what has been done by dozens of people who, possibly like yourself, knew nothing about real estate before, yet now are cashing in big in this lucrative field.

For example, a Savannah, Georgia reader had no previous experience when he read my book. He then mushroomed $1,000 into $30,000 in six months, buying eighteen apartments in three different buildings.

A San Francisco area professional man also had no previous real-estate experience. He read my book and he is now successfully launched on an eighteen-apartment investment.

Philip Gamble, of Fort Lauderdale, Florida, is now successfully launched in a twelve-apartment investment with a valuation in the $100,000 range. Prior to reading my book he had no experience.

Bee Hill Mueller, of Sacramento, California, who had no experience in apartment investment, followed my book and pyramided to more than $300,000.

What these people have done, you can do too. HOW TO MAKE A FORTUNE TODAY teaches you everything you need to know in hours. Average intelligence is all you need. No special skill or experience is required. Yet this exciting way of making money can completely change your life, just as it has done for so many people everywhere.

Read Book FREE For 2 Weeks—Then Decide

The knowledge you'll find in my new book could change your whole viewpoint on how to make money. You will be astonished to discover how easily so many average people make more dollars in a single transaction than you now make in years of hard work.

These are strong statements, but I am convinced that every word is true. Still, you may have many questions, many doubts. That is why the publishers invite you to examine my book free for two weeks in your own home. You be the judge. See if this isn't the most amazing, exciting, yet practical way to get out of the low income and high tax traps that most people are caught in. If you're not convinced, return the book in two weeks and pay nothing. Otherwise, keep it and send only $4.95 plus a few cents postage and handling. I'm sure that once you read my book you'll not let it go. For your free examination copy, mail coupon or write now to: SIMON AND SCHUSTER, Publishers, Dept. FM, 630 Fifth Avenue, New York 20, N. Y.

WHAT A CHAMPION SHE HAS IN YOU, JOSE! BUT BE DISCREET LEST YOU BANKRUPT THE FAMILY!

BANKRUPT MY BROTHER! HO! BY THE WAY, WE SAIL THIS WEEK FOR HIS ESTATE IN HISPANIOLA!

SUCH WEALTH HE HAS NOW!

HOW WILL I KNOW YOU ARRIVE SAFELY?

BELOVED, I WILL SEE THAT YOU HAVE WORD.

MONTHS LATER. DIEGO IS ABOUT TO HAVE A VISITOR.

GARDENER, IS THIS THE HOME OF THE YOUNG HIDALGO DIEGO MORENO?

IT IS, INDEED!

IF YOU RECOGNIZE THIS, LEAD ME TO HIM.

IT BELONGS TO THE DUENNA OF MY MASTER'S FIANCEE! YOU HAVE NEWS FOR HIM?

SI! NEWS WHICH IT DEPRESSES ME TO UTTER.

DID I OVERHEAR THAT YOU HAD NEWS FOR ME?
